400 Arrested By Troops And Police In Communist-Inspired Insurrection

LA PAZ, Bolivia, May 20.—(AP)—The government announced today that troops and police had arrested some 400 persons, including armed rebels and snipers, in suppressing what it said was a Communist-inspired insurrection.

An official communique said 13 persons were killed and 112 wounded, but unofficial estimates said the death figure was nearer 100.

The communique said Sergio Almaraz, described as a Communist leader, was among those arrested along with an artist who was said to have returned recently from Paris where he had been in contact with Russian agents.

The ill-fated revolt flared up in La Paz last night during a nationwide general strike called by the confederation of labor to support demands for higher wages.

The communique said the revolt collapsed after clashes with troops and police. Elements of the right wing national revolutionary movement (MNR) joined in the revolt, the government said.

The rebels tore up streets to throw up barricades in the northern and northeastern zones of the city. Some barricaded themselves in a university building, but surrendered to troops and armed student volunteers. Those besieged in the building, officials said, were mostly strikers led by Communist students.

Life in the city today partially returned to normal, although the strike in which 40,000 workers have walked off their jobs is still continuing. Troops were back in their barracks.

Although the strike had been called for all of Bolivia, La Paz was reported to be the only city seriously affected. Under a modified martial law decree the army had taken over operation of the nation's railroads and air lines. In La Paz, nearly paralyzed Thursday and Friday, most food shops were open.

Traffic police and city workers were busy repairing the torn up streets.

Last night the government approved a 40 per cent raise in teachers' salaries.

Weapons Scientists Disregarding Ethics

LONDON, May 20—(AP)—Scientists and physicians who create atomic weapons and devise methods of bacteriological warfare are flagrantly disregarding ethics by which they should be bound, a resolution adopted by the British Socialist Medical Association said tonight.

It urged prohibition of atomic weapons through the United Nations.

"We consider that scientists, and particularly doctors, associated with research along these lines are guilty of criminal abandonment of the basic ethical tenets o. their professions and we urge that they refuse to be associated with such work," the resolution said.

U. S. MILITARY IN BERLIN DISPLAYS PRECISIONED SHOW

Highly Polished Armed Forces Day Event Precedes Communist March

DEMONSTRATION INTENDED TO CHILL RED PLANNING

By Thomas A. Reedy

BERLIN, May 20 —(AP)— Americans celebrating "Armed Forces Day" in Europe centered their biggest show of highly polished teamwork in Berlin today just a week before the proposed Communist youth march on this hot spot of the cold war.

Germans by the thousands watched a token show of American military strength in parades throughout American occupation zones in Western Germany and Berlin. It was the first time the army, navy and air force had a joint holiday to demonstrate their newly merged unity.

Top American brass and civilian officials watched a parade of 2,000 infantry, constabulary and military police troops in Berlin. The reviewers included U. S. Commander-In-Chief Gen. Thomas T. Handy and U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy.

U. S. authorities have not admitted that the show was intended to chill the ardor of the 500,000 Communist youth in their demonstration next week end. But McCloy praised the United for their teamwork and declared:

"The presence of our armed forces in Germany and the potential strength of our armed might gives pause to any nation which would seek to force its oppression on unwilling people."

In a special message to all American units in Germany, General Handy said their job is to "guarantee peace and freedom in Germany."

MORSE TRIUMPHS IN OREGON RACE

Indications Are That Both Major Parties Will Have Split Political Front

WASHINGTON, May 20—(AP)—Primary victories by two GOP candidates who call themselves progressives indicated today that Republicans—as well as Democrats—will go into the November election with a split political front.

A top-heavy victory in yesterday's Republican senatorial primary in Oregon puts independent-voting Senator Wayne Morse into a general election campaign that isn't likely to bear much resemblance to Republican drives in some other states.

In Pennsylvania, Gov. James H. Duff already was planning to convert his senatorial primary victory of last Tuesday into a drive aimed at refurbishing the Republican party for the 1952 presidential race.

Victor over Pennsylvania's Republican old guard, Duff must defeat Senator Francis J. Myers, the assistant Democratic leader, in the November vote in order to play a role some of his friends say he covets—that of president - maker within the GOP.

U. S. Congress Presses For European Political Unity

By Don Whitehead

WASHINGTON, May 20. —(AP)— Foreign policy leaders in congress appealed today for political unification of western Europe.

Members of the senate foreign relations committee and the house foreign affairs committee said jointly that trade barriers can be broken down in Europe only through political action.

"The freedom of trade necessary for a truly unified (European) market," they said, "can exist only if such agreements are effectively—and that means politically—enforcible."

A unified market, they added, requires political unity.

These views were given in a senate-house conference report on the $3,121,450,000 foreign aid measure containing $2,850,000,000 for the European Recovery program.

The bill itself calls on western Europe for "further unification." The reason stronger language was not used, the report said, was because Secretary of State Acheson believed the political objective could be reached without special "statutory encouragement."

Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) of the senate foreign relations committee said he would call the foreign aid authorization bill before the senate either Monday or Tuesday without waiting for house action.

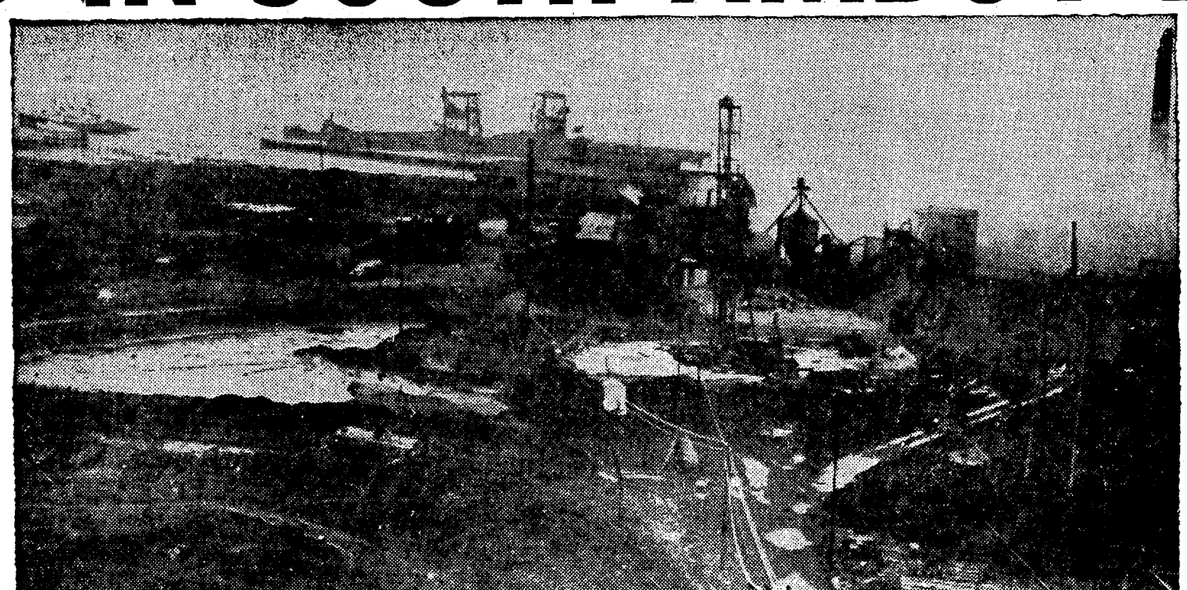

Usually the house acts first on authorization bills—but this time Connally said he was going to press for senate action as soon as possible.

The house conferees had sought to insert a clause in the measure "to encourage the unification and federation of Europe." This was stricken out in the conference, but the report said:

"What is important . . . is the substance of policy, not the precise content of words.

"The necessity of a vastly more

2 SERIOUSLY HURT IN SHOOTING DUEL

Former Sheriff, Road Machine Salesman Swap Shots In Mississippi Town

COLLINS, Miss., May 20.—(AP)—A former Covington county sheriff and a road machine salesman were seriously wounded late today in a pistol duel in the business section of Collins.

Sheriff Dale Shumake of Covington county said that Johnny Sanford, whom he succeeded in office, and Buford Dees, both about 52 years old, shot it out as the climax to bad feelings that grew out of Sanford's marriage eight months ago to Dees' former wife.

Six empty shells were found in Sanford's gun, and five, plus one on which the hammer had snapped were in Dees' pistol, the sheriff stated.

Dees was in his car and Sanford was standing outside when the shooting occurred, Shumate said.

Both pistols were .38-caliber.

No one nearby heard any words exchanged before the men started firing, he added.

Dees was taken to Methodist hospital in Hattiesburg where his physician said his condition was "undetermined, but potentially critical." One bullet lodged in Dees' chest after puncturing the lung, another struck him in the left hand, and one hit his right arm, the doctor said.

Fifty German Miners Feared Dead In Blast

Twenty-Seven Seared Bodies Already Removed From Shattered Pit; 36 Others Suffer Burn And Gas Injuries

GELSENKIRCHEN, Germany, May 20. —(AP)— Fifty German miners were feared dead and at least 36 others were burned and gassed today in a coal mine explosion near here.

Twenty-seven seered bodies an 36 injured men had been pulled from the shattered mine tonight, the mine management said.

"It is feared that about 50 miners were killed," an announcement said. "All of those dead have not been discovered."

Flames still roared through the mines as rescue units battled to bring out others who might still be alive.

More than 200 miners were in the pit when the explosion took place, the mine management said. The cause of the disaster has not been determined.

Mine crews and firefighting units from Essen and other Ruhr cities rushed to Gelsenkirchen to help the local miners in rescue operations. The mine is between Eseen and Gelsenkirchen.

An official of the British coal control group in Essen, which supervises the Ruhr coal mines, said that "some of those rescued are not expected to live. They are badly burned and suffering from gas fumes."

Only 20 minutes before the explosion a safety crew had inspected the mine and declared it safe, the British official said.

Five Crewmen Aboard Wrecked Boat Missing

MELVILLE, La., May 20.—(AP)—One of six crewmen missing and presumed drowned when the tugboat James Smith sank in the Atchafalaya River was found alive today.

He is Lennis Verret, river pilot from New Orleans.

The 100-foot-long boat sank in 100 feet of water last midnight when it rammed a bridge support. Five crewmen jumped overboard and were rescued immediately.

It was feared the remaining six —below deck at the time—had perished.

But just before noon, a patroling party found Verret, exhausted and slightly injured, making his way along the river bank with a fisherman. He said he swam and floated for four hours before it became light enough to head for shore.

He could shed no light on the fate of the five men still missing. They were Floyd L. Ashley and Harold Lynch, New Orleans; Timothy Cushing, Gretna, La.; Russell Randolph, Paducah, Ky., and Capt. W. R. Weldon, St. Louis, Mo.

French Atomic Chief To Lead Communists

BERLIN, May 20—(AP)—The Communist Free German Youth announced tonight that Frederic Joliot-Curie, France's former atomic research chief, had accepted an invitation to be honorary president of their Whitsuntide rally in Berlin. A spokesman said Joliot-Curie was "too busy with his work for peace," however, to attend the rally personally.

FORCES REPORT ON UNIFIED STRENGTH

Leaders Say Armed Power Is Only Way To Avert World Conflict

By The Associated Press

America's defenders "reported to the people" Saturday in their first nationwide display of unified strength even as their leaders proclaimed that armed power is the one way to prevent world war III.

President Truman reviewed a 70-minute parade of 6,500 members of the four services beneath chill, gray skies to open Washington's observance of the first Armed Forces day. He was flanked by top military and civilian defense officials in a flag-draped stand on Constitution avenue near the Washington monument.

Later, 140 military planes of the latest types from B-36 atom bombers to darting jet fighters thundered over the city and nearby Bolling Air Force Base where scores of thousands gathered to see land, sea and air combat equipment displayed.

The capital city topped it off with a salute to the armed services in a program at the Washington monument grounds. On the program were entertainment stars followed by a fireworks display.

Defense Secretary Johnson called the day a "report to the people on the state of our national defense."

The observance took the place of the separate army, navy and air

DEATH OF SENATE BILL 13 SOUGHT

Law Would Require That Repair And Plumbing Be Done By Master

A vigorous campaign to defeat Senate Bill 13, which would require all installation and repair of plumbing to be done under the supervision of master plumbers, was inaugurated yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe.

It was charged by engineers that the bill, if passed by the Louisiana legislature, would add approximately $500,000 to the cost of Monroe's drainage and sewerage program, and thus would practically nullify all efforts that have been made so far to relieve conditions here. It also was pointed out that large firms in Monroe and West Monroe which employ main-

Worst Weevil Infestation In History Seen As Possible

By The Associated Press

Summer rains might bring on the worst infestation of cotton boll weevils in the history of Louisiana and Mississippi, agriculture experts of both states warned.

A wet July or August could mean that cotton fields will be crawling with the profit-taking insects by picking time.

Louisiana Commissioner of Agriculture W. E. Anderson of Baton Rouge said "we have the potential of a very heavy infestation throughout the whole south. The situation in Louisiana is similar. Much depends on the weather —if it is hot and dry the weevile will be fewer than if it is rainy."

Later, after checking farms in the state, Anderson said conditions pointed to the "largest emergence of the pests we have ever had." He said the Tallulah, La., experiment station that checks of ground trash of cotton lands showed 2,200 boll weevils per acre as compared with 1,700 last year.

Acting on the warning from the Tallulah, La., station, Mississippi farmers, too, are moving against the cotton foe. They are using, for the first time, early liquid poisoning. They apply it as they cultivate their crops.

Dr. Clay Lyle, Mississippi State College entomologist, gave a clue to the gigantic invasion which might come this summer when he said about 70 per cent of hibernating weevils would survive. The normal survival rate is about eight per cent.

Experiment stations are warning of a poison shortage if much rain falls during either July or August.

22 STILL MISSING

Damage By Eruption Of 600 Tons Of Explosives Estimated At $20 Million

UNEXPLODED PARTS MAKE CITY'S STREETS UNSAFE

SOUTH AMBOY, N. J., May 20. —(AP)— Men with mine detectors moved cautiously along the shell-littered waterfront tonight in search of some trace of 22 men still missing in the South Amboy munitions disaster.

Four bodies already have been recovered. Hundreds were injured. Rescue workers conceded there was practically no possibility of finding any of the missing still alive.

Six hundred tons of explosives had roared into the air in one terrifying rumble that was heard in three states. The explosives were being loaded from freight cars onto barges to be shuttled to a ship waiting out in lower New York Bay.

All the 22 missing men had been at work on the loading operation on the South Amboy waterfront. Their foreman, who had walked away from the site when the pier behind him rose up in one spout of black smoke and flame, said he turned and suddenly could find no one.

The foreman, Austin Stotle of South Amboy, was the principal witness this afternoon before an official coast guard board of inquiry. He told them he saw nothing unusual about the area just before the blast and had no reason to suspect sabotage.

Coast Guard Commander L. T. Jones asked Stotle if some small boat could have slipped quietly into the loading area or if suspicious persons had been sighted at the scene. Stotle said no.

Residents of the stricken area toiled throughout the day to restore some semblance of order

PLAN FOR SHARP PROPAGANDA WAR

U. S., Britain To Beam Voice Of America, B. B. C. Deeper In Red Territory

LONDON, May 20—(AP)—Britain and the United States laid plans today for a sharpened propaganda war against Communism.

Their plans were being cast in the same mold as the decisions on defense reached this week by the 12 Atlantic pact nations—better use and coordination of western resources.

Closer cooperation between the official information services of Britain and the U. S. and erection of more radio stations to carry The Voice of America and the BBC behind the iron curtain may result from the conference today of Edward W. Barrett, U. S. undersecretary of state, and Christopher Warner, his opposite number in the British foreign office.

Informed sources said they might also arrange to exchange some personnel in order that the working reporters and broadcasters might better understand the operations of both countries.

Barrett's trip here followed closely upon President Truman's statement that the west must intensify its efforts to provide correct information about the free world to people behind the iron curtain. It also followed the conclusion of the American, British and French foreign ministers that faith in free-

More than 200 miners were in the pit when the explosion took place, the mine management said. The cause of the disaster has not been determined.

Mine crews and firefighting units from Essen and other Ruhr cities rushed to Gelsenkirchen to help the local miners in rescue operations. The mine is between Eseen and Gelsenkirchen.

An official of the British coal control group in Essen, which supervises the Ruhr coal mines, said that "some of those rescued are not expected to live. They are badly burned and suffering from gas fumes."

Only 20 minutes before the explosion a safety crew had inspected the mine and declared it safe, the British official said.

Five Crewmen Aboard Wrecked Boat Missing

MELVILLE, La., May 20.—(AP)—One of six crewmen missing and presumed drowned when the tugboat James Smith sank in the Atchafalaya River was found alive today.

He is Lennis Verret, river pilot from New Orleans.

The 100-foot-long boat sank in 100 feet of water last midnight when it rammed a bridge support. Five crewmen jumped overboard and were rescued immediately.

It was feared the remaining six—below deck at the time—had perished.

But just before noon, a patroling party found Verret, exhausted and slightly injured, making his way along the river bank with a fisherman. He said he swam and floated for four hours before it became light enough to head for shore.

He could shed no light on the fate of the five men still missing. They were Floyd L. Ashley and Harold Lynch, New Orleans; Timothy Cushing, Gretna, La.; Russell Randolph, Paducah, Ky., and Capt. W. R. Weldon, St. Louis, Mo.

French Atomic Chief To Lead Communists

BERLIN, May 20—(AP)—The Communist Free German Youth announced tonight that Frederic Joliot-Curie, France's former atomic research chief, had accepted an invitation to be honorary president of their Whitsuntide rally in Berlin. A spokesman said Joliot-Curie was "too busy with his work for peace," however, to attend the rally personally.

FORCES REPORT ON UNIFIED STRENGTH

Leaders Say Armed Power Is Only Way To Avert World Conflict

By The Associated Press

America's defenders "reported to the people" Saturday in their first nationwide display of unified strength even as their leaders proclaimed that armed power is the one way to prevent world war III.

President Truman reviewed a 70-minute parade of 6,500 members of the four services beneath chill, gray skies to open Washington's observance of the first Armed Forces day. He was flanked by top military and civilian defense officials in a flag-draped stand on Constitution avenue near the Washington monument.

Later, 140 military planes of the latest types from B-36 atom bombers to darting jet fighters thundered over the city and nearby Bolling Air Force Base where scores of thousands gathered to see land, sea and air combat equipment displayed.

The capital city topped it off with a salute to the armed services in a program at the Washington monument grounds. On the program were entertainment stars followed by a fireworks display.

Defense Secretary Johnson called the day a "report to the people on the state of our national defense."

Law Would Require That Repair And Plumbing Be Done By Master

A vigorous campaign to defeat Senate Bill 13, which would require all installation and repair of plumbing to be done under the supervision of master plumbers, was inaugurated yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe.

It was charged by engineers that the bill, if passed by the Louisiana legislature, would add approximately $500,000 to the cost of Monroe's drainage and sewerage program, and thus would practically nullify all efforts that have been made so far to relieve conditions here. It also was pointed out that large firms in Monroe and West Monroe which employ main-

22 STILL MISSING

Damage By Eruption Of 600 Tons Of Explosives Estimated At $20 Million

UNEXPLODED PARTS MAKE CITY'S STREETS UNSAFE

SOUTH AMBOY, N. J., May 20. —(AP)— Men with mine detectors moved cautiously along the shell-littered waterfront tonight in search of some trace of 22 men still missing in the South Amboy munitions disaster.

Four bodies already have been recovered. Hundreds were injured. Rescue workers conceded there was practically no possibility of finding any of the missing still alive.

Six hundred tons of explosives had roared into the air in one terrifying rumble that was heard in three states. The explosives were being loaded from freight cars onto barges to be shuttled to a ship waiting out in lower New York Bay.

All the 22 missing men had been at work on the loading operation on the South Amboy waterfront. Their foreman, who had walked away from the site when the pier behind him rose up in one spout of black smoke and flame, said he turned and suddenly could find no one.

The foreman, Austin Stotle of South Amboy, was the principal witness this afternoon before an official coast guard board of inquiry. He told them he saw nothing unusual about the area just before the blast and had no reason to suspect sabotage.

Coast Guard Commander L. T. Jones asked Stotle if some small boat could have slipped quietly into the loading area or if suspicious persons had been sighted at the scene. Stotle said no.

Residents of the stricken area toiled throughout the day to restore some semblance of order

PLAN FOR SHARP PROPAGANDA WAR

U. S., Britain To Beam Voice Of America, B. B. C. Deeper In Red Territory

LONDON, May 20—(AP)—Britain and the United States laid plans today for a sharpened propaganda war against Communism.

Their plans were being cast in the same mold as the decisions on defense reached this week by the 12 Atlantic pact nations—better use and coordination of western resources.

Closer cooperation between the official information services of Britain and the U. S. and erection of more radio stations to carry The Voice of America and the BBC behind the iron curtain may result from the conference today of Edward W. Barrett, U. S. undersecretary of state, and Christopher Warner, his opposite number in the British foreign office.

Informed sources said they might also arrange to exchange some personnel in order that the working reporters and broadcasters might better understand the operations of both countries.

Barrett's trip here followed closely upon President Truman's statement that the west must intensify its efforts to provide correct information about the free world to people behind the iron curtain. It also followed the conclusion of the American, British and French foreign ministers that faith in free-

Worst Weevil Infestation In History Seen As Possible

By The Associated Press

Summer rains might bring on the worst infestation of cotton boll weevils in the history of Louisiana and Mississippi, agriculture experts of both states warned.

A wet July or August could mean that cotton fields will be crawling with the profit-taking insects by picking time.

Louisiana Commissioner of Agriculture W. E. Anderson of Baton Rouge said "we have the potential of a very heavy infestation throughout the whole south. The situation in Louisiana is similar. Much depends on the weather—if it is hot and dry the weevile will be fewer than if it is rainy."

Later, after checking farms in the state, Anderson said conditions pointed to the "largest emergence of the pests we have ever had." He said the Tallulah, La., experiment station that checks of ground trash of cotton lands showed 2,200 boll weevils per acre as compared with 1,700 last year.

Acting on the warning from the Tallulah, La., station, Mississippi farmers, too, are moving against the cotton foe. They are using, for the first time, early liquid poisoning. They apply it as they cultivate their crops.

Dr. Clay Lyle, Mississippi State College entomologist, gave a clue to the gigantic invasion which might come this summer when he said about 70 per cent of hibernating weevils would survive. The normal survival rate is about eight per cent.

Experiment stations are warning of a poison shortage if much rain falls during either July or August.

Newsman And Wife Injured In Auto Mishap

The city circulation manager of the News-Star—World and his wife were injured in an early morning automobile collision yesterday near the intersection of Brevel street and the Sterlington road.

The News-Star—World employee, T. J. Eldridge, was treated for minor injuries at the St. Francis Sanitarium. His wife was hospitalized at the sanitarium with injuries, Monroe police said.

According to officers, Eldridge and his wife were hurt when another automobile, driven by M. E. Croon, 34, of Crossett, Ark., rammed into the rear of Eldridge's car which had slowed prior to turning onto Brevel street.

No arrest was made, police said.

FORCES REPORT

force days celebrated in previous years. The merged celebration was in line with the program of military unification.

President Truman sounded the keynote of preparedness — to deter aggression—when he declared America's armed forces are being developed to maintain peace and because "there are certain people in the world who only understand the fist."

Keeping the peace requires "the necessary forces in the hands of honest civilians," he added in a speech last night.

Mr. Truman spoke out again for universal training which congress repeatedly has ignored since he urged it in October, 1945. If it had been set up then, there would be no cold war now the president contended.

He emphasized that he was speaking of "universal training, not universal military training." The program he favors would be designed to train young women as well as young men, to be of maximum service in the nation.

The president said he desired the program so that the young people "could furnish the service necessary for the welfare and defense of the United States of America."

Speeches in observance of the day at home and abroad gave no hint of hope for an end of the cold war soon. Repeatedly the theme was stressed that military power must be maintained.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, said at St. Louis that the only safe course is a costly one and "may call for great sacrifices."

"We must maintain a powerful military establishment," Sherman said, until the pressure eases up.

Sherman said we can hope for gradual breaking away of Russia's satellites in Europe, and an eventual independent China.

or Weber, pastor of the West Monroe, First Baptist Church, will deliver the sermon. Commencement will be held June 2 in the Neville High School auditorium when President J. J. Mickle of Centenary College will be the speaker.

Rev. James T. Horton, although the newest comer as a pastor of a church in the Twin Cities, is making many friends not only as the leader of the First Baptist Church in Monroe, but outside the immediate church ranks. As indicationiof how well he is being appreciated is the fact that he has been chosen to give the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class at Northeast Junior College on May 28 at the morning service hour at the First Baptist Church and also later the same day will deliver the baccaleureate address at Louisiana College in Pineville.

Six days replete with fun and adventure in the outdoor world will be the lot of Girl Scouts who will stay at Camp Ki-Ro-Li for a week, starting July 18. Making a home under the trees, getting acquainted with birds or insects, hiking, perhaps cooking a meal, swimming, making new friends and many more out of door activities await the girls who come to the day camp.

Campers will bring lunches from home and spend the morning and early afternoon. The girls will be divided into units, according to age and school grade. Each unit will have its own leaders, will make its own out of door home and the girls will carry on most of their activities in these small groups, sometimes meeting for singing or ceremonies with the rest of the camp.

If a bill now before the state legislature is enacted into law, all school teachers will be required to take an oath of loyalty. It was originally planned to include only instructors in all state - supported institutions of higher education, but later was amended and in present form would cover all instructors in all Louisiana public schools.

While spending billions to fight communism abroad, it would seem good sense to take proper precautions against an attack of this "disease" right here at home. We can not watch too closely the theories that are being passed out to those who are the instructors of the youth of the land.

A really constructive project was performed by the Monroe Rotary Club when in March 1947, Joseph Prost was brought here from wartorn Europe and entered in Northeast Junior College,all at the expense of Rotary International;. The purpose was to spread a closer relationship with people of Europe, realizing that closer association should lead to friendships and friendships are a far cry from the inroads of warfare.

Young Prost proved an excellent student, completing study at the college here and then going to L. S. U. where he is now receiving his diploma.

He was guest of the Rotary Club at the last luncheon and paid heartfelt tribute to the club that was responsible for his educational and international progress. In his words, as voiced at the club, he asked:

"Don't you think that a similar amount spent on exchanging people, enabling them to know one another, would give you greater national security than millions of soldiers and bombs?"

and make temporary repairs to their battered himes. Military patrols moved through the area, and their commanders said they would stay all weekend.

The board of inquiry was told that 9,000 cases of military antipersonnel and anti-tank mines and 2,000 boxes of dynamite had gone up in the blast.

The cargo of explosives had come by train from Newark, O., and Rutherford, Pa., the coast guard board of inquiry was told today. The explosives had been made by the Kilgore Manufacturing Co. at their plants in those two towns, the investigators were told.

A Pennsylvania railroad official showed the board of inquiry 10 bills of lading for the munitions cargo. All were consigned for export to the James Healing Co., the Jersey City Stevedore Co. which was handling the loading process. The lading bills did not indicate the cargo's final destination.

Some of the munitions had been rained onto the city still unexploded, turning the area into a treacherous mine field with all the dangers of a front - line combat zone.

Sound trucks toured the town to warn residents to watch where they walked and not to touch any strange objects. Army engineers combed the area with their electrical detectors in search of the unexploded mines, each of them normally capable of killing a man or blowing up a car on contact.

But army men said the firing pins had been wrapped separately and that the mines would require some rough handling to set them off.

South Amboy Fire Commissioner William O'Leary said the property damage might exceed $20,000,000.

O'Leary said it was believed that the men who were loading four barges with 600 tons of ammunition probably had been "blown to bits." The blast at 6:25 p. m. (E. S. T.) last night was heard in three states — New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania.

The state department said in Washington it would investigate the blast to determine whether the explosives involved had been properly licensed for export.

It was not at once determined how the explosion occurred or where the ammunition was destined to be shipped.

The coast guard immediately scheduled a hearing on the cause.

The American Red Cross reported 312 persons had been treated for injuries. Ten were critically wounded, the Red Cross said.

This figure was believed low since many persons cared for their own injuries from flying glass. Today they walked the streets of this 10,000 population city 21 miles southwest of New York with dazed expressions. Arms and faces were bandaged everywhere in the community, where it appeared to have snowed shattered glass.

Mayor John Leonard said every house in the city had been damaged. Most of the injuries were from flying glass.

Army troops, marines and coast guardsmen converged on the city, guarding banks and other public places. There were no reports of disorders.

The force of the explosion blew anti-personnel mines over a wide area. Highly trained army combat engineers were rushed to the scene to comb for ammunition and duds.

One steel plate was hurled more than two miles and imbedded in concrete in Perth Amboy. In that sister city of South Amboy across the Raritan river there were reports of many injuries from flying glass. Plate glass windows in the business district were knocked out.

In New York, the Isbrandtsen steamship line said ammunition in South Amboy was to be loaded aboard one of its vessels, the Flying Clipper. A spokesman emphasized, however, that it was not known whether the ammunition which exploded was slated for the Flying Clipper.

Defense officials in Washington said they believed the ammunition was part of a commercial shipment. The Pakistan embassy would not confirm a report that it was being loaded for shipment to Pakistan.

Press representatives of Liaquat said they were sure the munitions in the explosion were not consigned to Pakistan. The prime minister himself could not be reached during his brief El Centro stop while on an air tour of the Imperial valley.

In Washington a Pakistan embassy official said his country recently had purchased light munitions, including anti-tank and anti-personnel mines, in this country and that these were due for shipment about this time.

One report received by the embassy was that the explosion occurred in 45 tons of dynamite which had no connection with the Pakistan order.

Minister M. O. A. Baig told a reporter that "we are trying to get some official information whether our materials were involved."

Pakistan recently obtained a munitions export license from the United States government to cover shipment of goods it was buying.

The missing barge-loaders were employes of the James Healin Co., stevedores, of Jersey City, N. J. Among the missing were three sons of the firm's president James Healing.

The stunned citizens of South Amboy worked hard to restore normal life.

Scores of workmen began replacing glass which had been knocked out. The Red Cross offered paper to replace shattered windows.

A few grocery stores, their windows boarded up and floors still strewn with glass, opened for business as usual. But on the normally busy Saturday there were few customers.

A sound truck toured the city, a tired - voiced man warning residents: "Do not handle any suspicious objects. Notify state police at city hall."

The Red Cross provided shelter in a schoolhouse for 25 persons who could not return to their homes. There were many complaints from residents who said they were without water.

Everywhere the topic of conversation was: "Where were you when it happened?"

Every carpenter and handyman in the area was busy helping to patch up homes and shops. Streets echoed to pounding hammers and screeching saws.

Military police were stationd at every intersection.

Trucks labored to clear streets of piles of glass and wreckage.

Less than two weeks ago the coast guard had ordered extra precautions in the loading of ammunition at South Amboy because the docks are "to close to thickly populated sections."

Rear Admiral Ed H. Smith said on May 9 that not more than 500 pounds of ammunition should be loaded in South Amboy at one time. Longshoremen protested that the restrictions were ridiculous and would drive business to other ports.

Meanwhile the state health department reported in Trenton that no food or water contamination had been discovered in the disaster area.

State Health Commissioner Daniel Bergsma, who had hurried to the scene last night with members of his staff, said no major breaks were reported in gas, water or sewage mains, although there was some drop in water pressure.

Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll meantime authorized his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Edward C. Rose, and the superintendent of state police, Col. Charles H. Schoeffel, to take in his name any action required to meet the emergency.

It was the second munitions blast in the South Amboy area. A series of TNT explosions rocked nearby Morgan on Oct. 4, 1918.

The propaganda campaign may be one of the more concrete developments arising from the two weeks of conferences here among the Atlantic pact nations and the foreign ministers of the three big western powers.

At these conferences the western nations showed clearly they recognize they may need to go to war some day to protect themselves against Russia when they agreed to develop their armed strength.

Western diplomats believe that when the west is mighty the east will be more wary, more willing to ease its conditions for a live-and - let - live arrangement that would avoid a war.

Even while the United States and its allies were laying their plans, Trygve Lie was in Moscow exploring the stony road to peace.

The U. N. secretary general conferred with Robert Schuman, French foreign minister, in Paris today, and planned to meet with British Foreign Secretary Bevin in London early next week.

Newsman And Wife Injured In Auto Mishap

The city circulation manager of the News-Star—World and his wife were injured in an early morning automobile collision yesterday near the intersection of Brevel street and the Sterlington road.

The News-Star—World employee, T. J. Eldridge, was treated for minor injuries at the St. Francis Sanitarium. His wife was hospitalized at the sanitarium with injuries, Monroe police said.

According to officers, Eldridge and his wife were hurt when another automobile, driven by M. E. Croon, 34, of Crossett, Ark., rammed into the rear of Eldridge's car which had slowed prior to turning onto Brevel street.

No arrest was made, police said.

force days celebrated in previous years. The merged celebration was in line with the program of military unification.

President Truman sounded the keynote of preparedness — to deter aggression—when he declared America's armed forces are being developed to maintain peace and because "there are certain people in the world who only understand the fist."

Keeping the peace requires "the necessary forces in the hands of honest civilians," he added in a speech last night.

Mr. Truman spoke out again for universal training which congress repeatedly has ignored since he urged it in October, 1945. If it had been set up then, there would be no cold war now the president contended.

He emphasized that he was speaking of "universal training, not universal military training." The program he favors would be designed to train young women as well as young men, to be of maximum service in the nation.

The president said he desired the program so that the young people "could furnish the service necessary for the welfare and defense of the United States of America."

Speeches in observance of the day at home and abroad gave no hint of hope for an end of the cold war soon. Repeatedly the theme was stressed that military power must be maintained.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, said at St. Louis that the only safe course is a costly one and "may call for great sacrifices."

"We must maintain a powerful military establishment," Sherman said, until the pressure eases up.

Sherman said we can hope for gradual breaking away of Russia's satellites in Europe, and an eventual independent China.

JES' RAMBLIN'

or Weber, pastor of the West Monroe, First Baptist Church, will deliver the sermon. Commencement will be held June 2 in the Neville High School auditorium when President J. J. Mickle of Centenary College will be the speaker.

Rev. James T. Horton, although the newest comer as a pastor of a church in the Twin Cities, is making many friends not only as the leader of the First Baptist Church in Monroe, but outside the immediate church ranks. As indicationiof how well he is being appreciated is the fact that he has been chosen to give the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class at Northeast Junior College on May 28 at the morning service hour at the First Baptist Church and also later the same day will deliver the baccaleureate address at Louisiana College in Pineville.

Six days replete with fun and adventure in the outdoor world will be the lot of Girl Scouts who will stay at Camp Ki-Ro-Li for a week, starting July 18. Making a home under the trees, getting acquainted with birds or insects, hiking, perhaps cooking a meal, swimming, making new friends and many more out of door activities await the girls who come to the day camp.

Campers will bring lunches from home and spend the morning and early afternoon. The girls will be divided into units, according to age and school grade. Each unit will have its own leaders, will make its own out of door home and the girls will carry on most of their activities in these small groups, sometimes meeting for singing or ceremonies with the rest of the camp.

If a bill now before the state legislature is enacted into law, all school teachers will be required to take an oath of loyalty. It was originally planned to include only instructors in all state - supported institutions of higher education, but later was amended and in present form would cover all instructors in all Louisiana public schools.

While spending billions to fight communism abroad, it would seem good sense to take proper precautions against an attack of this "disease" right here at home. We can not watch too closely the theories that are being passed out to those who are the instructors of the youth of the land.

A really constructive project was performed by the Monroe Rotary Club when in March 1947, Joseph Prost was brought here from war-torn Europe and entered in Northeast Junior College,all at the expense of Rotary International. The purpose was to spread a closer relationship with people of Europe, realizing that closer association should lead to friendships and friendships are a far cry from the inroads of warfare.

Young Prost proved an excellent student, completing study at the college here and then going to L. S. U. where he is now receiving his diploma.

He was guest of the Rotary Club at the last luncheon and paid heartfelt tribute to the club that was responsible for his educational and international progress. In his words, as voiced at the club, he asked:

"Don't you think that a similar amount spent on exchanging people, enabling them to know one another, would give you greater national security than millions of soldiers and bombs?"

22 STILL MISSING

and make temporary repairs to their battered himes. Military patrols moved through the area, and their commanders said they would stay all weekend.

The board of inquiry was told that 9,000 cases of military antipersonnel and anti-tank mines and 2,000 boxes of dynamite had gone up in the blast.

The cargo of explosives had come by train from Newark, O., and Rutherford, Pa., the coast guard board of inquiry was told today. The explosives had been made by the Kilgore Manufacturing Co. at their plants in those two towns, the investigators were told.

A Pennsylvania railroad official showed the board of inquiry 10 bills of lading for the munitions cargo. All were consigned for export to the James Healing Co., the Jersey City Stevedore Co. which was handling the loading process. The lading bills did not indicate the cargo's final destination.

Some of the munitions had been rained onto the city still unexploded, turning the area into a treacherous mine field with all the dangers of a front - line combat zone.

Sound trucks toured the town to warn residents to watch where they walked and not to touch any strange objects. Army engineers combed the area with their electrical detectors in search of the unexploded mines, each of them normally capable of killing a man or blowing up a car on contact.

But army men said the firing pins had been wrapped separately and that the mines would require some rough handling to set them off.

South Amboy Fire Commissioner William O'Leary said the property damage might exceed $20,000,000.

O'Leary said it was believed that the men who were loading four barges with 600 tons of ammunition probably had been "blown to bits." The blast at 6:25 p. m. (E. S. T.) last night was heard in three states — New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania.

The state department said in Washington it would investigate the blast to determine whether the explosives involved had been properly licensed for export.

It was not at once determined how the explosion occurred or where the ammunition was destined to be shipped.

The coast guard immediately scheduled a hearing on the cause.

The American Red Cross reported 312 persons had been treated for injuries. Ten were critically wounded, the Red Cross said. This figure was believed low since many persons cared for their own injuries from flying glass. Today they walked the streets of this 10,000 population city 21 miles southwest of New York with dazed expressions. Arms and faces were bandaged everywhere in the community, where it appeared to have snowed shattered glass.

Mayor John Leonard said every house in the city had been damaged. Most of the injuries were from flying glass.

Army troops, marines and coast guardsmen converged on the city, guarding banks and other public places. There were no reports of disorders.

The force of the explosion blew anti-personnel mines over a wide area. Highly trained army combat engineers were rushed to the scene to comb for ammunition and duds.

One steel plate was hurled more than two miles and imbedded in concrete in Perth Amboy. In that sister city of South Amboy across the Raritan river there were reports of many injuries from flying glass. Plate glass windows in the business district were knocked out.

In New York, the Isbrandtsen steamship line said ammunition in South Amboy was to be loaded aboard one of its vessels, the Flying Clipper. A spokesman emphasized, however, that it was not known whether the ammunition which exploded was slated for the Flying Clipper.

Defense officials in Washington said they believed the ammunition was part of a commercial shipment. The Pakistan embassy would not confirm a report that it was being loaded for shipment to Pakistan.

Press representatives of Liaquat said they were sure the munitions in the explosion were not consigned to Pakistan. The prime minister himself could not be reached during his brief El Centro stop while on an air tour of the Imperial valley.

In Washington a Pakistan embassy official said his country recently had purchased light munitions, including anti-tank and anti-personnel mines, in this country and that these were due for shipment about this time.

One report received by the embassy was that the explosion occurred in 45 tons of dynamite which had no connection with the Pakistan order.

Minister M. O. A. Baig told a reporter that "we are trying to get some official information whether our materials were involved."

Pakistan recently obtained a munitions export license from the United States government to cover shipment of goods it was buying.

The missing barge-loaders were employes of the James Healin Co., stevedores, of Jersey City, N. J. Among the missing were three sons of the firm's president James Healing.

The stunned citizens of South Amboy worked hard to restore normal life.

Scores of workmen began replacing glass which had been knocked out. The Red Cross offered paper to replace shattered windows.

A few grocery stores, their windows boarded up and floors still strewn with glass, opened for business as usual. But on the normally busy Saturday there were few customers.

A sound truck toured the city, a tired - voiced man warning residents: "Do not handle any suspicious objects. Notify state police at city hall."

The Red Cross provided shelter in a schoolhouse for 25 persons who could not return to their homes. There were many complaints from residents who said they were without water.

Everywhere the topic of conversation was: "Where were you when it happened?"

Every carpenter and handyman in the area was busy helping to patch up homes and shops. Streets echoed to pounding hammers and screeching saws.

Military police were stationd at every intersection.

Trucks labored to clear streets of piles of glass and wreckage.

Less than two weeks ago the coast guard had ordered extra precautions in the loading of ammunition at South Amboy because the docks are "to close to thickly populated sections."

Rear Admiral Ed H. Smith said on May 9 that not more than 500 pounds of ammunition should be loaded in South Amboy at one time. Longshoremen protested that the restrictions were ridiculous and would drive business to other ports.

Meanwhile the state health department reported in Trenton that no food or water contamination had been discovered in the disaster area.

State Health Commissioner Daniel Bergsma, who had hurried to the scene last night with members of his staff, said no major breaks were reported in gas, water or sewage mains, although there was some drop in water pressure.

Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll meantime authorized his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Edward C. Rose, and the superintendent of state police, Col. Charles H. Schoeffel, to take in his name any action required to meet the emergency.

It was the second munitions blast in the South Amboy area. A series of TNT explosions rocked nearby Morgan on Oct. 4, 1918.

Overlords In Limlight

In the coming months this country will have an unusual chance to deal smashing blows against organized crime. Both Congress and the Justice Department have plans underway which could produce excellent results—if properly executed.

The Senate has created a special crime investigating committee and given it $150,000 to work with. Senator Kefauver, Tennessee Democrat, is the chairman.

At the same time, the Justice Department has begun a comprehensive inventory of 150 leading underworld figures in the United States. It has asked all U. S. attorneys to supply full information at their command on the activities of these individuals. Department officials will co-ordinate the information in Washington.

The inventory may be a prelude to the most sweeping prosecution of racketeers since the late 1920's and early 1930's when Al Capone and many another prohibition gangster were put behind bars.

The pattern of crime has altered greatly since those days. Now the obviously phony front common in that period is considered amateurish. Leaders in gambling, vice and racketeering engage in many legitimate businesses, tangling them so cleverly with their illicit activities that it's hard to draw the line.

They hire able lawyers, try to keep within the law and, for the most part, manage to stay out of jail.

No one, not even our best crime experts, is sure how broadly these groups are organized, though many believe powerful national syndicates exist. Nor has anyone explored with painstaking thoroughness the role organized crime plays in American politics.

That's the opportunity beckoning both to the Senate committee and the Justice Department: to mark out the real boundaries of U. S. crime and determine its true links with our political life.

The job in the Senate calls for able, earnest leadership. It will be impossible to keep politics out of it. But perhaps we can hope at least that political angles will not be overstressed. No party and no individual should be spared in ferreting out the truth, whether in California, Louisiana or President Truman's home state of Missouri.

The Justice Department may assist the committee by turning over some of its findings on the 150 racketeers, if that won't hamper possible prosecution.

Above all, the glare of publicity should be thrown upon these men and their many underlings. A Communist often finds publicity to his advantage; a criminal never does.

Gov. Long and School Lunches

Governor Long told the legislature Monday night that it might be necessary to limit state (tax) aid to the school lunch program to lunches for needy children only, but that personally he would like to see every child fed a "free, hot lunch"—which means regardless of whether the child is rich or poor. He further stated that his own campaign pledge was for a lunch (free) only for every child who, because of poor financial background, could not afford to pay.

The governor's philosophy thus seems to be that he favors the state's taxpayers paying for lunches for all school children, whether they come from millionnaire or poverty stricken families; but that first of all the children of the poor should be cared for.

On this latter point, the World and Governor Long are in full agreement.

We agree with the position most educators take that a child physically under-nourished cannot absorb the teaching given him to the same extent as an equally intelligent but well nourished child. We believe that the future of the nation rests, first of all, with proper care for and bringing up of our children—the future citizens—and that this care should include physical, mental and intellectual factors.

We do not believe that it should cost $16,300,000 in federal and state tax money—cash or commodities—for a school lunch program in Louisiana that does not guarantee one single free lunch to one single poor child.

We do not believe that Louisiana should, or needs, to spend more than $9,000,000 of its own tax revenue and a total of $16,300,000 of state and federal tax money to provide part-free lunches for children of the rich as well as the poor when a city like Houston, Texas, can feed every needy child among its 88,0000 pupils for $30,000 a year; and that means that if the Louisiana proportion of needy to total school population were the same as Houston's the Louisiana job of feeding the needy only would cost but $150,000 or so per year.

We do not believe that Louisiana needs to put up $9,000,000 a year of its own tax revenue for a school lunch program not feeding the needy free, when all the other 47 states together spend but $2,611,000 of their own state revenue and many of them do feed, free, at least a big portion of their needy children.

We do believe that any philosophy that the state should provide in any specific category for all people, regardless of need, rich or poor, is pure socialism in its philosophy and a long stride toward pure statism and totalitarian government—dictatorship—in its practice.

The questionaire-replies from the superintendents of education of the various states revealed that Louisiana is spending 3.7 times as much state tax revenue on school lunches as do all the other 47 states combined. Neither The World nor the state superintendents had anything to say as to whether this spending is accomplishing more for the children than the spending in other states.

Actually, we think it might be better to say that this Louisiana spending may be doing more to our children than does the type of spending used in some of the other states—making them feel from kindergarten to college, that figuratively the government owes them a living without effort on their part or their parent's part.

The World hopes that Governor Long, as chief executive of the state, will lead the way in establishing a school lunch program that:

1. Really feeds, free, children of the poor.

2. Does not waste millions of dollars of tax money annually providing part-free lunches for those able to pay, and forcing those unable to pay to find the money somewhere or go hungry and undernourisehed.

3. Encourage parishes and cities to do their part in caring for their own needy children—a system of limiting state aid to equipment and labor, with local school systems providing food and determining (through established records of official welfare agencies) what children are needy might be worked out.

4. Abandons completely the ridiculous idea that there is some "stigma" attached to being poor. Since when has it been a disgrace for an American child or adult to be poor so long as he did his best to better himself? Many of our greatest men came from poor families and boyhood poverty.

5. Establishing a lunch program on the principles of Americanism and not of Socialism.

To such ends we pledge Governor Long our full and earnest support.

IN MOVIELAND

HOLLYWOOD, May 20.—(AP)—Why are middle-aged citizens cavorting about the nation's dance floors in a revival of the loose-kneed dance craze, the Charleston?

And why are their sons and daughters joining in with equal fervor?

For an academic answer to these questions I asked Dr. Floyd Ruch, professor of psychology at the University of Southern California. Dr. Ruch is the author of "Psychology and Life", which is used as a text in 700 colleges.

It might be explained that the Charleston began to stage a comeback at various university campuses two or three years ago. The collegiate influence has spread and now dance schools all over the country have the ballroom fad of the '20s in their curricula.

The Monday night Charleston session at the Mocambo has been the biggest social event in Hollywood and how the club is offering the dance throughout the week.

"There are two elements," explained Dr. Ruch. "First of all, there are the people of my generation—those about 45. Contrary to what Dr. Pitkin said ("Life Begins at 40"), we yearn for the good old days.

"The best part of our lives seem to have been in the early 1920's when we were in our early twenties. That was when we were first achieving our independence and that's when we were doing the Charleston.

Rip would probably scratch his head and say, "I've never been away."

OUR CHILDREN

A BIT OF BEAUTY

Beauty is a tonic that lifts body and mind. We cannot have too much of it in our lives and children need it even more than grownups do. Beauty attracts and ugliness repels. When we want to attract children to what they should be and do we will succeed sooner, in better spirit, if we make the surroundings as beautiful as is in our power.

A pretty cereal bowl and pitcher will tempt a child to eat his morning cereal and drink his milk. A messy table, nondescript dishes, will repel the child and take away his appetite. He will not eat as he ought, nor with the relish he should have to promote his digestion.

Boys and girls want nice looking clothes. They want beauty in the simple styles they wear and that is certainly not too difficult to obtain when one considers the lovely things that are made for children today. Color, line and style mean a lot to children. When they feel in harmony with their things they live harmoniously, in better attitude toward their lessons, their chores and their families. Having to wear ugly things, or what they think are ugly, distresses them, makes them resentful, and that makes them feel uncooperative, irritable and abused.

The arrangement of the rooms in which they are to work and play and live actively have a powerful influence on their thinking and behavior. Untidy, messy rooms, ugly wallpaper, drab paint, the hard-used and never-brightened furniture of the neglected house, will send the children to look elsewhere for comfort and peace. The schoolroom that is dirty, with desks cut and battered, walls grimy, paint in scales, windows streaked and dimmed, will never attract, never hold children.

There is no need of costly equipment, costly belongings. So many of the needed elements in this craving for beauty in a child's life are within reach of most of us. We just don't think much about it. We are busy earning a living. "I have to attend to much more important things than the color of her hair ribbon. She's lucky to get any with all I have to do."

What is there more important than the happiness of a child? A happy child is a good child and isn't that very important? The same time that bought a green ribbon would have bought a blue one that suited the child because her eyes are blue. Isn't that important? The green ribbon brought tears, no appetite for dinner, misery. The blue one would have brought smiles, dimples, shining eyes, and a whale of an appetite. Are these things important too?

A bit of beauty is tonic to the soul, anybody's soul. Put as much of it into daily living as possible and it will more than pay its way.

Even a little baby enjoys being well dressed. Dr. Patri explains the ideal dress for children in his instructive leaflet P-19, "Clothing the Baby."

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

THE SCHUMAN PLAN

In continuing discussion of French Foreign Minister Schuman's proposal for integration of French and German coal and steel industries, majority editorial opinion is optimistic that the idea offers practical hope for a beginning of western European economic integration. But a rather large minority of editors fear that continental and British political and economic attitudes will block the Schuman plan. And a smaller minority fears that the proposed international control authority would be, in effect, an undesirable cartel.

Atlanta (Ga.) Journal (Dem.): "The French government . . . proposes that the coal and steel production of France and Germany 'be placed under a joint high authority . . . open to other European countries.' . . . This authority would modernize the two basic industries . . . and supply their products 'on equal terms to the markets . . . of the member countries, and develop joint exports to other countries.' . . . The Franco-German partnership would be the natural nucleus for a far wider association within which artificial trade barriers would be broken down. . . ."

Baltimore (Md.) Evening Sun (Ind.-Dem.): "It is difficult to see how some of the less desirable features of international cartels could be avoided. How . . . is the 'free competition' promised by the French to be achieved in the face of efforts to equalize the price of coal and steel? How is the privately owned French steel and the German steel and coal industry to be integrated with the nationalized French coal and British coal groups? And . . . how will such a mammoth grouping affect economic relations with a non-participating American industry?"

New York Herald Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "The Schuman plan goes beyond the limitation of production and price-fixing . . . of cartels. It foresees a truly international control, including elimination of tariffs on coal and steel within the countries affected. . . . The mixed nature of the ownership of the properties involved presents perplexities. . . . The United States will have to make its own evaluation of the economic effects. . . . Nevertheless . . . it will be to the advantage of the whole western world if the possibilities of the plan are realized."

Wall Street Journal (Ind.): "While the proposal seems to promise the badly needed cooperation between France and Germany and a greater freedom of trade across European boundaries, the actual prospect is that it would create a super - government cartel. . . . Price, production and delivery would be determined not by the market place but by the wishes of the politically appointed members of this cartel board."

New York Times (Ind.-Dem): "The danger . . . that the plan may be diverted into a new kind of cartel arrangement . . . is small because the plan would be operated . . . by a public international authority reporting to the United Nations. If that danger can be avoided, the new plan is bound not only to command American moral and financial support but also to exert a powerful attraction on nations now being exploited by the Soviets behind the Iron Curtain."

Oakland (Calif.) Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "The United States is in favor of any scheme that will promote rehabilitation and economic stability. . . . Britain, of course, will be reluctant to approve a combination that might raise competitive obstacles to her need for continental business, and steel is a big British product. . . . German independents say the idea originated in Germany and, although the Socialists have expressed their opposition, the Bonn government probably will go along with the plan."

Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot (Ind.-Dem.): "Chief obstacles come from the sponsor of the plan. France has reason to fear the competition of German industry. The Communist party, which commands a large bloc of votes in the French assembly, is not likely to approve. Enthusiasm is not expected to be shown by the . . . De-Gaullists. These factors suggest that Mr. Acheson knew about the plan in advance; and that passing the honor of sponsorship to the French was to supply the prestige which the French government will need to sell the idea to Frenchmen."

Wilmington (Del.) Morning News (Ind.): "If France and Germany can unite their heavy industry under international control, a long step toward European union will have been taken. And a solution will be in sight to a problem that seemed all but insoluble—how to make German industrial power without which Europe must remain on a subsistence level, contribute to the welfare of the continent without menacing the peace of the continent."

Looking Ahead—

In Washington

(By World Staff of Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Tennessee's 46 year old Senator Estes Kefauver is treading the same path that led Harry S. Truman to the office of vice-president.

Frequently mentioned around here as vice-presidential timber, the Tennessee Democrat has taken on the role of "gang-buster" on a national scale. He heads the special senate committee investigating bigtime gambling and crime.

If the investigation is a success, his political kite will soar.

President Truman, as a senator, was chairman of the senate war frauds investigating committee. He won nation-wide prominence and became Franklin D. Roosevelt's running mate in 1944.

Kefauver is carefully trying to conduct his investigation along the same lines that Mr. Truman followed. He has even assembled some of the staff that worked for the Truman committee.

Tariff Battle?

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Don't be astonished if a good old-fashioned tariff fight breaks out in the senate.

It's sure fire if the International Trade Organization charter ever reaches th esenate floor for ratification. It's still about a 50-50 bet it doesn't.

Republicans, noting that unemployment is mounting, see a good campaign issue: American workers going on relief while the administration asks for increased imports in an attempt to improve economic conditions in Europe.

Even some Democrats are jittery over complaints pouring in from hatters, miners, glove-makers and others about foreign goods.

Europe's Steel

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The French proposal to pool western European steel production is getting prime attention among military men here.

Annual production of western Europe is estimated at 42,000,000 tons. Current guess in U. S. military circles is that Russia might turn out about 19,000,000 tons.

Russia's requirements are heavy. It has to maintain over 57,000 miles of railroad track in European and Asiatic Russia and is reported tatempting to build more.

About 225 tons of steel goes into one mile of track.

Russia also is understood to be building thousands of tanks and guns. A medium tank requires over 43 tons of steel, a heavy gun over 12 tons.

Rail Union Puzzler

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The railroad brotherhoods didn't plan it this way, but—

The bill to allow them to make union shop agreements with railroads may run into serious trouble from fellow unionists.

The objectors are in favor of the union shop principle too—but they are Negroes, barred outright from the big rail unions or restricted to auxiliary units without much voice.

They want the union shop limited to organizations with no discrimination.

Hearings

In Hollywood With

JIMMIE FIDLER

HOLLYWOOD, May 20—I hear that Edward Arnold and Radio Writer Jean Holloway, infuriated by rumors they're romancing, have hired detectives to trace the reports. . . . Gloria Grahame and Director Nicolas Ray have failed in their reconciliation try; she'll file for divorce. . . . Maurice Chevalier is dickering with a major studio which wants to screen his life story, a la the Jolson pictures. . . . On the stork's list for September: Teresa Brewer, the thrush whose disc of "Put Another Nickel in the Nickelodeon" made juke box history.

The Glen Langans are separated again and she's telling pals she'll sue for divorce this time. . . . Warner Brothers, which has a predilection for gangster pictures, will do one on Detroit's notorious Purple Gang. . . . Add success stories: The Columbia Recording Company's report that Gene Autry's discs, during the past 20 years, have sold a total of 25,000,000 copies. . . . Max Baer and Maxie Rosenbloom are teaming again for a series of TV shorts.

Understand the Chinese national government has filmed a documentary intended to certify the good character of Chiang Kai Shek, and will seek to release it in American theatres. . . . Chilled: Mae West and Pianist Dave Lapin, who recently admitted plans for an altartrek. . . . M-G-M bosses, having finally noticed Jane Powell's curves as well as her voice, plan to star her in Betty Grable type musicals.

Preview Nights: Pic of the week: M-G-M's "Father of the Bride" (Spencer Tracy-Joan Bennett - Elizabeth Taylor - Billie Burke). A warmly human comedy that will win big cheers from all audiences. . . . Good: Columbia's "Fortunes of Captain Blood" (Louis Hayward - Patricia Medina - George MacReady). Swashbuckling melodrama, based on Raphael Sabatini's classic tale of piracy on the Spanish Main. . . . Columbia's "Her Wonderful Lie" (Marta Eggerth - Jan Kiepura-Janis Carter). Filmopera, with arias from "La Boheme" and "Martha" beautifully sung by Miss Eggerth and Kiepura: A gilt-edged entry for discriminating music lovers. . . . So-So: Eagle-Lion's "The Torch" (Paulette Goddard - Pedro Armendariz - Gilbert Roland). A made-in-Mexico comedy drama, well played by its capable cast, but marred by an antiquated plot. . . . M-G-M's "The Skipper Surprised His Wife" (Robert Walker-Joan Leslie-Edward Arnold). A good idea that failed to live up to expectations. . . . Best Performance: Pedro Armendariz in "The Torch."

M-G-M, after suspending John Hodiak for refusing to play an assigned role, then contemplated suing him for monetary loss allegedly caused by his last minute revolt. I've always felt that studio employees, including stars, should do what they're told to do, so long as the orders do not violate their contractural rights, but it does strike me that the Hodiak case contains more than a little irony. M-G-M seemed a bit late in picking on him, when I remember the tremendous losses this same studio incurred because of the insurrections of other stars. For every dollar's worth of loss occasioned by Hodiak who, until this one balk, had always been a remarkably cooperative actor, Judy Garland's sulks, for instance, must have cost Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer a fortune.

Betty Grable is making no secret of her annoyance at the advertising for her new picture, "Wabash Avenue." Said she: "The ads make me look like a 'kooch' dancer. I want it known that I've never done a naughty dance in my life." That's good talk—but maybe Betty should take another look at "Wabash Avenue" before protesting too loudly. I saw the picture, and I would certainly describe at least one of her dances as a "kooch" dance.

Overlords In Limlight

In the coming months this country will have an unusual chance to deal smashing blows against organized crime. Both Congress and the Justice Department have plans underway which could produce excellent results—if properly executed.

The Senate has created a special crime investigating committee and given it $150,000 to work with. Senator Kefauver, Tennessee Democrat, is the chairman.

At the same time, the Justice Department has begun a comprehensive inventory of 150 leading underworld figures in the United States. It has asked all U. S. attorneys to supply full information at their command on the activities of these individuals. Department officials will co-ordinate the information in Washington.

The inventory may be a prelude to the most sweeping prosecution of racketeers since the late 1920's and early 1930's when Al Capone and many another prohibition gangster were put behind bars.

The pattern of crime has altered greatly since those days. Now the obviously phony front common in that period is considered amateurish. Leaders in gambling, vice and racketeering engage in many legitimate businesses, tangling them so cleverly with their illicit activities that it's hard to draw the line.

They hire able lawyers, try to keep within the law and, for the most part, manage to stay out of jail.

No one, not even our best crime experts, is sure how broadly these groups are organized, though many believe powerful national syndicates exist. Nor has anyone explored with painstaking thoroughness the role organized crime plays in American politics.

That's the opportunity beckoning both to the Senate committee and the Justice Department: to mark out the real boundaries of U. S. crime and determine its true links with our political life.

The job in the Senate calls for able, earnest leadership. It will be impossible to keep politics out of it. But perhaps we can hope at least that political angles will not be overstressed. No party and no individual should be spared in ferreting out the truth, whether in California, Louisiana or President Truman's home state of Missouri.

The Justice Department may assist the committee by turning over some of its findings on the 150 racketeers, if that won't hamper possible prosecution.

Above all, the glare of publicity should be thrown upon these men and their many underlings. A Communist often finds publicity to his advantage; a criminal never does.

Gov. Long and School Lunches

Governor Long told the legislature Monday night that it might be necessary to limit state (tax) aid to the school lunch program to lunches for needy children only, but that personally he would like to see every child fed a "free, hot lunch"—which means regardless of whether the child is rich or poor. He further stated that his own campaign pledge was for a lunch (free) only for every child who, because of poor financial background, could not afford to pay.

The governor's philosophy thus seems to be that he favors the state's taxpayers paying for lunches for all school children, whether they come from millionnaire or poverty stricken families; but that first of all the children of the poor should be cared for.

On this latter point, the World and Governor Long are in full agreement.

We agree with the position most educators take that a child physically under-nourished cannot absorb the teaching given him to the same extent as an equally intelligent but well nourished child. We believe that the future of the nation rests, first of all, with proper care for and bringing up of our children—the future citizens—and that this care should include physical, mental and intellectual factors.

We do not believe that it should cost $16,300,000 in federal and state tax money—cash or commodities—for a school lunch program in Louisiana that does not guarantee one single free lunch to one single poor child.

We do not believe that Louisiana should, or needs, to spend more than $9,000,000 of its own tax revenue and a total of $16,300,000 of state and federal tax money to provide part-free lunches for children of the rich as well as the poor when a city like Houston, Texas, can feed every needy child among its 88,0000 pupils for $30,000 a year; and that means that if the Louisiana proportion of needy to total school population were the same as Houston's the Louisiana job of feeding the needy only would cost but $150,000 or so per year.

We do not believe that Louisiana needs to put up $9,000,000 a year of its own tax revenue for a school lunch program not feeding the needy free, when all the other 47 states together spend but $2,611,000 of their own state revenue and many of them do feed, free, at least a big portion of their needy children.

We do believe that any philosophy that the state should provide in any specific category for all people, regardless of need, rich or poor, is pure socialism in its philosophy and a long stride toward pure statism and totalitarian government—dictatorship—in its practice.

The questionaire-replies from the superintendents of education of the various states revealed that Louisiana is spending 3.7 times as much state tax revenue on school lunches as do all the other 47 states combined. Neither The World nor the state superintendents had anything to say as to whether this spending is accomplishing more for the children than the spending in other states.

Actually, we think it might be better to say that this Louisiana spending may be doing more to our children than does the type of spending used in some of the other states—making them feel from kindergarten to college, that figuratively the government owes them a living without effort on their part or their parent's part.

The World hopes that Governor Long, as chief evecutive of the state, will lead the way in establishing a school lunch program that:

1. Really feeds, free, children of the poor.

2. Does not waste millions of dollars of tax money annually providing part-free lunches for those able to pay, and forcing those unable to pay to find the money somewhere or go hungry and undernourisehed.

3. Encourage parishes and cities to do their part in caring for their own needy children—a system of limiting state aid to equipment and labor, with local school systems providing food and determining (through established records of official welfare agencies) what children are needy might be worked out.

4. Abandons completely the ridiculous idea that there is some "stigma" attached to being poor. Since when has it been a disgrace for an American child or adult to be poor so long as he did his best to better himself? Many of our greatest men came from poor families and boyhood poverty.

5. Establishing a lunch program on the principles of Americanism and not of Socialism.

To such ends we pledge Governor Long our full and earnest support.

His lone clue is that he was invited by the publisher's wife to attend a banquet and couldn't make it. Mutual friends informed him, he says, that her main topic that evening was his failure to show up. . . . Lucille Ball's rinse for her orange hair: One part sparkling Burgundy; two parts warm water.

Father Divine's screwy claim that the New York water shortage was caused by him because "New York doesn't love me." He cannot set foot in town, except on Sabbaths, when it is against the law to serve a summons. He's up to here in suits. When Ochs (of the Times) and Patterson (of the News) died he told his followers he arranged it because of their "lies about me." . . . Flair's upcoming issue—all about N. Y. Complete with popups and fold-ins. . . . Dots Johnson, an actor, who brought the most unusual lawsuit in years. Suing the producer of "A Phoenix Too Frequent" for omitting his name from the ads. The play flopped fast. . . . Bob Merrill's versatility. His next song will be vastly different from his "Baked a Cake." Waxes poetical in the wordage of "To Me You're A Song," based on a Chopin etude. . . . The Boston newsmen in our midst who report that many scribes there think there's something "very fishy" about the Brink bank holdup. Some even wonder if it ever happened!

The cooling, healthful concoction for the warm spells. Mix half a glass of tomato juice with ditto buttermilk. Season with salt and pepper, stir briskly. Oof'ly good and chockfulla vitamins. . . . Dr. J. Liebman's book, "Peace of Mind," which has sold over a million copies. The 25th printing. He died never knowing it would. . . . The big fuss over the speech that McCloy's aide couldn't deliver here—with newsmen muffing this fact: The Alger Hisses are living in his apartment, while he is abroad as an official in Germany! . . . The Metopera's new boss, Mr. Bing, who is now dickering with Elizabeth Schwarzkopf for next season. This Vienna soprano was a notorious Nazi favorite. . . . The Met basso, Paul Schoeffler, once signed a petition asking Hitler to fire Fritz Busch, anti-Hitler conductor of the Dresden Opera House. Busch (unlike Gieseking, Furtwaengler, et al) refused to "aryanize" his music and came here. . . . Guess who will never win a Peabody Award on the air? Among the judges is Bennett Cerf. . . . The attack on a newspaperman by "unknown" assailants, which reminds the wags of critic Woollcott—of whom it was quipped: "If that guy's ever found murdered—half the population of N. Y. will be held under suspion!"

IN MOVIELAND

HOLLYWOOD, May 20.—(AP)—Why are middle-aged citizens cavorting about the nation's dance floors in a revival of the loose-kneed dance craze, the Charleston?

And why are their sons and daughters joining in with equal fervor?

For an academic answer to these questions I asked Dr. Floyd Ruch, professor of psychology at the University of Southern California. Dr. Ruch is the author of "Psychology and Life", which is used as a text in 700 colleges.

It might be explained that the Charleston began to stage a comeback at various university campuses two or three years ago. The collegiate influence has spread and now dance schools all over the country have the ballroom fad of the '20s in their curricula.

The Monday night Charleston session at the Mocambo has been the biggest social event in Hollywood and how the club is offering the dance throughout the week.

"There are two elements," explained Dr. Ruch. "First of all, there are the people of my generation—those about 45. Contrary to what Dr. Pitkin said ("Life Begins at 40"), we yearn for the good old days.

"The best part of our lives seem to have been in the early 1920's when we were in our early twenties. That was when we were first achieving our independence and that's when we were doing the Charleston.

Rip would probably scratch his head and say, "I've never been away."

OUR CHILDREN

A BIT OF BEAUTY

Beauty is a tonic that lifts body and mind. We cannot have too much of it in our lives and children need it even more than grownups do. Beauty attracts and ugliness repels. When we want to attract children to what they should be and do we will succeed sooner, in better spirit, if we make the surroundings as beautiful as is in our power.

A pretty cereal bowl and pitcher will tempt a child to eat his morning cereal and drink his milk. A messy table, nondescript dishes, will repel the child and take away his appetite. He will not eat as he ought, nor with the relish he should have to promote his digestion.

Boys and girls want nice looking clothes. They want beauty in the simple styles they wear and that is certainly not too difficult to obtain when one considers the lovely things that are made for children today. Color, line and style mean a lot to children. When they feel in harmony with their things they live harmoniously, in better attitude toward their lessons, their chores and their families. Having to wear ugly things, or what they think are ugly, distresses them, makes them resentful, and that makes them feel uncooperative, irritable and abused.

The arrangement of the rooms in which they are to work and play and live actively have a powerful influence on their thinking and behavior. Untidy, messy rooms, ugly wallpaper, drab paint, the hard-used and never-brightened furniture of the neglected house, will send the children to look elsewhere for comfort and peace. The schoolroom that is dirty, with desks cut and battered, walls grimy, paint in scales, windows streaked and dimmed, will never attract, never hold children.

There is no need of costly equipment, costly belongings. So many of the needed elements in this craving for beauty in a child's life are within reach of most of us. We just don't think much about it. We are busy earning a living. "I have to attend to much more important things than the color of her hair ribbon. She's lucky to get any with all I have to do."

What is there more important than the happiness of a child? A happy child is a good child and isn't that very important? The same time that bought a green ribbon would have bought a blue one that suited the child because her eyes are blue. Isn't that important? The green ribbon brought tears, no appetite for dinner, misery. The blue one would have brought smiles, dimples, shining eyes, and a whale of an appetite. Are these things important too?

A bit of beauty is tonic to the soul, anybody's soul. Put as much of it into daily living as possible and it will more than pay its way.

Even a little baby enjoys being well dressed. Dr. Patri explains the ideal dress for children in his instructive leaflet P-19, "Clothing the Baby."

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

THE SCHUMAN PLAN

In continuing discussion of French Foreign Minister Schuman's proposal for integration of French and German coal and steel industries, majority editorial opinion is optimistic that the idea offers practical hope for a beginning of western European economic integration. But a rather large minority of editors fear that continental and British political and economic attitudes will block the Schuman plan. And a smaller minority fears that the proposed international control authority would be, in effect, an undesirable cartel.

Atlanta (Ga.) Journal (Dem.): "The French government . . . proposes that the coal and steel production of France and Germany 'be placed under a joint high authority . . . open to other European countries.' . . . This authority would modernize the two basic industries . . . and supply their products 'on equal terms to the markets . . . of the member countries, and develop joint exports to other countries.' . . . The Franco-German partnership would be the natural nucleus for a far wider association within which artificial trade barriers would be broken down. . . ."

Baltimore (Md.) Evening Sun (Ind.-Dem.): "It is difficult to see how some of the less desirable features of international cartels could be avoided. How . . . is the 'free competition' promised by the French to be achieved in the face of efforts to equalize the price of coal and steel? How is the privately owned French steel and the German steel and coal industry to be integrated with the nationalized French coal and British coal groups? And . . . how will such a mammoth grouping affect economic relations with a non-participating American industry?"

New York Herald Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "The Schuman plan goes beyond the limitation of production and price-fixing . . . of cartels. It foresees a truly international control, including elimination of tariffs on coal and steel within the countries affected. . . . The mixed nature of the ownership of the properties involved presents perplexities. . . . The United States will have to make its own evaluation of the economic effects. . . . Nevertheless . . . it will be to the advantage of the whole western world if the possibilities of the plan are realized."

Wall Street Journal (Ind.): "While the proposal seems to promise the badly needed cooperation between France and Germany and a greater freedom of trade across European boundaries, the actual prospect is that it would create a super - government cartel. . . . Price, production and delivery would be determined not by the market place but by the wishes of the politically appointed members of this cartel board."

New York Times (Ind.-Dem): "The danger . . . that the plan may be diverted into a new kind of cartel arrangement . . . is small because the plan would be operated . . . by a public international authority reporting to the United Nations. If that danger can be avoided, the new plan is bound not only to command American moral and financial support but also to exert a powerful attraction on nations now being exploited by the Soviets behind the Iron Curtain."

Oakland (Calif.) Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "The United States is in favor of any scheme that will promote rehabilitation and economic stability. . . . Britain, of course, will be reluctant to approve a combination that might raise competitive obstacles to her need for continental business, and steel is a big British product. . . . German independents say the idea originated in Germany and, although the Socialists have expressed their opposition, the Bonn government probably will go along with the plan."

Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot (Ind. - Dem.): "Chief obstacles come from the sponsor of the plan. France has reason to fear the competition of German industry. The Communist party, which commands a large bloc of votes in the French assembly, is not likely to approve. Enthusiasm is not expected to be shown by the . . . De-Gaullists. These factors suggest that Mr. Acheson knew about the plan in advance; and that passing the honor of sponsorship to the French was to supply the prestige which the French government will need to sell the idea to Frenchmen."

Wilmington (Del.) Morning News (Ind.): "If France and Germany can unite their heavy industry under international control, a long step toward European union will have been taken. And a solution will be in sight to a problem that seemed all but insoluble—how to make German industrial power without which Europe must remain on a subsistence level, contribute to the welfare of the continent without menacing the peace of the continent."

Looking Ahead—

In Washington

(By World Staff of Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Tennessee's 46 year old Senator Estes Kefauver is treading the same path that led Harry S. Truman to the office of vice-president.

Frequently mentioned around here as vice-presidential timber, the Tennessee Democrat has taken on the role of "gang-buster" on a national scale. He heads the special senate committee investigating bigtime gambling and crime.

If the investigation is a success, his political kite will soar.

President Truman, as a senator, was chairman of the senate war frauds investigating committee. He won nation-wide prominence and became Franklin D. Roosevelt's running mate in 1944.

Kefauver is carefully trying to conduct his investigation along the same lines that Mr. Truman followed. He has even assembled some of the staff that worked for the Truman committee.

Tariff Battle?

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Don't be astonished if a good old-fashioned tariff fight breaks out in the senate.

It's sure fire if the International Trade Organization charter ever reaches th esenate floor for ratification. It's still about a 50-50 bet it doesn't.

Republicans, noting that unemployment is mounting, see a good campaign issue: American workers going on relief while the administration asks for increased imports in an attempt to improve economic conditions in Europe.

Even some Democrats are jittery over complaints pouring in from hatters, miners, glove-makers and others about foreign goods.

Europe's Steel

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The French proposal to pool western European steel production is getting prime attention among military men here.

Annual production of western Europe is estimated at 42,000,000 tons. Current guess in U. S. military circles is that Russia might turn out about 19,000,000 tons.

Russia's requirements are heavy. It has to maintain over 57,000 miles of railroad track in European and Asiatic Russia and is reported tatempting to build more.

About 225 tons of steel goes into one mile of track.

Russia also is understood to be building thousands of tanks and guns. A medium tank requires over 43 tons of steel, a heavy gun over 12 tons.

Rail Union Puzzler

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The railroad brotherhoods didn't plan it this way, but—

The bill to allow them to make union shop agreements with railroads may run into serious trouble from fellow unionists.

The objectors are in favor of the union shop principle too—but they are Negroes, barred outright from the big rail unions or restricted to auxiliary units without much voice.

They want the union shop limited to organizations with no discrimination.

Hearings

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D.-Utah) wants a more formal pattern for congressional hearings. He's working on a resolution to set up procedure. Chairman of the senate labor and public welfare committee, Thomas was one of the authors of the congressional reorganization act.

HOLLYWOOD, May 20—I hear that Edward Arnold and Radio Writer Jean Holloway, infuriated by rumors they're romancing, have hired detectives to trace the reports. . . . Gloria Grahame and Director Nicolas Ray have failed in their reconciliation try; she'll file for divorce. . . . Maurice Chevalier is dickering with a major studio which wants to screen his life story, a la the Jolson pictures. . . . The Glen Langans are separated again and she's telling pals she'll sue for divorce this time. . . . Warner Brothers, which has a predilection for gangster pictures, will do one on Detroit's notorious Purple Gang. . . . Add success stories: The Columbia Recording Company's report that Gene Autry's discs, during the past 20 years, have sold a total of 25,000,000 copies. . . . Max Baer and Maxie Rosenbloom are teaming again for a series of TV shorts.

Understand the Chinese national government has filmed a documentary intended to certify the good character of Chiang Kai Shek, and will seek to release it in American theatres. . . . Chilled: Mae West and Pianist Dave Lapin, who recently admitted plans for an altartrek. . . . M-G-M bosses, having finally noticed Jane Powell's curves as well as her voice, plan to star her in Betty Grable type musicals.

Preview Nights: Pic of the week: M-G-M's "Father of the Bride" (Spencer Tracy-Joan Bennett - Elizabeth Taylor - Billie Burke). A warmly human comedy that will win big cheers from all audiences. . . . Good: Columbia's "Fortunes of Captain Blood" (Louis Hayward - Patricia Medina - George MacReady). Swashbuckling melodrama, based on Raphael Sabatini's classic tale of piracy on the Spanish Main. . . . Columbia's "Her Wonderful Lie" (Marta Eggerth - Jan Kiepura-Janis Carter). Filmopera, with arias from "La Boheme" and "Martha" beautifully sung by Miss Eggerth and Kiepura: A gilt-edged entry for discriminating music lovers. . . . So-So: Eagle-Lion's "The Torch" (Paulette Goddard - Pedro Armendariz - Gilbert Roland). A made-in-Mexico comedy drama, well played by its capable cast, but marred by an antiquated plot. . . . M-G-M's "The Skipper Surprised His Wife" (Robert Walker-Joan Leslie-Edward Arnold). A good idea that failed to live up to expectations. . . . Best Performance: Pedro Armendariz in "The Torch."

M-G-M, after suspending John Hodiak for refusing to play an assigned role, then contemplated suing him for monetary loss allegedly caused by his last minute revolt. I've always felt that studio imployees, including stars, should do what they're told to do, so long as the orders do not violate their contractural rights, but it does strike me that the Hodiak case contains more than a little irony. M-G-M seemed a bit late in picking on him, when I remember the tremendous losses this same studio incurred because of the insurrections of other stars. For every dollar's worth of loss occasioned by Hodiak who, until this one balk, had always been a remarkably cooperative actor, Judy Garland's sulks, for instance, must have cost Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer a fortune.

Betty Grable is making no secret of her annoyance at the advertising for her new picture, "Wabash Avenue." Said she: "The ads make me look like a 'kooch' dancer. I want it known that I've never done a naughty dance in my life." That's good talk—but maybe Betty should take another look at "Wabash Avenue" before protesting too loudly. I saw the picture, and I would certainly describe at least one of her dances as a "kooch" dance.

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

PRETTY IS AS PRETTY DOES

Last summer a famous actress invited a group of friends to an elaborate dinner party at her Long Island home. With the exception of her lawyer, no one showed up, and at 10 o'clock that night she suffered a heart attack and died.

The obituary notices made no mention of the party which no one attended for the very good reason that the lawyer kept mum about it. But last night he told me the whole story and gave me permission to use it, provided I didn't identify the actress by name.

Harriet Reeves—to give her a name several syllables removed from her own—was an orphan who had come up the hard way and acquired a lot of hard ways en route, such as stealing scenes and marches on other actors, walking all over the walk-ons, and in general making life unbearable for everyone from porter to producer.

Even more than her tantrums, however, the thing that embittered everyone around her was her blithe way of making promises and her blither way of breaking them. Her stock excuse was that she was forgetful, but as a columnist of the period pointed out, she never forgot to ask for an unreasonable percentage of the plays she appeared in, or to make sure that no other name was featured with hers on a marquee.

As her slights and oversights continued to pile up, people assumed they were due to deliberate meanness—and for the first few years they were. Then a curious thing happened—her forgetfulness, at first convenient, became chronic, and the actress became so much a victim of her own mental untidiness that she couldn't even remember the things she wanted to.

In her middle 50's her heart began to do nip-ups, and under doctors' orders she retired. She had plenty of money and so life was comfortable enough, but by this time everyone in the theater hated her with a hatred which didn't even bother to be cordial and so life was lonely enough, too.

A year ago last April her birthday came and went without so much as a friendly flower or phone call, and that night, brooding about it, she had a heart attack. The physician who examined her told her bluntly that her chances of living out the year were none too good and advised her to stay in bed as much as possible.

Harriet faced up to the news like a trouper and for a couple of weeks followed the doctor's instructions, but the prospect of dying in complete isolation finally got her, and so one day she sent for her attorney.

"I want to give a big party next Saturday night," she said, "and I'd appreciate it if you'd arrange for the catering and music."

"What's the occasion?" asked the lawyer.

"Nothing in particular," said Harriett. "It gets kind of lonesome out here and I'd like to see some of my old friends."

That night the old actress wrote out invitations to dozens of theater people with whom she had worked, figuring that if she could get them all together she'd apologize for her thoughtlessness in the past and ask their forgiveness.

At 8 o'clock on Saturday when the musicians arrived, the downstairs rooms were decorated with theater posters of her past hits, and Harriet, in a sweeping black lace gown, was in the hallway with her lawyer, waiting for the first guest to arrive.

At 10 o'clock she told the servants and musicians to help themselves to the food and drinks and, assisted by the attorney, began to climb the stairs to her bedroom.

"I can hardly blame them for not coming," she said. "I used to break plenty of dates myself."

Halfway up, she grabbed for the bannister, and by the time her doctor arrived she was dead.

A few days later, when her lawyer made a routine check of the papers in her desk, he came across an ironic footnote to her lifetime of forgetfulness. It was the stack of invitations to the party which Harriet had stamped and addressed—but forgotten to mail.

YOU CAN'T ESCAPE INFLATION!

Most everybody in the United States who has any understanding of economics at all will agree that we have had a creeping inflation in this country for a number of years. It started when we entered upon deficit financing and when we went off the gold standard in the early 1930's. It has continued ever since—and gives every promise of continuing in the years ahead, because inflation is an insidious, seductive thing. It allows the politicians to promise many things they could not otherwise promise. And because the average individual has more dollars than formerly in his pocket, it lulls him into the feeling that he is therefore prosperous.

The result of this inflation, of course, has been to rob the thrifty of their savings, insofar as these savings were kept in the form of dollars in the bank and invested in government bonds or placed in life insurance or into any sort of fixed dollar-income investments. A person who bought a government bond in 1939 for $75 and cashed it out in 1949 for $100 was only able to buy with his $100 one-fourth less in goods and services than he could have bought in 1939 with his $75. And yet he was urged to buy this bond in 1939 as the world's safest investment—while at the same time everything his government was doing was deliberately aimed at causing continued inflation.

The result has also been to provide inadequate life insurance for the man who sought to protect his family in this manner twenty years ago, and who can now do nothing about it. The same thing holds good of retirement plans.

Students of economics—and history—also know that the path now being followed by the United States has always led to disaster the nations that have trod it. We even have current examples that we are ignoring. The French franc has lost 96 per cent of its purchasing power during the period in which that nation has indulged in deficit financing. Yet it seems to be a fixed trait of nations as well as individuals to learn only from experience and not from precept or example.

What is even more difficult to understand, however, than the fact that many people do not realize we are having inflation is the fact that otherwise smart people who do know we are having inflation still believe they can escape its consequences. They had just as well face the facts—and realize that it cannot be done. For where would the safety lie?

It cannot lie in government bonds. We have already seen what has happened to the purchasing power of dollars received from this source. Moreover, the holder of a bond should realize that whenever he cashes this bond, the government must sell one and one-third new bonds to take its place—and the security back of it thereby becomes thinner and thinner.

It cannot lie in life insurance. The government already rather effectively controls the investment of life insurance company funds. Thirty per cent of life insurance funds are invested directly in government securities. In fact, we are told that five-eighths of their total assets are either invested directly in governmental debt or fall under governmental direction.

It cannot lie in bank deposits. At the end of 1949, $97.5 billion of U. S. government obligations were included in the total bank deposits of $148 billion. This is the way bankers now invest their depositors' funds! It might be noted that whenever governmental spending for the so-called "general welfare" causes a rise of only one per cent in the cost of living, it represents a loss in purchasing power of bank deposits amounting to $1.5 billion.

These are the time-honored safeguards of the thrifty person. The smart person, though, says to himself, "I will invest in farm lands and stocks and real property". Safety cannot lie there, either,—not permanently, at least,—and if he would think about it just a minute, he would know it cannot. Because what the government cannot control directly, it can control through taxation!

THESE DAYS

SCIENCE DELIRIOUS

An Associated Press dispatch recorded that Professor S. W. Britton of the University of Virginia is concerned with a great problem, greater than the McCarthy-Tydings, Chavez-Budenz fights or even Harry Truman's whistle-stop trip across the country. It is the eternal problem of what to do with the unfortunate human race.

The learned professor would like our researchers to breed monkeys with the human beings to see what would happen. To be scientific, he wants to use apes for his purpose and to breed them by artificial insemination. This, it would seem to me, is science in its most delirious stage. Don't we have enough without that?

I must admit that the professor sees some of the troubles ahead. He fears that if the human race got hold of these half-and-half folks, they would use them as slaves. Apparently, he is certain that the ape-men would not use humans as slaves. The professor is opposed to slavery, but not to the debasement of human beings.

For instance, does he not realize that after a while, some politician would demand social security for the half-and-half folks and that Liberals would want to be married to them to prove their total lack of prejudice? And suppose the half-men decided to discriminate against the aboriginal whole humans. Horrible thought, but not very original.

I had never heard of Dr. S. W. Britton before, but he must be a big-shot in the scientific world because he made a report to the National Academy of Sciences, which is a professorial trade association where they exchange ideas, methods, etc. However, no one got terribly excited about it, particularly not the apes, who probably would go on a strike if forced to produce a half-human progeny. The apes may not like it at all. When the apes look at some of those who govern us, they undoubtedly recall Alexander Woollcott's remark about the most interesting place in Washington being its zoo.

Science for science's sake is very much like art for art's sake or politics for politic's sake—it can move from confusion to confusion without purpose. It is trial and error, hit or miss, without thought of consequences. Admittedly, the benefits of scientific research have been great and valuable, but if the ultimate of this activity is the destruction of the human race, either by a bomb that would throw the crust of the earth into its atmosphere or the denaturing of man into a lower order of ape by intermarriage and assimilation—then science needs restraint by morality. There is the basic problem of our age: The restoration of moral criteria.

And that essentially is why our scientists are beginning to be so frightened by their own products. They know that their greater work today—the transmutation of matter—produces destruction. While, on the one hand, human life is being prolonged through scientific research, the same process is producing a method for the total annihilation of the human race, and for that matter, of everything.

Fortunately, no one has yet produced a hydrogen bomb, but on paper it seems possible, and both the United States and Soviet Russia are engaged in a race to manufacture it. What such a bomb could do to the human race is as yet only within the realm of the imagination, and whichever nation first succeeds in producing it will reduce all others to its will, no matter how savage.

Maps have been produced to show the range of destruction, but those maps only deal with the earth. What could be the effect of such an explosion on the universe? What would happen to climate if even an atom bomb, to say nothing of a hydrogen bomb, were exploded on the polar cap. Would we loose the ice of the Arctic so that icebergs and glaciers moved southward, turning our world into a new ice-age? Would we be flooded by the immense downflow of water from the Arctic area, as the increase of the iceflow met the warmer areas too soon?

There is a balance in nature which man challenges at his peril. This balance is being challenged every day by those who, denying divine intelligence, never question their own.

Charles B. Driscoll:

New York Day By Day

JOPLIN, Mo.—Word comes from home of the sudden passing of one of the best friends I have ever had, Frank Nolan, of Detroit. He was a find and talented gentleman, a great lawyer, good businessman, devoted friend. He was interested in transcontinental bus transportation, and was in conference with his board of directors when he collapsed suddenly, and was unconscious until the end, a few hours later. Overwork, no doubt, was a factor. He was in the early forties, vigorous, and always in the best of health.

Frank called me from Detroit only a few days ago, talked for a half hour, seemed in fine spirits, and reported that his business interests were looking up and that he would see me in New York within a few weeks.

He was for a long time personal attorney for the late Henry Ford, and his legal activities ranged from police court practice, in his youth, to practice before the highest tribunals of the nation. But his success never made him stuffy or pretentious.

Frank gave away about a thousand copies of my books. He made recordings of his own readings of several chapters and passages of two of the books.

Well, he is gone and I am lonesome.

We had luncheon at the Twin Hills Golf and Country club, and I was happy that my friends, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Stanley, had invited Mr. and Mrs. Howard Marshall, parents of my long - time neighbor, Helen Marshall Woodward. Delightful people. Mrs. Marshall is organist in a local church.

Friend George W. Earp was at the table also, as were Mr. Cowgill Blair, publisher, and Mr. Philip R. Coldren, editor, of the Globe.

The food was good; the conversation better.

There was a very private party at the home of the Mark Ettingers. Mr. Ettinger, a handsome gentleman, is head of a big store, at which I had been autographing books during the afternoon. Naomi Stanley sang, and she can sing like a nightingale, than which there is no better singer.

I spoke to a large audience at the Rotary club, and I don't know how popular my remarks may have been. On impulse, I told the customers the bad news that we are about to go to war with Russia. Some years ago I did the same kind of thing in Kansas City, at the Community Church, for Dr. Burris Jenkins, and the audience was somewhat shocked. We were in war (second to End Wars) within six months, however.

Mr. Fred Hughes was one of the interesting persons I met at this luncheon. After the luncheon I talked for 40 minutes with an inspiring group of college and prep school editors. I realize that some among them will be the editors of important publications within a few years.

It was a privilege to visit the home of Stewart Stanley's mother, Mrs. Susan Stanley, a lovely lady of middle years. Also his sister, Georgetta Patterson, and her husband, Pat.

This Joplin job has been strenuous. I'll be needing a week's sleep when I get home.

QUITMAN

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Nash were guests of the daughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McQueen of Alexandria Sunday. They were joined there by their other daughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilkerson and daughter Toni of Beaumont, Tex.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dodd of Natchez, Miss., visited Mrs. Dodd's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. McCrary, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Pullen of Dodson and Miss Mary Nell Pullen of New Orleans, La., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. McCaray Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Pace of Hodge were week-end guests of Mrs. Pace' sister and her family, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Smith and daughter Colleen of Sterlington.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Black and daughter Barbara Kay are spending several days with Mrs. Black's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Jimerson, of Quitman before continuing on their way to their new location. Mr. and Mrs. Black have been residing for the past year in Natchez, Miss., where Mr. Black has been doing electrical work with the newly completed rayon plant there.

Mr. and Mrs. Arch Gresham of Quitman were among friends visiting Mr. Willis Harvey who underwent a major operation in a local Shreveport hospital Saturday. Mr. Harvey's condition is still critical but latest reports are that he is resting.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Blalock and Mr. and Mrs. Taft McConathy of Quitman are getting settled in their new homes. Mr. and Mrs. Blalock and Mr. and Mrs. McConathy exchanged homes in and near Quitman recently and completed their moving Saturday.

Miss Boots Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Anderson of Quitman was able to attend her classes at the Quitman High School Tuesday following an appendectomy at the Robins Clinic recently. Boots is a member of the graduating class of the Quitman High School and her many friends are happy that she is rapidly recovering.

Mr. L. E. Black was a business visitor in Monroe Saturday morning.

Friends of Mrs. Willie Sizemore who has been a patient in the Wright-Benden Clinic for several weeks will be happy to know she has sufficiently recovered to be allowed to return to her home on 3310 Gordon St. in Monroe.

President Truman believes there are votes of gold in the Brannan plan hills so far as 1950 and 1952 elections are concerned. It is ironical, however, that virtually no Democratic incumbents running for re-election in either the senate or the house take the same positive stand that Mr. Truman does on this issue.

Thus, there is the unbelievable spectacle of the president trying to help elect Democrats to congress with a farm program that few, if any, of the candidates themselves dare to espouse.

By 1952, sentiment for the Brannan plan may well be overwhelming. The political party of "fair prices for the farmers and lower prices for the consumers" would seem to be a potential powerful vote getter. But, so far as most members of the congress are concerned, the groundswell for the Brannan program has not yet set in. Anything else but. In the circle of practicing politicians on Capitol Hill these days it is commonly believed that open support of the Brannan plan would be the same as campaign suicide.

Not so long ago at the White House, Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D.-N. C.) of the house agriculture committee warned Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan in the presence of President Truman and others that it is politically dangerous for a legislator to run on a pro-Brannan plan program this year.

Cooley pointed out that, so far as he knew, not a single member of the house agriculture committee was running for re-election on a pro-Brannan Plan plank.

"Out in Illinois," said Cooley, "Senator Scott Lucas, youd majority leader in the seante, is running for re-election, but he has not come out in favor of the Brannan plan. Why? Because he knows that if he does his opponent, Everett Dirksen, probably would beat him."

"And down in my own state of North Carolina, Senator Frank P. Graham—who has been and is a supporter of the administration on most issues—definitely is not in favor of the Brannan plan. Like myself, he believes that the present program in general, is working out pretty well. But, it is plain that if Graham did come out for the Brannan plan, it likely would be enough to assure his defeat. For the farmers of North Carolina are definitely against it.

"And it's about the same way in just about every state that I know of. Right now, at least, for a member of congress to back the Brannan plan is to court the labor vote at the risk of losing the farm vote."

When a number of leaders of the Democratic party in both the senate and house agreed with Cooley's main argument, Brannan apparently was willing to at least soft pedal criticism of those who were against his plan in this year's campaign.

Report has it that Brannan wrote a proposed farm program speech for the president's use in which he went light in assailing those who are not supporting the Brannan plan, but that Mr. Truman's White House advisors rejected the suggestion in favor of continued flailing way a topponents of the program.

Perhaps the idea is that Mr. Truman will win labor and consumer votes for Democratic candidates for congress by plumping for the Brannan plan. Then, the Democratic candidates themselves can go after the farm vote by endorsing the present farm program. At any rate, just now Mr. Truman is playing one side of the fence—the Brannan Plan side. And most Democratic candidates are on the other side.

If Representative William T. Granahan (D.-Pa.) has his way Father's Day will soon be raised to the same status as Mother's Day. He has just introduced a resolution which would call upon the president to proclaim the third Sunday in June each year officially Father's Day the same official status, accompanied by presidential proclamation.

Granaham would ask that the flag be displayed on this day "as a public expression of our love and reverence for the fathers of our country."

Amusing thing about the resolution is that Granaham although married, is not a father. But as previously reported Rep. Tom Steed (Dem.-kla.) has introduced a resolution calling for observance of a national Daughter's Day. Steed has no daughters.

CAPTAIN DUNLAP TO VISIT HERE

Procurement Officer To Urge Need For Army Nursing Section

As part of an intensive campaign in the Fourth Army Area to procure nurses for the Army Nurse Section of the Organized Reserve Corps, Capt. Lillian Dunlap, Procurement Officer from the Surgeon's Office, Headquarters Fourth Army, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, will visit in Monroe on May 25.

While in the city Capt. Dunlap will contact students nurses at local hospitals.

The Army is seeking to build its nurse Reserve strength to 29000 but it is sill far short of this goal Commander of the Monroe U. S. Army & U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station stated.

Graduate registered nurses between the ages of 21 and 45 are eligible to apply for appointment in the Army Nurse Section of the Organized Reserve Corps. Senior nurse students may apply for Reserve commissions within three months of graduation and six months of their twenty-first birthday. They will be appointed providing they meet other requirements after they have reached the age of 21 and have been registered as graduate nurses.

"The nurse who holds a Reserve commission holds an enviable position in the civilian community" Sgt. Holloway said. "So long as she keeps her commission active which she can do by attending local meetings of a Reserve unit, completing extension courses, applying for short training periods, etc., she is working toward a retirement that is in addition to any annuity or savings which she may have. After 20 years of participation in the Reserve program, she may discontinue such active participation and still be eligible for retirement benefits upon reaching the age of 60 years."

Participating in the "active" Reserve, he pointed out, does not interfere with a nurse's civilian activities but does help to keep her informed of important professional developments. At no time are commitments expected of a Reserve nurse except those for which she volunteers, except in the case of a natoinal emergency.

Reserve commissions are granted for a period of five years. Appointments to the Regular Nurse Corps are made only from members of the army nurse section of the Organized Reserve Corps. Sgt. Holloway stated that further details of Capt. Dunlop's visit are available at the Army Air Force Recruiting Station, Room 217, Post Office Bldg., or by phoning 5354.

FERRIDAY

The St. Patrick's Altar Society met on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Lucille Clayton. The meeting was opened by a prayer by Father Robert Ryer. Two new officers were elected: Mrs. Zulma Wallace, president, and Mrs. Minnie Bianco, secretary. After the business discussion the hostess served a delightful salad course.

Colorful Parade Gives Impetus To Bond Issue

The most colorful school parade staged in Monroe for many months was that held Friday afternoon staged to stress the importance of the carrying of the $2,500,000 bond issue at the polls here on Tuesday.

All city school students were participants and in gala attire, led by the 100 piece Neville High School band, the route that started with formation at the Central Grammar School campus led down South Grand to DeSiard and thence east to Ninth street. Three hundred automobiles with gay colored streamers and with a total of 1,000 or more students in cars on floats and marching, made up the procession.

Specially noticeable were the Tigerettes pep squad which performed many fancy steps to the delight of applauders lining the sidewalks.

When the band reached DeSiard and North Third street it halted in the last named thoroughfare and played for the passage of the entire parade, which was so long that it required fully 30 minutes to pass.

The floats were skillfully and artistically decorated. One in particular was the wedding of Tom Thumb which staged "Mr. Bond Issue" being wedded to "Miss Public" as a "preacher" with Bible in hand performed the ceremony.

Colored movies were made of the parade and will be on exhibition later, it is stated.

Many signs were displayed on cars and floats such as "We Want Modern School," "Don't Crowd Us Up." "Let's Get Modern," etc.

A half-holiday contributed to the pleasure of the youngsters who enjoyed taking a Friday afternoon off from their studies.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

PRETTY IS AS PRETTY DOES

Last summer a famous actress invited a group of friends to an elaborate dinner party at her Long Island home. With the exception of her lawyer, no one showed up, and at 10 o'clock that night she suffered a heart attack and died.

The obituary notices made no mention of the party which no one attended for the very good reason that the lawyer kept mum about it. But last night he told me the whole story and gave me permission to use it, provided I didn't identify the actress by name.

Harriet Reeves—to give her a name several syllables removed from her own—was an orphan who had come up the hard way and acquired a lot of hard ways en route, such s stealing scenes and marches on other actors, walking all over the walk-ons, and in general making life unbearable for everyone from porter to producer.

Even more than her tantrums, however, the thing that embittered everyone around her was her blithe way of making promises and her blither way of breaking them. Her stock excuse was that she was forgetful, but as a columnist of the period pointed out, she never forgot to ask for an unreasonable percentage of the plays she appeared in, or to make sure that no other name was featured with hers on a marquee.

As her slights and oversights continued to pile up, people assumed they were due to deliberate meanness—and for the first few years they were. Then a curious thing happened—her forgetfulness, at first convenient, became chronic, and the actress became so much a victim of her own mental untidiness that she couldn't even remember the things she wanted to.

In her middle 50's her heart began to do nip-ups, and under doctors' orders she retired. She had plenty of money and so life was comfortable enough, but by this time everyone in the theater hated her with a hatred which didn't even bother to be cordial and so life was lonely enough, too.

A year ago last April her birthday came and went without so much as a friendly flower or phone call, and that night, brooding about it, she had a heart attack. The physician who examined her told her bluntly that her chances of living out the year were none too good and advised her to stay in bed as much as possible.

Harriet faced up to the news like a trouper and for a couple of weeks followed the doctor's instructions, but the prospect of dying in complete isolation finally got her, and so one day she sent for her attorney.

"I want to give a big party next Saturday night," she said, "and I'd appreciate it if you'd arrange for the catering and music."

"What's the occasion?" asked the lawyer.

"Nothing in particular," said Harriett. "It gets kind of lonesome out here and I'd like to see some of my old friends."

That night the old actress wrote out invitatior to dozens of theater people with whom she had worked, figuring that if she could get them all together she'd apologize for her thoughtlessness in the past and ask their forgiveness.

At 8 o'clock on Saturday when the musicians arrived, the downstairs rooms were decorated with theater posters of her past hits, and Harriet, in a sweeping black lace gown, was in the hallway with her lawyer, waiting for the first guest to arrive.

At 10 o'clock she told the servants and musicians to help themselves to the food and drinks and, assisted by the attorney, began to climb the stairs to her bedroom.

"I can hardly blame them for not coming," she said. "I used to break plenty of dates myself."

Halfway up, she grabbed for the bannister, and by the time her doctor arrived she was dead.

A few days later, when her lawyer made a routine check of the papers in her desk, he came across an ironic footnote to her lifetime of forgetfulness. It was the stack of invitations to the party which Harriet had stamped and addressed—but forgotten to mail.

YOU CAN'T ESCAPE INFLATION!

Most everybody in the United States who has any understanding of economics at all will agree that we have had a creeping inflation in this country for a number of years. It started when we entered upon deficit financing and when we went off the gold standard in the early 1930's. It has continued ever since—and gives every promise of continuing in the years ahead, because inflation is an insidious, seductive thing. It allows the politicians to promise many things they could not otherwise promise. And because the average individual has more dollars than formerly in his pocket, it lulls him into the feeling that he is therefore prosperous.

The result of this inflation, of course, has been to rob the thrifty of their savings, insofar as these savings were kept in the form of dollars in the bank and invested in government bonds or placed in life insurance or into any sort of fixed dollar-income investments. A person who bought a government bond in 1939 for $75 and cashed it out in 1949 for $100 was only able to buy with his $100 one-fourth less in goods and services than he could have bought in 1939 with his $75. And yet he was urged to buy this bond in 1939 as the world's safest investment—while at the same time everything his government was doing was deliberately aimed at causing continued inflation.

The result has also been to provide inadequate life insurance for the man who sought to protect his family in this manner twenty years ago, and who can now do nothing about it. The same thing holds good of retirement plans.

Students of economics—and history—also know that the path now being followed by the United States has always led to disaster the nations that have trod it. We even have current examples that we are ignoring. The French franc has lost 96 per cent of its purchasing power during the period in which that nation has indulged in deficit financing. Yet it seems to be a fixed trait of nations as well as individuals to learn only from experience and not from precept or example.

What is even more difficult to understand, however, than the fact that many people do not realize we are having inflation is the fact that otherwise smart people who do know we are having inflation still believe they can escape its consequences. They had just as well face the facts—and realize that it cannot be done. For where would the safety lie?

It cannot lie in government bonds. We have already seen what has happened to the purchasing power of dollars received from this source. Moreover, the holder of a bond should realize that whenever he cashes this bond, the government must sell one and one-third new bonds to take its place—and the security back of it thereby becomes thinner and thinner.

It cannot lie in life insurance. The government already rather effectively controls the investment of life insurance company funds. Thirty per cent of life insurance funds are invested directly in government securities. In fact, we are told that five-eighths of their total assets are either invested directly in governmental debt or fall under governmental direction.

It cannot lie in bank deposits. At the end of 1949, $97.5 billion of U. S. government obligations were included in the total bank deposits of $148 billion. This is the way bankers now invest their depositors' funds! It might be noted that whenever governmental spending for the so-called "general welfare" causes a rise of only one per cent in the cost of living, it represents a loss in purchasing power of bank deposits amounting to $1.5 billion.

These are the time-honored safeguards of the thrifty person. The smart person, though, says to himself, "I will invest in farm lands and stocks and real property". Safety cannot lie there, either,—not permanently, at least,—and if he would think about it just a minute, he would know it cannot. Because what the government cannot control directly, it can control through taxation!

THESE DAYS

SCIENCE DELIRIOUS

An Associated Press dispatch recorded that Professor S. W. Britton of the University of Virginia is concerned with a great problem, greater than the McCarthy-Tydings, Chavez-Budenz fights or even Harry Truman's whistle-stop trip across the country. It is the eternal problem of what to do with the unfortunate human race.

The learned professor would like our researchers to breed monkeys with the human beings to see what would happen. To be scientific, he wants to use apes for his purpose and to breed them by artificial insemination. This, it would seem to me, is science in its most delirious stage. Don't we have enough without that?

I must admit that the professor sees some of the troubles ahead. He fears that if the human race got hold of these half-and-half folks, they would use them as slaves. Apparently, he is certain that the ape-men would not use humans as slaves. The professor is opposed to slavery, but not to the debasement of human beings.

For instance, does he not realize that after a while, some politician would demand social security for the half-and-half folks and that Liberals would want to be married to them to prove their total lack of prejudice? And suppose the half-men decided to discriminate against the aboriginal whole humans. Horrible thought, but not very original.

I had never heard of Dr. S. W. Britton before, but he must be a big-shot in the scientific world because he made a report to the National Academy of Sciences, which is a professorial trade association where they exchange ideas, methods, etc. However, no one got terribly excited about it, particularly not the apes, who probably would go on a strike if forced to produce a half-human progeny. The apes may not like it at all. When the apes look at some of those who govern us, they undoubtedly recall Alexander Woollcott's remark about the most interesting place in Washington being its zoo.

Science for science's sake is very much like art for art's sake or politics for politic's sake—it can move from confusion to confusion without purpose. It is trial and error, hit or miss, without thought of consequences. Admittedly, the benefits of scientific research have been great and valuable, but if the ultimate of this activity is the destruction of the human race, either by a bomb that would throw the crust of the earth into its atmosphere or the denaturing of man into a lower order of ape by intermarriage and assimilation—then science needs restraint by morality. There is the basic problem of our age: The restoration of moral criteria.

And that essentially is why our scientists are beginning to be so frightened by their own products. They know that their greater work today—the transmutation of matter—produces destruction. While, on the one hand, human life is being prolonged through scientific research, the same process is producing a method for the total annihilation of the human race, and for that matter, of everything.

Fortunately, no one has yet produced a hydrogen bomb, but on paper it seems possible, and both the United States and Soviet Russia are engaged in a race to manufacture it. What such a bomb could do to the human race is as yet only within the realm of the imagination, and whichever nation first succeeds in producing it will reduce all others to its will, no matter how savage.

Maps have been produced to show the range of destruction, but those maps only deal with the earth. What could be the effect of such an explosion on the universe? What would happen to climate if even an atom bomb, to say nothing of a hydrogen bomb, were exploded on the polar cap. Would we loose he ice of the Arctic so that icebergs and glaciers moved southward, turning our world into a new ice-age? Would we be flooded by the immense downflow of water from the Arctic area, as the increase of the iceflow met the warmer areas too soon?

There is a balance in nature which man challenges at his peril. This balance is being challenged every day by those who, denying divine intelligence, never question their own.

Charles B. Driscoll:

New York Day By Day

JOPLIN, Mo.—Word comes from home of the sudden passing of one of the best friends I have ever had, Frank Nolan, of Detroit. He was a find and talented gentleman, a great lawyer, good businessman, devoted friend. He was interested in transcontinental bus transportation, and was in conference with his board of directors when he collapsed suddenly, and was unconscious until the end, a few hours later. Overwork, no doubt, was a factor. He was in the early forties, vigorous, and always in the best of health.

Frank called me from Detroit only a few days ago, talked for a half hour, seemed in fine spirits, and reported that his business interests were looking up and that he would see me in New York within a few weeks.

He was for a long time personal attorney for the late Henry Ford, and his legal activities ranged from police court practice, in his youth, to practice before the highest tribunals of the nation. But his success never made him stuffy or pretentious.

Frank gave away about a thousand copies of my books. He made recordings of his own readings of several chapters and passages of two of the books.

Well, he is gone and I am lonesome.

We had luncheon at the Twin Hills Golf and Country club, and I was happy that my friends, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Stanley, had invited Mr. and Mrs. Howard Marshall, parents of my long - time neighbor, Helen Marshall Woodward. Delightful people. Mrs. Marshall is organist in a local church.

Friend George W. Earp was at the table also, as were Mr. Cowgill Blair, publisher, and Mr. Philip R. Coldren, editor, of the Globe.

The food was good; the conversation better.

There was a very private party at the home of the Mark Ettingers. Mr. Ettinger, a handsome gentleman, is head of a big store, at which I had been autographing books during the afternoon. Naomi Stanley sang, and she can sing like a nightingale, than which there is no better singer.

I spoke to a large audience at the Rotary club, and I don't know how popular my remarks may have been. On impulse, I told the customers the bad news that we are about to go to war with Russia. Some years ago I did the same kind of thing in Kansas City, at the Community Church, for Dr. Burris Jenkins, and the audience was somewhat shocked. We were in war (second to End Wars) within six months, however.

Mr. Fred Hughes was one of the interesting persons I met at this luncheon. After the luncheon I talked for 40 minutes with an inspiring group of college and prep school editors. I realize that some among them will be the editors of important publications within a few years.

It was a privilege to visit the home of Stewart Stanley's mother, Mrs. Susan Stanley, a lovely lady of middle years. Also his sister, Georgetta Patterson, and her husband, Pat.

This Joplin job has been strenuous. I'll be needing a week's sleep when I get home.

Colorful Parade Gives Impetus To Bond Issue

The most colorful school parade staged in Monroe for many months was that held Friday afternoon staged to stress the importance of the carrying of the $2,500,000 bond issue at the polls here on Tuesday.

All city school students were participants and in gala attire, led by the 100 piece Neville High School band, the route that started with formation at the Central Grammar School campus led down South Grand to DeSiard and thence east to Ninth street. Three hundred automobiles with gay colored streamers and with a total of 1,000 or more students in cars on floats and marching, made up the procession.

Specially noticeable were the Tigerettes pep squad which performed many fancy steps to the delight of applauders lining the sidewalks.

When the band reached DeSiard and North Third street it halted in the last named thoroughfare and played for the passage of the entire parade, which was so long that it required fully 30 minutes to pass.

The floats were skillfully and artistically decorated. One in particular was the wedding of Tom Thumb which staged "Mr. Bond Issue" being wedded to "Miss Public" as a "preacher" with Bible in hand performed the ceremony.

Colored movies were made of the parade and will be on exhibition later, it is stated.

Many signs were displayed on cars and floats such as "We Want Modern School," "Don't Crowd Us Up." "Let's Get Modern," etc.

A half-holiday contributed to the pleasure of the youngsters who enjoyed taking a Friday afternoon off from their studies.

BENDER GREETED BY HIS FAMILY

Met At Airport By Large Throng After 19 Months Imprisonment

GLENVIEW, Ill., May 20.—(AP)—A trembling wife who never lost hope and a solemn - eyed little girl who scarcely remembered hurled themselves at a tall, thin marine as he alighted from a navy plane today.

Sgt. Elmer C. Bender, prisoner of the Chinese Communists since October, 1948, staggered and beamed under one of the pleasantest assault waves in marine corps history. Then the little family ducked inside the plane for a private reunion.

Mrs. Shirley Bender, 25, and four-year-old Kathy had been waiting at Glenview Naval Air Station for nearly two hours. So had his mother, his parents-in-law, and a mob of navy and marine corps personnel, newsmen and photographers.

When the big silver plane dipped out of the sun onto the airfield, Mrs. Bender clutched Kathy's hand tensely. The ramp was swung into position, the plane door swung open and out stepped Sgt. Bender. He didn't get a chance to speak—his wife rushed into his arms, Kathy just behind her. When the three emerged from the plane some five minutes later, the sergeant was wearing a crooked smear of lipstick and his wife's corsage was squashed flat.

Mrs. Bender hadn't heard a word from her husband since he and William C. Smith, 32, Long Beach, Calif., navy chief electrician's mate, were seized by Chinese Communists when their small observation plane was forced down near Tsingtao 19 months ago.

But she "never gave up hope," she said today. She spent the time working for her husband's release, contacting government officials, marine corps officers and the press for whatever help they could offer.

On May 3, Sgt. Bender and Chief Smith were released at Tsingtao. They traveled to Hong Kong on a British steamer, then were flown home by the navy. Smith was reunited with his wife and two children yesterday at Long Beach.

As for future plans, Sgt. Bender said "I'm definitely going to ship over" (re-enlist in the marines.) But first, there's to be a vacation —"I would like to be alone with my wife."

Mrs. Bender didn't care what the plans were; she was only brimming over with relief at not having to plan alone any more. Asked how she felt about her husband's decision to re-enlist, she smiled, "I don't know—I don't know anything about it. He's home, and that's enough."

"We are fighting the cold war against an enemy more cruel and merciless than Hitler was ever capable of being," Secretary Matthews said. "As yet, the contest is unbalanced against us."

Bender received an ovation from the approximately 500 luncheon guests. Then he headed a parade of 25,000 down Michigan Avenue in observation of Armed Forces day. Later today, he hoped, he'd get that chance "to be alone with my wife."

Political Careers Start In Constitutional Meeting

BATON ROUGE, La., May 20.—(AP)—Want to launch a Louisiana political career? Then get elected or appointed to the constitutional convention of 1951—if the legislature and voters decide to hold one.

The roster of the last constitutional convention, which met in 1921, reads almost like a who's who of Louisiana Political life in later decades.

Out of the ranks of 146 delegates came three governors—and the secretary of the conventionalso became a governor—a United States senator, a member of congress, a lieutenant governor and 15 judges of various state and federal courts.

Add to these the delegates who became members of the legislature, including speakers of the house and presidents pro-tempore of the senate, heads of state department, sheriffs, district attorneys, mayors, councilmen and recognized local political leaders, and nearly half the convention membership is accounted for.

The delegates who became governors were Sam H. Jones, then of Deridder, later of Lake Charles; Ruffin G. Pleasant of Shreveport and J. Y. Sanders of Bogalusa. In addition, O. H. Simpson of New Orleans, who headed the convention's staff as secretary, later reached the state's highest post.

The three future governors were members of the convention's committee on suffrage and elections. Seven future judges sat on the judiciary committee.

Allen J. Ellender, present United States senator, was a member of the convention. J. O. Fernandez, who went to congress from New Orleans, was another. Hewitt Bouanchaud of New Roads, later lieutenant governor, presided over the constitutional meeting.

Although the 1921 convention met only a few months after women had been guaranteed the right to vote by amendment to the United States Constitution, hree women sat among the constitution makers. Two were from Shreveport—Edith Brown Bailie, a newspaperwoman, and Mrs. J. D. Wilkinson, and one from New Orleans, Mrs. Ida Weis Friend.

Delegate John H. Meaux of Cameron parish achieved a special distinction. He was elected to the first legislature under the 921 constitution and has been returned to every legislature since then, including the present on. The only other members of the present legislature who served in the convention is Rep. Sigar Martin of St. James.

The rules adopted by the 1921 convention for its own proceedings became the basis of the rules of procedure of the state house of representatives, according to Lee Laycock, clerk of the house. Laycock, who has served on the house staff since 1922, has been studying the operation of the convention with a view to making recommendations for the projected 1951 gathering.

However, time has dulled the severity of some of the rules. In the 1921 convention, for example, no member was allowed under the rules to smoke; nor to read a newspaper during proceedings, nor to wear his hat. If a quorum failed to show up for a session, any 15 members might dispatch the sergeant-at-arms to "compel the attendance of absent members."

Curtain Call
by Sue Williams

Every day that brings "Candle-Light" nearer to its opening date of June 6th adds still another veteran worker to the production crew who will be responsible for the detail and set of the gay and sparkling comedy.

June Schultz, speech and drama instructor of O. P. H. S. has been named stage manager for the production. She has been our leading lady on several occasions, her latest appearance being in the leading role of "Her Husbands' Wife" and last season she was director of the comedy hit "Dear Ruth".

Dorothy Elmendorf, who has distinguished herself in properties management on five previous plays, is lending her capable assistance as props chairman for "Candle-Light". She will be assisted by Letha Gregory who graciously came to your humble correspondents rescue on "Voice of the Turtle" and on a last months notice took over the job of wardrobe mistress. Confidentally, we owe the lady a real debt of gratitude, especially after we found out that she had to press a khaki uniform for seven straight nights.

We ran into new board member Ed Ellison on Friday and he said "I'll be out at Little Theatre tonight to nail a board or two together". And by that we take it, Ed will be around to see that the prince's palace in "Candle-Light" is properly put together.

With a cast of eight such as Jim Reynolds, Mac Ward, Edith Grandy, Gilbert Faulk, Frances Hale, Sue Williams, Roy Holloway, and Jimmie Smith plus the moral support and ingenuity of such an impressive backstage crew, tell me how could "Candle-Light" miss being a sure fire hit.

RANDOM NOTES — Interesting newcomers soon to move to Monroe from Baton Rouge are Marion and Ed Glusman, who this week end are visiting Evelyn and Dan Moore while they look for a house or apartment here. Marion was Evelyn's only attendant when she and Dan were married last summer. Ed, who was once offered a Paramount screen test, played the part of the sultan in "Alladin's Lamp" in a production for the Baton Rouge Children's Theatre last year. A third member of the Glusman family is young son, Teddy. Both Marion and Ed are looking forward to renewing a number of college friendships in these parts. . . . Had a chat with our attractive Little Theatre member, Eleanor Dumm who is all engrossed in girl scouting these days and she tells us that the Girl Scouts are planning an extensive summer activities program. It includes opportunities for cooking under Mrs. Swift; swimming instruction by licensed Red Cross instructors; six days of day camping at Camp Ki Ro Li; star gazing, crafts, reading and other interesting activities. All those interested may call the Girl Scout office for further information. . . . Our pride of the Little Theatre and co-leading man for the forth coming production of "Candle-Light", Jim Reynolds, will pinch hit for Garland Shell as master of ceremonies for the Capitol Kiddie Show each Saturday until "Uncle" Garland gets back from being Capt. Garland Shell in special services for the U. S. army in the east. Jim wil be entertaining the kiddies for about eight Saturdays. . . . We've got our fingers crossed for Little Theatre member, Senator McKinley of "John Loves Mary" that West Monroe Lion Joe Preddy, whom, we have found out is waging what looks like a victorious battle for Lion district governor. We are pulling for his election at the state Lions convention in Shreveport on June 8, 9 and 10.

SOVIETS SHIFTING FISHING TRAWLERS

30 Such Vessels Make Appearance In English Channel Prior To Maneuvers

LONDON, May 20 —(AP)— More than 30 Russian fishing trawlers and coasters have put in an appearance in the English channel just a few days before the five Brussels pact powers start naval maneuvers in the Bay of Biscay.

Official quarters attached no special significance in connection with the naval maneuvers. Presumably the Russian fleet was on a voyage from the Baltic sea through the Mediterranean to the Black sea.

Tonight seventeen of the vessels were anchored at the north of the Helford river, near Falmouth at the southwest corner of England.

British customs men making a routine inspection of ships coming within territorial waters, boarded some of them and said they were received courteously. Russian skippers explained that most of the ships were newly built and were urgently needed by the Russian fishing industry in the Black sea.

In addition to the ships anchored off Falmouth others were moving through the channel from the east. They could be seen occasionally from the English shore, and others were spotted on the radar screens of ships plying the channel. Some were seen moving westward from St. Catherine's Point on the Isle of Wight.

The sudden appearance of the ships, which sailed in several groups, surprised British shippers and naval officers. There had been no notice of their coming.

At the admiralty it was said that there was nothing improper about the passage through the English channel. If the Russian ships keep going they should be through the Bay of Biscay before the Western Navies go through their paces.

The call by British customs officials was routine procedure.

The British recognized the mother ship. It was the largest vessel, the 2,902 ton Tombov, formerly the British Empire Durant, built in 1921.

Most of the trawlers were new and spic and span in fresh paint. Most were fitted with rear rollers, presumably used to haul in trawler nets, but no nets were visible.

Planes sent out by British newspapers flew over the little fleet and reporters dashed out in launches. But the Russians who greeted the customs officials affably would permit no one else on board.

A couple of women in trim blue dresses were seen on one ship.

Marion Hargrove Divorced In Mexico

EL PASO, Tex., May 20.—(AP)—Marion Hargrove, author of the World War II book, "See Here, Private Hargrove," was divorced May 11 in Juarez, Mexico.

Officials of the first civil court at Juarez, just across the Mexican border, said today that Judge Eugenio Calzada Flores granted the decree after personal appearance by both parties.

The suit was filed May 10 by Hargrove's wife, Alison Bird Hargrove, and alleged incompatability.

Dutch Girl Goes On Hunger Strike In Singapore

SINGAPORE, May 20. —(AP)— A broken-hearted little Dutch girl Bertha Hertogh, went on a hunger strike in the social welfare department girls' home today because she said she did not want to go to Holland.

The 13-year old girl was found last week living in a Malay village where her amah (native nurse) was caring for her.

A Singapore court yesterday awarded custody of the girl to her Dutch parents living in Holland. She had become separated from them when the Japanese invaded Java eight years ago. Her native nurse, Aminah, visited Bertha for the last time today. She said the child was given to her by h- Dutch mother.

Bertha is scheduled to sail for Holland and the parents she does not remember Tuesday on the liner Surriento.

May Erect 25 New Jonesville Homes

JONESVILLE, La., May 20.—(Special)—Construction of approximately 25 new homes in Jonesville may be started soon if enough persons are interested, according to Wedon T. Smith, Jonesville attorney.

Smith said his firm has been contacted by a Louisiana investment firm interested in installing such a housing project in Jonesville. The homes, costing from $5,000 to $7,000 would be built to one of several plans and financed by the FHA, Smith said. Veterans would only be required to make a down payment of bout $100, and monthly payments would be approximately $50. Approximately one-third down payment would be required of non-veterans.

SCHOOL BOARD'S RACE ATTRACTS

Catahoula Candidates Will Wage Exciting Campaign There

JONESVILLE, La., May 20.—(Special)—With the election situation warming up fast in Catahoula, one election was cancelled this week as no one qualified as a candidate to oppose any of the present municipal officials of the village of Harrisonburg.

Major political interest is centering on the school board race in wards one, five and six of the parish and on the post of town marshal in Jonesville.

In the school board race, three candidates have announced in ward five and three in ward six, with two qualified in ward one. They are Tom Cater (incumbent), Jack Owens and Lamar Randle of ward five; Mrs. G. D. Babin, R. M. Cotton and Bob Scott in ward six, and Hubert Garner (incumbent) and Haidie A. Blackmon in ward one.

Two candidates have announced for the post of Jonesville marshal. They are Herman B. LaPrairie and Joe Maxwell. There are rumors that at least three others are thinking of running for the marshal's post.

In the Jonesville mayor and aldermen race, there have been no announcements of candidates, but it is freely predicted that Mayor Pro-tem Dee E. Brown will probably announce and go without opposition. The incumbent aldermen are expected to run along with another candidate for thad ditional aldermanic post which will be vacant if Brown is elected mayor. Deadline for qualifying is June 2. The election is set for June 13.

In Harrisonburg, no candidates other than the incumbents had qualified by the deadline this week. Returned to office without opposition were Mayor Arthur M. Taliaferro and Aldermen L. L. McGuffee, Leroy McMillin and Z. Y. Stutson.

The delegates who became governors were Sam H. Jones, then of Deridder, later of Lake Charles; Ruffin G. Pleasant of Shreveport and J. Y. Sanders of Bogalusa. In addition, O. H. Simpson of New Orleans, who headed the convention's staff as secretary, later reached the state's highest post.

The three future governors were members of the convention's committee on suffrage and elections. Seven future judges sat on the judiciary committee.

Allen J. Ellender, present United States senator, was a member of the convention. J. O. Fernandez, who went to congress from New Orleans, was another. Hewitt Bouanchaud of New Roads, later lieutenant governor, presided over the constitutional meeting.

Although the 1921 convention met only a few months after women had been guaranteed the right to vote by amendment to the United States Constitution, three women sat among the constitution makers. Two were from Shreveport—Edith Brown Bailie, a newspaperwoman, and Mrs. J. D. Wilkinson, and one from New Orleans, Mrs. Ida Weis Friend.

Delegate John H. Meaux of Cameron parish achieved a special distinction. He was elected to the first legislature under the 921 constitution and has been returned to every legislature since then, including the present on. The only other members of the present legislature who served in the convention is Rep. Sigar Martin of St. James.

The rules adopted by the 1921 convention for its own proceedings became the basis of the rules of procedure of the state house of representatives, according to Lee Laycock, clerk of the house. Laycock, who has served on the house staff since 1922, has been studying the operation of the convention with a view to making recommendations for the projected 1951 gathering.

However, time has dulled the severity of some of the rules. In the 1921 convention, for example, no member was allowed under the rules to smoke; nor to read a newspaper during proceedings, nor to wear his hat. If a quorum failed to show up for a session, any 15 members might dispatch the sergeant-at-arms to "compel the attendance of absent members."

Curtain Call
by Sue Williams

Every day that brings "Candle-Light" nearer to its opening date of June 6th adds still another veteran worker to the production crew who will be responsible for the detail and set of the gay and sparkling comedy.

June Schultz, speech and drama instructor of O. P. H. S. has been named stage manager for the production. She has been our leading lady on several occasions, her latest appearance being in the leading role of "Her Husbands' Wife" and last season she was director of the comedy hit "Dear Ruth".

Dorothy Elmendorf, who has distinguished herself in properties management on five previous plays, is lending her capable assistance as props chairman for "Candle-Light". She will be assisted by Letha Gregory who graciously came to your humble correspondents rescue on "Voice of the Turtle" and on a last months notice took over the job of wardrobe mistress. Confidentally, we owe the lady a real debt of gratitude, especially after we found out that she had to press a khaki uniform for seven straight nights.

We ran into new board member Ed Ellison on Friday and he said "I'll be out at Little Theatre tonight to nail a board or two together". And by that we take it, Ed will be around to see that the prince's palace in "Candle-Light" is properly put together.

With a cast of eight such as Jim Reynolds, Mac Ward, Edith Grandy, Gilbert Faulk, Frances Hale, Sue Williams, Roy Holloway, and Jimmie Smith plus the moral support and ingenuity of such an impressive backstage crew, tell me how could "Candle-Light" miss being a sure fire hit.

RANDOM NOTES — Interesting newcomers soon to move to Monroe from Baton Rouge are Marion and Ed Glusman, who this week end are visiting Evelyn and Dan Moore while they look for a house or apartment here. Marion was Evelyn's only attendant when she and Dan were married last summer. Ed, who was once offered a Paramount screen test, played the part of the sultan in "Alladin's Lamp" in a production for the Baton Rouge Children's Theatre last year. A third member of the Glusman family is young son, Teddy. Both Marion and Ed are looking forward to renewing a number of college friendships in these parts . . . Had a chat with our attractive Little Theatre member, Eleanor Dumm who is all engrossed in girl scouting these days and she tells us that the Girl Scouts are planning an extensive summer activities program. It includes opportunities for cooking under Mrs. Swift; swimming instruction by licensed Red Cross instructors; six days of day camping at Camp Ki Ro Li; star gazing, crafts, reading and other interesting activities. All those interested may call the Girl Scout office for further information. . . . Our pride of the Little Theatre and co-leading man for the forth coming production of "Candle-Light", Jim Reynolds, will pinch hit for Garland Shell as master of ceremonies for the Capitol Kiddie Show each Saturday until "Uncle" Garland gets back from being Capt. Garland Shell in special services for the U. S. army in the east. Jim wil be entertaining the kiddies for about eight Saturdays. . . . We've got our fingers crossed for Little Theatre member, Senator McKinley of "John Loves Mary" that West Monroe Lion Joe Preddy, whom, we have found out is waging what looks like a victorious battle for Lion district governor. We are pulling for his election at the state Lions convention in Shreveport on June 8, 9 and 10.

SOVIETS SHIFTING FISHING TRAWLERS

30 Such Vessels Make Appearance In English Channel Prior To Maneuvers

LONDON, May 20 —(AP)— More than 30 Russian fishing trawlers and coasters have put in an appearance in the English channel just a few days before the five Brussels pact powers start naval maneuvers in the Bay of Biscay.

Official quarters attached no special significance in connection with the naval maneuvers. Presumably the Russian fleet was on a voyage from the Baltic sea through the Mediterranean to the Black sea.

Tonight seventeen of the vessels were anchored at the north of the Helford river, near Falmouth at the southwest corner of England.

British customs men making a routine inspection of ships coming within territorial waters, boarded some of them and said they were received courteously. Russian skippers explained that most of the ships were newly built and were urgently needed by the Russian fishing industry in the Black sea.

In addition to the ships anchored off Falmouth others were moving through the channel from the east. They could be seen occasionally from the English shore, and others were spotted on the radar screens of ships plying the channel. Some were seen moving westward from St. Catherine's Point on the Isle of Wight.

The sudden appearance of the ships, which sailed in several groups, surprised British shippers and naval officers. There had been no notice of their coming.

At the admiralty it was said that there was nothing improper about the passage through the English channel. If the Russian ships keep going they should be through the Bay of Biscay before the Western Navies go through their paces.

The call by British customs officials was routine procedure.

The British recognized the mother ship. It was the largest vessel, the 2,902 ton Tombov, formerly the British Empire Durant, built in 1921.

Most of the trawlers were new and spic and span in fresh paint. Most were fitted with rear rollers, presumably used to haul in trawler nets, but no nets were visible.

Planes sent out by British newspapers flew over the little fleet and reporters dashed out in launches. But the Russians who greeted the customs officials affably would permit no one else on board.

A couple of women in trim blue dresses were seen on one ship.

Marion Hargrove Divorced In Mexico

EL PASO, Tex., May 20.—(AP)— Marion Hargrove, author of the World War II book, "See Here, Private Hargrove," was divorced May 11 in Juarez, Mexico.

Officials of the first civil court at Juarez, just across the Mexican border, said today that Judge Eugenio Calzada Flores granted the decree after personal appearance by both parties.

The suit was filed May 10 by Hargrove's wife, Alison Bird Hargrove, and alleged incompatability.

Dutch Girl Goes On Hunger Strike In Singapore

SINGAPORE, May 20. —(AP)— A broken-hearted little Dutch girl Bertha Hertogh, went on a hunger strike in the social welfare department girls' home today because she said she did not want to go to Holland.

The 13-year old girl was found last week living in a Malay village where her amah (native nurse) was caring for her.

A Singapore court yesterday awarded custody of the girl to her Dutch parents living in Holland. She had become separated from them when the Japanese invaded Java eight years ago. Her native nurse Aminah, visited Bertha for the last time today. She said the child was given to her by h - Dutch mother.

Bertha is scheduled to sail for Holland and the parents she does not remember Tuesday on the liner Surriento.

May Erect 25 New Jonesville Homes

JONESVILLE, La., May 20.—(Special)—Construction of approximately 25 new homes in Jonesville may be started soon if enough persons are interested, according to Wedon T. Smith, Jonesville attorney.

Smith said his firm has been contacted by a Louisiana investment firm interested in installing such a housing project in Jonesville. The homes, costing from $5,000 to $7,000 would be built to one of several plans and financed by the FHA, Smith said. Veterans would only be required to make a down payment of bout $100, and monthly payments would be approximately $50. Approximately one-third down payment would be required of non-veterans.

SCHOOL BOARD'S RACE ATTRACTS

Catahoula Candidates Will Wage Exciting Campaign There

JONESVILLE, La., May 20.—(Special)—With the election situation warming up fast in Catahoula, one election was cancelled this week as no one qualified as a candidate to oppose any of the present municipal officials of the village of Harrisonburg.

Major political interest is centering on the school board race in wards one, five and six of the parish and on the post of town marshal in Jonesville.

In the school board race, three candidates have announced in ward five and three in ward six, with two qualified in ward one. They are Tom Cater (incumbent), Jack Owens and Lamar Randle of ward five; Mrs. G. D. Babin, R. M. Cotton and Bob Scott in ward six, and Hubert Garner (incumbent) and Haidie A. Blackmon in ward one.

Two candidates have announced for the post of Jonesville marshal. They are Herman B. LaPrairie and Joe Maxwell. There are rumors that at least three others are thinking of running for the marshal's post.

In the Jonesville mayor and aldermen race, there have been no announcements of candidates, but it is freely predicted that Mayor Pro-tem Dee E. Brown will probably announce and go without opposition. The incumbent aldermen are expected to run along with another candidate for thad ditional aldermanic post which will be vacant if Brown is elected mayor. Deadline for qualifying is June 2. The election is set for June 13.

In Harrisonburg, no candidates other than the incumbents had qualified by the deadline this week. Returned to office without opposition were Mayor Arthur M. Taliaferro and Aldermen L. L. McGuffee, Leroy McMillin and Z. Y. Stutson.

PRE-COLLEGIANS TO GIVE RECITAL

Public Invited To Thursday Night Event At Junior College Campus

Pre-college students will be presented in recital Thursday at 8 p. m. in Brown Hall auditorium on the Northeast Junior College campus. The program is open to the public with no admission cost, announced James F. Monroe, acting head of the music department.

Nine young musicians who are to participate in the music feature are piano students of Mrs. Florence Ziegler Allbritton, assistant professor of music at N. J. C.

Each pupil is capable of very worthy performance, Mr. Monroe said. "An entertaining evening should be in store for those who enjoy student recitals," he added.

Comprising the group who will be heard Thursday are: Anna Mary Johnson of Monroe, a pupil of Neville High School; Kittie and Frances Pollard, Jo Rhodes, Marianne Buce and Jane Wallace, all of West Monroe, who attend Ouachita Parish High School; Virginia and Carol Cage of Monroe, now enrolled at St. Matthew's Parochial School, and George Phillips of Rayville. These last three are not yet in their teens.

Miss Wallace, a candidate for graduation this spring, gained special recognition last year when she participated in the famous music festival in Wales. She will play three numbers in the recital: "Sonata Op. 13" by L. von Beethoven; "Lied" by G. Popov, and "Creole Dance" (from Twelve South American Preludes) by Alberto Ginastera.

Other selections on Thursday's program will include both solos and two-piano numbers.

Winsome Mlle. Boullard Is Charmed With Life in U. S.

It was a long way from the French village of Vimoutiers to New York City. For pretty Nicole Boullard the voyage had been filled with anticipation. She had heard so many wonderful things about America. Since April 20, when the Ile de France docked at New York, Mademoiselle's life has been packed with surprises, interest and excitement.

Coming as an exchange student under sponsorship of Pilot International, the vivacious French girl enthusiastically described her impressions of this country during her recent short stay in Monroe.

The most amazing thing is the American hospitality, Mademoiselle Boullard declared. "You people do not know me," she commented, "yet you are so kind and generous that I feel at home here."

This nineteen-year-old French miss is not studying American people and places in books right now. She is learning about them through touring various parts of the country as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Beyer of Albuquerque, N. Mex. Soon she plans to enroll for summer study at a college to be selected by Pilot's International relations committee, explained Mrs. Beyer, P. I. president.

Mademoiselle Boullard's stay in this country is the realization of Pilot's desire to better international relationship. This realization is a part of their project-the rehabilitation of Vimoutiers.

This Norman village was practically destroyed on that ill-fated June 14, 1944, when the American 9th Air Force bombed it on false information. Once a thriving, beautiful little town, today there is barren emptiness.

When President Beyer and Pilot Anne Davis visited Vimoutiers last October they found that the Boullard family was making big contributions toward rehabilitation of the town. Mademoiselle's htaf-of the town. Mademoiselle's father, Dr. Jean Boullard, physician, writer and historian, works constantly toward this goal. And Madame Boullard has initiated a service for the community by which linens and embroidery are done and sold for the benefit of the worker. Nicole herself has been teaching physical education to the orphans and other children in the little town. Family interest does not stop with Dr. and Mrs. Boullard. Nicole's brother-in-law, Denis Barois of Paris, was the young man who first interested the late Margaret Mitchell in the people of Vimoutiers. The noted Georgia novelist then inspired Pilot International to adopt the village. With such a background, it was only natural that the organization should select Nicole to study in this country.

She is a graduate in physical education of a private lycee in Paris, a school equivalent to the junior college level in the United States.

What English Mademoiselle speaks has been learned since her arrival in New York. But her dancing brown eyes and gracious manner compensate for a limited vocabulary. Chatting gaily in her own language with Miss Hazel Mitchell of the Northeast Junior College faculty she continued to exclaim over the French people's appreciation of American generosity in aiding them to rebuild. The French government thought so well of the exchange student idea that it provided Mademoiselle Boullard's transportation on their best ship.

"Each day of my stay brings something new and marvelous," the French girl asserted. Among the marvels was the first banana split which she had in New York and ice cream continues to head the list of American specialties.

As to the young men in this country — Mademoiselle Boullard commented, "French boys are more dignified." But she added, "I like the informality of Americans." Steady dating is not customary in France, she explained, until a girl is about ready to be married. Over there most women over thirty years old dress in black, she added.

To continue their program of international relations, Pilot International plans to send an American girl to Vimoutiers to repay Nicole's visit.

WATER DROPS HALF INCH IN WINNIPEG

Experts Hope It's The Beginning Of A Gradual Recess Of High Waters

WINNIPEG, Man., May 20.—(AP)—The Red river, whose rampaging waters have flooded nearly a fifth of greater Winnipeg, today showed its first drop—a half inch. Experts hoped that at last it was the beginning of a gradual draining off. The flood level stood at 30.3 feet.

Although the water still was at record height for the century, hopes were spurred by bright sunshine and a forecast that threatened rainstorms from the United States would not materialize. Officials said the "situation looks good."

Brig. Ronald Morton, army flood commander, said the 600-square-mile flood-lake in the river valley in southern Manitoba also showed signs of going down a bit.

Long-range weather predictions forecast more rain that might inch the flood upward again. But most experts seemed to feel that the worst was over. There remained, however, the long wait for the muddy waters to return to their banks and it probably will be mid-June before things are back to normal.

With some 100,000 of Winnipeg's 350,000 population evacuated and with many of southern Manitoba's towns completely deserted, the area has been described as a "succession of lakes."

"It has lost the conception of a river," said Brig. Morton. "It is a lake subject to very high currents and winds x x x we no longer regard it as a river."

The battle went on, meantime, to save the rest of Winnipeg and her twin city St. Boniface. Great systems of hastily sand - bagged dikes and natural barriers still strained against a frontal onslaught by th earrow-shaped Lake Pointing at Winnipeg and by rear attacks from the tributary rivers pouring into the Red at this prairie capital.

Winnipeg was living up to her name, which in Cree Indian means literally "muddy waters."

Even at its present lower level, the flood was only about two feet below the absolute peak at which engineers figure nearly all of Winnipeg would be water-logged and the whole population would have to be ordered to leave.

The call for the setting up of food depots, evacuation shelters and canteens on high land to the east and west.

CHARGE M'CARTHY WITH MISQUOTING

State Department Says Loyalty Files Not Wide Open To Anyone

WASHINGTON, May 20. —(AP)—The state department charged tonight that Senator McCarthy had deliberasely misquoted a congressional report to imply falsely that loyalty files were wide open to anyone in the department.

Actually access to the files is "strictly limited," the department said. It accused McCarthy of a "crude misquotation" in which he substituted the name of the department itself for the name of its security division.

This was done in a Chicago speech May 6, the department said. It made public its second point-by-point analysis of an address by the Wisconsin Republican senator who has carried on a running attack against the department as a hotbed of communism.

The department statement picked the speech apart in an attempt to show McCarthy wrong on 14 points. These included a number of previously denied and "refuted" charges which drew a new broadside of replies.

It led off with a blow aimed at McCarthy's assertion that state department loyalty files furnished to a senate committee investigating his charges were "phony."

The senate investigators now are going through these records which deal with the cases of 81 persons whom McCarthy has labeled as Communists or fellow travelers. The records were released to congress by President Truman. McCarthy immediately charged the files had been "raped" and "purged".

Alarm Failure Likely Saved Workman's Life

EAST ORANGE, N. J., May 20. —(AP)—Otto Ludvigsen is alive today, perhaps because his alarm clock failed to wake him.

Ludvigsen was assigned to duty as a deckhand on one of the four barges that blew up at South Amboy last night, leaving four known dead and 22 missing.

But the 38-year-old deckhand was tired from overtime work Thursday night, and from caring for his ill wife and small son. When his alarm clock called him to duty yesterday, his sleep continued undisturbed.

His barge sailed without him. When it blew up several hours later, Ludvigsen was safe at home.

Couple Jailed On Robbery Charges

Two persons were booked at police headquarters yesterday afternoon on charges of robbery. They were transferred to the parish jail for detention.

Joe Freeman, 27, and his wife, Mary Dawkins Freeman, 22, were taken into custody by police officers shortly after 2 p. m. in downown Monroe.

Freeman was arrested at 100 block of Sixth street and his wife at 600 block of DeSaird.

The two suspects are charged with robbing J. M. Bullock of $30. he claimed that the couple took his money in a local hotel Friday night

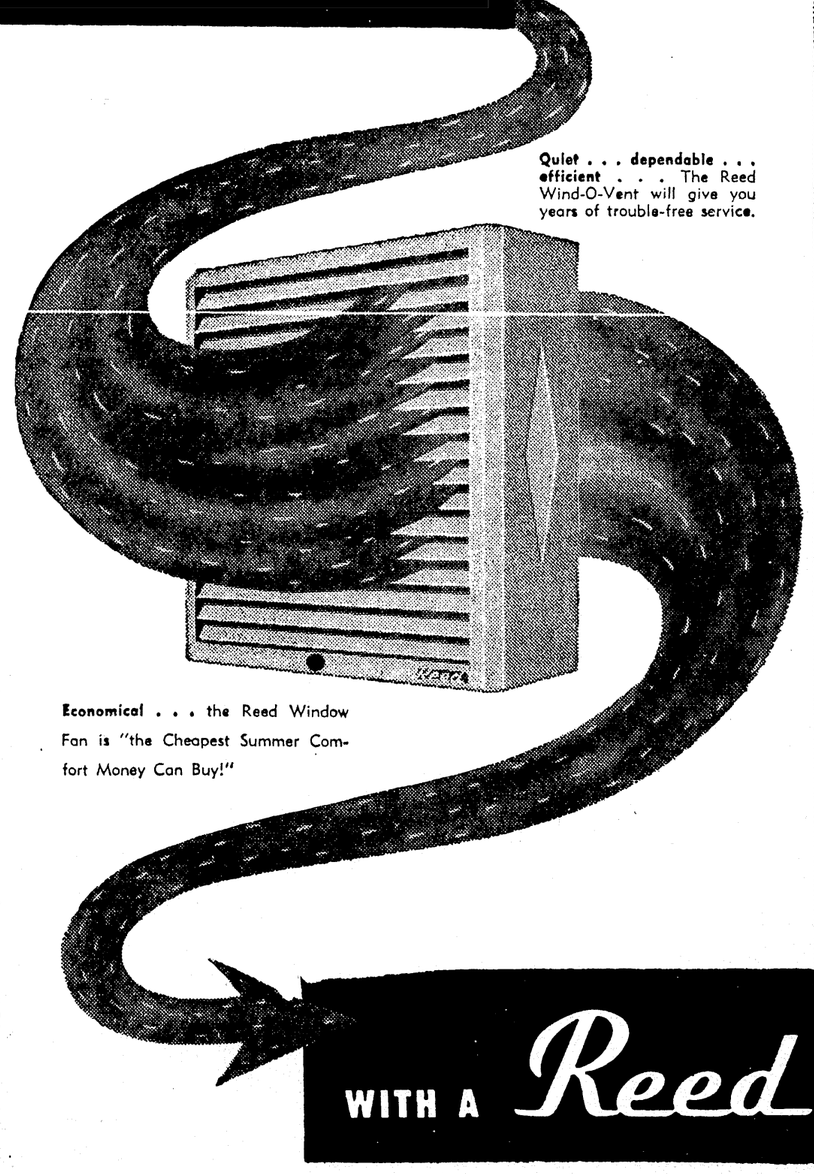

A. F. Flip-Flop

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Thomas K. Finletter, new air force secretary, is returning command of the air force to its general staff, headed by Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg.

One obvious sign of the trend was moving the public relations office back to the office of the chief of staff.

Stuart Symington, now chairman of the national security resources board, really ran the air force from his office, right down to operations details.

WATER DROPS HALF INCH IN WINNIPEG

Experts Hope It's The Beginning Of A Gradual Recess Of High Waters

WINNIPEG, Man., May 20.—(AP)—The Red river, whose rampaging waters have flooded nearly a fifth of greater Winnipeg, today showed its first drop—a half inch. Experts hoped that at last it was the beginning of a gradual draining off. The flood level stood at 30.3 feet.

Although the water still was at record height for the century, hopes were spurred by bright sunshine and a forecast that threatened rainstorms from the United States would not materialize. Officials said the "situation looks good."

Brig. Ronald Morton, army flood commander, said the 600-square-mile flood-lake in the river valley in southern Manitoba also showed signs of going down a bit.

Long-range weather predictions forecast more rain that might inch the flood upward again. But most experts seemed to feel that the worst was over. There remained, however, the long wait for the muddy waters to return to their banks and it probably will be mid-June before things are back to normal.

With some 100,000 of Winnipeg's 350,000 population evacuated and with many of southern Manitoba's towns completely deserted, the area has been described as a "succession of lakes."

"It has lost the conception of a river," said Brig. Morton. "It is a lake subject to very high currents and winds x x x we no longer regard it as a river."

The battle went on, meantime, to save the rest of Winnipeg and her twin city St. Boniface. Great systems of hastily sand - bagged dikes and natural barriers still strained against a frontal onslaught by th earrow-shaped Lake Pointing at Winnipeg and by rear attacks from the tributary rivers pouring into the Red at this prairie capital.

Winnipeg was living up to her name, which in Cree Indian means literally "muddy waters."

Even at its present lower level, the flood was only about two feet below the absolute peak at which engineers figure nearly all of Winnipeg would be water-logged and the whole population would have to be ordered to leave.

The call for the setting up of food depots, evacuation shelters and canteens on high land to the east and west.

CHARGE M'CARTHY WITH MISQUOTING

State Department Says Loyalty Files Not Wide Open To Anyone

WASHINGTON, May 20. —(AP)— The state department charged tonight that Senator McCarthy had deliberasely misquoted a congressional report to imply falsely that loyalty files were wide open to anyone in the department.

Actually access to the files is "strictly limited," the department said. It accused McCarthy of a "crude misquotation" in which he substituted the name of the department itself for the name of its security division.

This was done in a Chicago speech May 6, the department said. It made public its second point-by-point analysis of an address by the Wisconsin Republican senator who has carried on a running attack against the department as a hotbed of communism.

The department statement picked the speech apart in an attempt to show McCarthy wrong on 14 points. These included a number of previously denied and "refuted" charges which drew a new broadside of replies.

It led off with a blow aimed at McCarthy's assertion that state department loyalty files furnished to a senate committee investigating his charges were "phony."

The senate investigators now are going through these records which deal with the cases of 81 persons whom McCarthy has labeled as Communists or fellow travelers. The records were released to congress by President Truman. McCarthy immediately charged the files had been "raped" and "purged".

Alarm Failure Likely Saved Workman's Life

EAST ORANGE, N. J., May 20. —(AP)—Otto Ludvigsen is alive today, perhaps because his alarm clock failed to wake him.

Ludvigsen was assigned to duty as a deckhand on one of the four barges that blew up at South Amboy last night, leaving four known dead and 22 missing.

But the 38-year-old deckhand was tired from overtime work Thursday night, and from caring for his ill wife and small son. When his alarm clock called him to duty yesterday, his sleep continued undisturbed.

His barge sailed without him. When it blew up several hours later, Ludvigsen was safe at home.

MONROE NOSES OUT EL DORADO IN 11 INNINGS

OILERS' FIVE-RUN MARGIN FADES AS LOCALS WIN, 6-5

Cliff Coggins Doubles And Comes Home On Error To Sew Up Game

The Monroe Sports gave the El Dorado Oilers a five-run lead and then began whittling away to tie up the game in the eighth, forcing the contest into extra innings before the Men of Mazur came through with the winning run in the eleventh inning to take their second straight from their Arkansas rivals, 6 to 5.

"Turk" Lurk, who relieved Bobby Johnson as the Monroe pitcher with the Sports trailing 5 to 2 in the sixth, helped win his own ball game as he blasted a triple that scored Virgil Bivens and then came home on a single by Chuck Herring to tie the count at 5-5 in the eighth.

Two batters had been retired in the bottom of the eleventh when Cliff Coggins, a pitcher playing right field, banged out a double. Ray Mendoza was intentionally passed, and Charlie Cline grounded to Shortstop Paul Dabkowski who tried to outrun Mendoza to second and finally threw wild to first in an effort to stop Cline. Coggins hurried home on the overthrow with the winning run.

Third game of the El Dorada series comes up this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Legion Memomial Stadium here.

The Oilers opened the scoring in the second inning when Frank Quicutis beat out an infield hit, went to second when Joe Decker was hit by a pitched ball, and scored on Leroy Alexander's single to center.

A pair of triples highlighted a three-run third inning for the visitors. Paul Dabkowski started things with a double to left. George Foster sacrificed him to third, Harville Jakes got a free pass, and "Lefty" Loyko promptly lined a triple into right center, scoring Dabkowski and Jakes. Ray Coss grounded to Mazur who threw to the plate, trapping Loyko between third and home. A triple by Quicutis brought Coss home.

El Dorado made it a five-run lead with another run in the fifth when Jakes walked, stole second, and scored on Coss' single to left.

The Sports, who missed a good scoring chance in the third frame when they loaded the bases with none out, finally hit the run column with two tallies in the bottom of the fifth when Manager Al Mazur singled and scored when Leonard Morrison poled out an inside-the-park homer into right center.

Monroe whittled at the Oiler lead as the Sports added another run in the sixth. Ray Mendoza walked. Charlie Cline beat out an infield blow. Virgil Bivens forced Mendoza at third, but "Turk" Lurk, who relieved Bobby Johnson as the Monroe hurler at the beginning of the sixth, punched a single into right field, scoring Cline.

It became anybody's ball game again in the eighth when the Sports pounded out three hits for two runs to deadlock the count at 5-5. Bivens led off with a single, and Lurk, making a bid to win the game for himself, rammed a triple into right center and came home a minute later with the tying run when Chuck Herring lined a hot single past third base.

The Oilers threatened to go ahead again in the top of the ninth when Manager Schalk started things with a single and went to second on Dabkowski's sacrifice. But he was left stranded as Lurk fanned Foster, and Jakes fouled out to Cline at third.

The Sports went three up and three down in their half of the ninth, and it became an extra inning ball game.

Lurk fanned Loyko, first batter to face him in the tenth, but Coss tagged him for a double into right center. Quicutis was given an intentional pass. Then the Sports pulled out of the hole with their third double play of the night as Joe Decker grounded to Lurk who rifled the ball to Mazur on second, forcing Quicutis, and Mazur threw in time to catch Decker at first.

Only three batters faced Lurk in the top of the eleventh, two of them fanning. Then with two out in the bottom of the eleventh, the Sports got a rally started when Cliff Coggins doubled down the third base line. Mendoza was intentionally passed. Then Cline hit to Shortstop Dabkowski, who threw wild to first, and Coggins came home with the winning run.

Mobley, Segura Rematched For Main Scramble At Kallio's Arena Tuesday

Rex Mobley and Bobby Segura, who gave the fans a wild night a week ago with a bloody mat episode in which Segura, Mexican light-heavy champ, was accused of having a knife in the ring, have been rematched for the main event at Gus Kallio's Arena Tuesday night.

Mobley, disqualified for tossing Segura and Referee Pat Cronin out of the ring, challenged for the match provided a new referee is furnished. He accused Cronin of robbing him of the match by disqualifying him while allowing Segura to work him over with a closed knife first.

Segura denied the knife charge although he was stuck with a $25 fine by Commissioner Dave Silverstein.

Segura claimed he did not bring the knife into the ring, explaining he saw it on the mat, figuring some fan had thrown it into the ring. He said he picked it up and promptly handed it to the referee. Cronin drew the knife out to Dr. J. T. French, district wrestling physician, who turned it over to Commissioner Silverstein.

Kallio promised Segura that if he beats Mobley he'll have a $20 bonus in his cut of the gate, enabling him to get back some of his fine.

Cronin, who bore the brunt of Mobley's complaint about the last match requested a chance to meet Mobley. Cronin, who has done quite a bit of wrestling and boxing, was passed, however, in favor of another Mobley-Segura meeting.

Promoter Kallio then talked Cronin into a semi-final match with Don Keene.

Keene and Cronin will battle over an hour time limit route, while the main event will have a 90-minute limit Both matches will go two falls to win.

Twenty-year-old Ray Mendoza has made himself known to local baseball fans by his hits and the fancy manner in which he handles his first base position.

Ray Mendoza

Going into last night's game, Mendoza, so far this season, has collected two home runs and three triples.

Mendoza, a six-foot, five-inch, 170-pounder, is in his third year of professional baseball. He was the first sacker for the St. Petersburg, Fla., Saints in 1948 and for the Green Sox of Dublin, Ga., in 1949. In three months with the Green Sox, Mendoza slammed out seven home runs.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Bennis, of San Diego, Calif., Mendoza won All-Southern California honors in high school baseball. He is a native of San Diego and graduated from San Diego high school in 1947, the same year he played for the national championship American Legion team of San Diego. He plans to enroll at San Diego Junior College this fall.

Mendoza attributes his ability to handle first base to instruction given him by Mike Morrow, who coached him in American Legion baseball at San Diego.

When asked about his height, a smiling Mendoza replied:

"I'm tall enough already. I upped my height five inches in the past two years and believe me, I don't want to grow any taller."

MONROE NOSES OUT EL DORADO IN 11 INNINGS

Cliff Coggins Doubles And Comes Home On Error To Sew Up Game

The Monroe Sports gave the El Dorado Oilers a five-run lead and then began whittling away to tie up the game in the eighth, forcing the contest into extra innings before the Men of Mazur came through with the winning run in the eleventh inning to take their second straight from their Arkansas rivals, 6 to 5.

"Turk" Lurk, who relieved Bobby Jonnson as the Monroe pitcher with the Sports trailing 5 to 2 in the sixth, helped win his own ball game as he blasted a triple that scored Virgil Bivens and then came home on a single by Chuck Herring to tie the count at 5-5 in the eighth.

Two batters had been retired in the bottom of the eleventh when Cliff Coggins, a pitcher playing right field, banged out a double. Ray Mendoza was intentionally passed, and Charlie Cline grounded to Shortstop Paul Dabkowski who tried to outrun Mendoza to second and finally threw wild to first in an effort to stop Cline. Coggins hurried home on the overthrow with the winning run.

Third game of the El Dorada series comes up this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Legion Memomial Stadium here.

The Oilers opened the scoring in the second inning when Frank Quicutis beat out an infield hit, went to second when Joe Decker was hit by a pitched ball, and scored on Leroy Alexander's single to center.

A pair of triples highlighted a three-run third inning for the visitors. Paul Dabkowski started things with a double to left. George Foster sacrificed him to third, Harville Jakes got a free pass, and "Lefty" Loyko promptly lined a triple into right center, scoring Dabkowski and Jakes. Ray Coss grounded to Mazur who threw to the plate, trapping Loyko between third and home. A triple by Quicutis brought Coss home.

El Dorado made it a five-run lead with another run in the fifth when Jakes walked, stole second, and scored on Coss' single to left.

The Sports, who missed a good scoring chance in the third frame when they loaded the bases with none out, finally hit the run column with two tallies in the bottom of the fifth when Manager Al Mazur singled and scored when Leonard Morrison poled out an inside-the-park homer into right center.

Monroe whittled at the Oiler lead as the Sports added another run in the sixth. Ray Mendoza walked. Charlie Cline beat out an infield blow. Virgil Bivens forced Mendoza at third, but "Turk" Lurk, who relieved Bobby Johnson as the Monroe hurler at the beginning of the sixth, punched a single into right field, scoring Cline.

It became anybody's ball game again in the eighth when the Sports pounded out three hits for two runs to deadlock the count at 5-5. Bivens led off with a single, and Lurk, making a bid to win the game for himself, rammed a triple into right center and came home a minute later with the tying run when Chuck Herring lined a hot single past third base.

The Oilers threatened to go ahead again in the top of the ninth when Manager Schalk started things with a single and went to second on Dabkowski's sacrifice. But he was left stranded as Lurk fanned Foster, and Jakes fouled out to Cline at third.

The Sports went three up and three down in their half of the ninth, and it became an extra inning ball game.

Lurk fanned Loyko, first batter to face him in the tenth, but Coss tagged him for a double into right center. Quicutis was given an intentional pass. Then the Sports pulled out of the hole with their third double play of the night as Joe Decker grounded to Lurk who rifled the ball to Mazur on second, forcing Quicutis, and Mazur threw in time to catch Decker at first.

Only three batters faced Lurk in the top of the eleventh, two of them fanning. Then with two out in the bottom of the eleventh, the Sports got a rally started when Cliff Coggins doubled down the third base line. Mendoza was intentionally passed. Then Cline hit to Shortstop Dabkowski, who threw wild to first, and Coggins came home with the winning run.

Mobley, Segura Rematched For Main Scramble At Kallio's Arena Tuesday

Rex Mobley and Bobby Segura, who gave the fans a wild night a week ago with a bloody mat episode in which Segura, Mexican light-heavy champ, was accused of having a knife in the ring, have been rematched for the main event at Gus Kallio's Arena Tuesday night.

Mobley, disqualified for tossing Segura and Referee Pat Cronin out of the ring, challenged for the match provided a new referee is furnished. He accused Cronin of robbing him of the match by disqualifying him while allowing Segura to work him over with a closed knife first.

Segura denied the knife charge although he was stuck with a $25 fine by Commissioner Dave Silverstein.

Segura claimed he did not bring the knife into the ring, explaining he saw it on the mat, figuring some fan had thrown it into the ring. He said he picked it up and promptly handed it to the referee. Cronin drew the knife out to Dr. J. T. French, district wrestling physician, who turned it over to Commissioner Silverstein.

Kallio promised Segura that if he beats Mobley he'll have a $20 bonus in his cut of the gate, enabling him to get back some of his fine.

Cronin, who bore the brunt of Mobley's complaint about the last match requested a chance to meet Mobley. Cronin, who has done quite a bit of wrestling and boxing, was passed, however, in favor of another Mobley-Segura meeting.

Promoter Kallio then talked Cronin into a semi-final match with Don Keene.

Keene and Cronin will battle over an hour time limit route, while the main event will have a 90-minute limit Both matches will go two falls to win.

Twenty-year-old Ray Mendoza has made himself known to local baseball fans by his hits and the fancy manner in which he handles his first base position.

Ray Mendoza

Going into last night's game, Mendoza, so far this season, has collected two home runs and three triples.

Mendoza, a six-foot, five-inch, 170-pounder, is in his third year of professional baseball. He was the first sacker for the St. Petersburg, Fla., Saints in 1948 and for the Green Sox of Dublin, Ga., in 1949. In three months with the Green Sox, Mendoza slammed out seven home runs.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Bennis, of San Diego, Calif., Mendoza won All-Southern California honors in high school baseball. He is a native of San Diego and graduated from San Diego high school in 1947, the same year he played for the national championship American Legion team of San Diego. He plans to enroll at San Diego Junior College this fall.

Mendoza attributes his ability to handle first base to instruction given him by Mike Morrow, who coached him in American Legion baseball at San Diego.

When asked about his height, a smiling Mendoza replied:

"I'm tall enough already. I upped my height five inches in the past two years and believe me, I don't want to grow any taller."

LEGION JUNIORS BEGINNING WORK

28 Boys Report For Initial Drills; Riser Expects More Candidates

The Monroe American Legion Junior baseball club held its first workouts of the season here Friday and yesterday with only four members of last year's squad reporting and only two of those 1949 regulars.

Returning to give Coach George Riser a small measure of experienced talent are Shortstop Jimmie Choate, Outfielder Tommy Leos, Pitcher Dick Campbell, and Catcher Guy Gannaway.

Seeking to replace the boys not returning are 28 hustling youngsters, all anxious for a chance to play. Several other boys are reported planning to join in the workouts in the next few days. At last 40 boys ar expected to get tryouts before the season opener. Plans are being made to place boys not placing on the club a position in some other league in order to keep them playing and building experience.

"This year's club though lacking in experience, will field a team of hustling boys who have a sincere desire to play," Coach Riser said last night. "Many mistakes will be made, but a creditable showing is expected if the boys an keep the determined attitude they have started with."

Candidates so far are:

Pitchers — Dick Campbell, Lee Roy McMullen, Darrell Johnson, David Wadsworth, Wayne Causey and Mike Cage.

Veterans Showing Way In Cotton States League's Batting Parade

By J. P. Friend
(Cotton States Statistician)

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., May 20.—(Special)—Veterans are being served in the Cotton States League parade at the end of the first month of the 1950 campaign.

A familiar figure is out in front. He is Ben (Rosie) Cantrell, slugging Pine Bluff outfielder and one of the loop's most colorful stars. Hitting safely in his last eight games, twice bagging three, Ben added 40 points to last week's .312 and took charge with .352. Thirteen hits in 28 times at bat during the period gave him 37 out of 105 for the year. Included were four doubles and 10 runs batted in. The spree also enabled him to gobble up the hits and runs batted in titles in the specialized departments with 37 and 32, respectively.

The records, as compiled and released today by the Friend News Service, include night games of May 16.

Four other veterans eased into the spotlight with some heavy clouting to make it an all-experienced big five. Eddie Sudol, a league fixture and one of the powerhouses at El Dorado, now with Greenville, took over second place upon his return to the league after a brief stay. He is hitting .340 in 12 games. He has connected 16 times out of 47. He is having to step spryly to keep ahead of Roy Schalk, El Dorado skipper and his former boss, who bounced up to .338. The Oiler manager has rapped out 22 hits in 65 tries, gaining 11 points.

Jim Gilbert, Natchez outfielder, is only five points away in fourth with .333. He has poled 34 hits in 102 times at bat. Chester Morgan, genial Clarksdale playing manager, also had a profitable willow week with 17-6 to pick up seven points to .326.

Marty Lee, Hot Springs catcher and sparkplug, has made his bat speak loudly since taking over the first string catching duties. His hitting has been timely and consistent, accounting for several winning runs during the recent Bather streak that reached six straight games. Lee is hitting at a respectable .324 clip in 15 games.

Seven others are within the select .300 circle: Alex Cosmidis, Hot Springs, .320; Roy Coss, El Dorado, .308; Jack Maroney, Greenville, .306; Jerry Lynch, Greenville, .304; Harry Schwegman, Pine Bluff, .303; Dom Chiola, El Dorad, .302, and last week's swat lleder, Bob Kurtz, Pine Bluff, .301.

Greenville's slugging Jerry Lynch is the No. 1 heavy clouter with 57 total bases. The Buck buster has rapped out four home runs, five triples (high), and a quartet of two-baggers, to go with his 18 hits of the single base variety. Cosmidis has crossed the plate 28 times for scoring honors. Frank Scarpace, Pine Bluff, (.278) and George Ruzina, Natchez (.260) have nine doubles each. Scarpace also is the loop Babe Ruth with five home runs. He is just one base behind Lynch. Three speedsters, two from Greenwood, Wally Lindsey and Danny Daum, and Pine Bluff's John Ramm, have stolen 10 sacks apiece.

Two rookies, both sporting the Monroe Sports livery, are hogging the top pitching honors. Cliff Coggins trimmed the league leading Pine Bluff Judges for win No. 5, while his teammate, Bobby Johnson, recorded two wins between outfield tours, to extend his total to four. Pine Bluff's Bob Pickens found Greenwood easy pickings, May 16, for win No. 3. Two other members of the Judges mound staff, Ted Gardner, and Rhyne Duren, have 2-0, while Quincy Francis, Clarksdale, completes the unbeaten list with a single triumph. Adam Stempowski, Pine Bluff, is is tied with Coggins for the most victories at five, but has been trimmed twice, once in a duel with the Sport star. Charles Rugg, Greenwood, George Witt, Greenwood, and Dan Caccavo, Hot Springs lefty, have 4-1; Don Scott, Greenwood and John Miskulin, Natchez, 3-1.

HIGHLIGHTS: Cliff Coggins chalked up his 5th win by outdueling Adam Stempowski, Pine Bluff ace, 4-2, May 12. The Sport star fanned 14 Judges and gave but six hits, twice as many as his outstanding opponent. . . . Norm (Bud) Warfel turned in a masterful relief job to get credit for his first win of the season, May 12. Relieving Ray Baer in the 2nd with the sacks jammed, the Spa hurler gave only four hits in the next 9 innings to win in the 11th.

MIDDLEGROUND 5 LENGTHS OFF IN SECOND SLOT

Show Money Goes To Dooly In 74th Running Of Pimlico Feature

By John Chandler

BALTIMORE, May 20.—(AP)—Hill Prince and Eddie Arcaro ran away with the 74th Preakness stakes today for Virginia, whipping the Kentucky Derby champ—Middleground—in the bargain.

The powerful bay colt from the Old Dominion took the lead going into the backstretch of the ancient Pimlico race course. Those in the chilled crowd of 26,599 who had established him the odds-on favorite never had another worry.

Hill Prince opened up a three-length lead as Arcaro hustled him like a pony express rider fleeing from the Indians.

At the finish of the mile and three - sixteenths classic, Chris Chenery's stubby - tailed son of Princequillo - Hildene was five lengths ahead of Middleground, who beat Hill Prince in the Derby two weeks ago.

Middleground, hope of the vast Texas King ranch to cop a second Preakness, was five lengths ahead of the third horse, C. V. (Sonny) Whitney's Dooly in the field of six starters.

Mr. Trouble, the supposed ace of the Whitney entry, was fourth, tagging along six lengths back of his stablemate.

The track was officially labeled "slow" after three days of rain which ended yesterday, and the winner's time was a fair 1:59 1-5 considering the conditions. Capot set the track record of 1:56 flat in winning the Preakness over a fast strip last year.

Hill Prince, who beat Middleground in the Wood Memorial, then again in the Withers Mile after his Derby defeat, rewarded the faithful at the mutuels with $3.40 straight and $2.40 to place. There was no shaw wagering, because the track feared a minus pool with such a small field.

Middleground third choice returned $3.20. The King Ranch colt went off at $3.20 on the dollar, as the crowd heeded the optimism of Trainer Syl Veitch and established the Whitney horses second choice at $3.20 for the Deuce.

"He's the best three-year-old in the country," said Arcaro later as he walked away from the winner's circle where Hill Prince got the customary blanket of black-eyed susans draped around his handsome neck.

Arcaro could afford to be grateful, for it was his third Preakness score. He booted home Whirlaway in 1941 and Citation in 1948. Then, he pockets 10 per cent of Hill Prince's winnings, which totaled $56,155, of the big pot, which grossed $75,615.

Bill Boland, the Texas youngster who won the Derby with Middleground, said there was no doubt Hill Prince was the class of the three-year-olds today.

Middleground got $10,000 for second, while third was worth $5,000 and fourth $2.500.

Mrs. James Carson's Kinsman was fifth and Mrs. W. H. Labrot's Balkan was last.

Trainer Casey Hayes, who had a smile as wide as Chesapeake Bay as he stood with the dignitaries in the winner's circle along with owner Chenery and Hill Prince, was asked if this was his biggest victory.

"This is the only real horse I've ever had," he said.

It was the first Preakness for Hayes and Chenery, a New York utilities magnate by way of Richmond.

"He was restrained at the Derby," Chenery said. "The way we did it today was just let him run the race he wanted."

Steve Brooks, who rode Mr. Trouble, said his horse didn't like the race track. Jimmy Lynch was aboard Dooly.

When the small field barged past the packed stands for the first time, Balkan was leading by a head along the rail, with Middleground next and Mr. Trouble outside another head away.

Hill Prince moved into third back of Balkan and Mr. Trouble around the clubhouse bend. Then Arcaro and company took charge. Eddie said let's go, and Hill Prince sailed into the lead like a bank robber's get - away car zipping through a red light.

He was on top along the rail entering the back run, something the late-moving Hill Prince doesn't usually do.

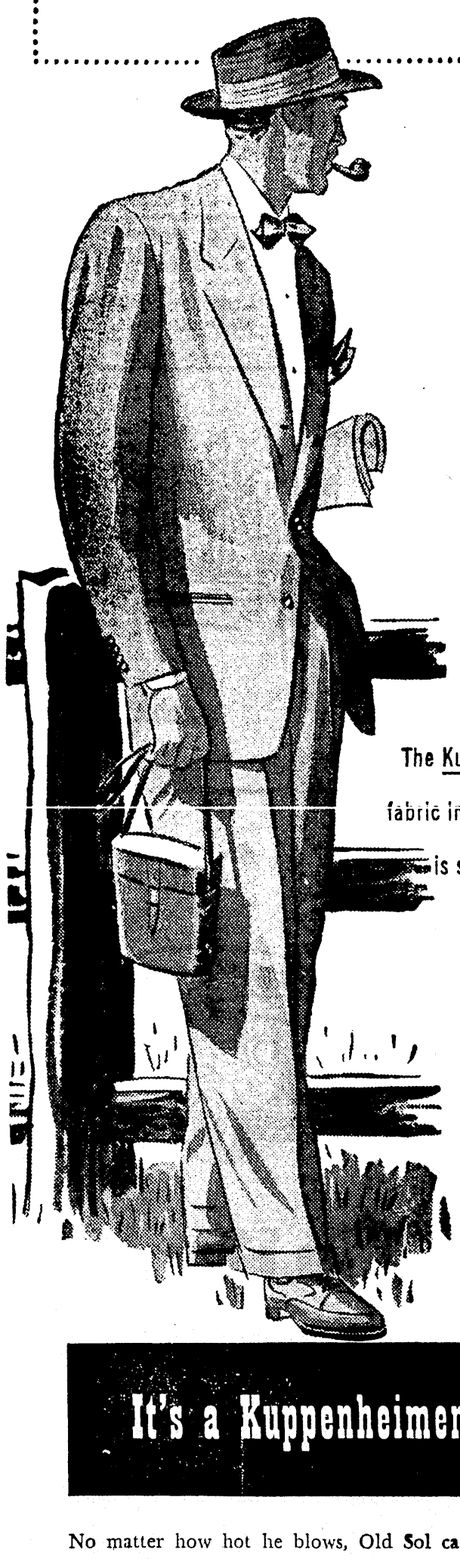

Balkan quit early, but Mr. Trouble and Middleground were battling each other for second place as Hill Prince opened up three big lengths. Middleground closed up a length back of the flying leader as they swung around the final turn to the top of the stretch, where the business all began at the starting gate.

But Middleground couldn't close that length of gap. Hill Prince lowered the boom at the eighth-pole. While ridden out, he won with no trouble as the other tired contenders fought for the financial leavings.

This was the fourth victory in six starts this year for the Virginia pile-driver, and shot his 1950 earnings to $135,515. He put $46,225 into the Chenery sock in 1949, when he won six of seven races.

Veterans Showing Way In Cotton States League's Batting Parade

By J. P. Friend
(Cotton States Statistician)

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., May 20.—(Special)—Veterans are being served in the Cotton States League parade at the end of the first month of the 1950 campaign.

A familiar figure is out in front. He is Ben (Rosie) Cantrell, slugging Pine Bluff outfielder and one of the loop's most colorful stars. Hitting safely in his last eight games, twice bagging three, Ben added 40 points to last week's .312 and took charge with .352. Thirteen hits in 28 times at bat during the period gave him 37 out of 105 for the year. Included were four doubles and 10 runs batted in. The spree also enabled him to gobble up the hits and runs batted in titles in the specialized departments with 37 and 32, respectively.

The records, as compiled and released today by the Friend News Service, include night games of May 16.

Four other veterans eased into the spotlight with some heavy clouting to make it an all-experienced big five. Eddie Sudol, a league fixture and one of the powerhouses at El Dorado, now with Greenville, took over second place upon his return to the league after a brief stay. He is hitting .340 in 12 games. He has connected 16 times out of 47. He is having to step spryly to keep ahead of Roy Schalk, El Dorado skipper and his former boss, who bounced up to .338. The Oiler manager has rapped out 22 hits in 65 tries, gaining 11 points.

Jim Gilbert, Natchez outfielder, is only five points away in fourth with .333. He has poled 34 hits in 102 times at bat. Chester Morgan, genial Clarksdale playing manager, also had a profitable willow week with 17-6 to pick up seven points to .326.

Marty Lee, Hot Springs catcher and sparkplug, has made his bat speak loudly since taking over the first string catching duties. His hitting has been timely and consistent, accounting for several winning runs during the recent Bather streak that reached six straight games. Lee is hitting at a respectable .324 clip in 15 games.

Seven others are within the select .300 circle: Alex Cosmidis, Hot Springs, .320; Roy Coss, El Dorado, .308; Jack Maroney, Greenville, .306; Jerry Lynch, Greenville, .304; Harry Schwegman, Pine Bluff, .303; Dom Chiola, El Dorad, .302, and last week's swat lieder, Bob Kurtz, Pine Bluff, .301.

Greenville's slugging Jerry Lynch is the No. 1 heavy clouter with 57 total bases. The Buck buster has rapped out four home runs, five triples (high), and a quartet of two-baggers, to go with his 18 hits of the single base variety. Cosmidis has crossed the plate 28 times for scoring honors. Frank Scarpace, Pine Bluff, (.278) and George Ruzina, Natchez (.260) have nine doubles each. Scarpace also is the loop Babe Ruth with five home runs. He is just one base behind Lynch. Three speedsters, two from Greenwood, Wally Lindsey and Danny Daum, and Pine Bluff's John Ramm, have stolen 10 sacks apiece.

Two rookies, both sporting the Monroe Sports livery, are hogging the top pitching honors. Cliff Coggins trimmed the league leading Pine Bluff Judges for win No. 5, while his teammate, Bobby Johnson, recorded two wins between outfield tours, to extend his total to four. Pine Bluff's Bob Pickens found Greenwood easy pickings, May 16, for win No. 3. Two other members of the Judges mound staff, Ted Gardner, and Rhyne Duren, have 2-0, while Quincy Francis, Clarksdale, completes the unbeaten list with a single triumph. Adam Stempowski, Pine Bluff, is is tied with Coggins for the most victories at five, but has been trimmed twice, once in a duel with the Sport star. Charles Rugg, Greenwood, George Witt, Greenwood, and Dan Caccavo, Hot Springs lefty, have 4-1; Don Scott, Greenwood and John Miskulin, Natchez, 3-1.

BALTIMORE, May 20.—(AP)—Hill Prince and Eddie Arcaro ran away with the 74th Preakness stakes today for Virginia, whipping the Kentucky Derby champ—Middleground—in the bargain.

The powerful bay colt from the Old Dominion took the lead going into the backstretch of the ancient Pimlico race course. Those in the chilled crowd of 26,599 who had established him the odds-on favorite never had another worry.

Hill Prince opened up a three-length lead as Arcaro hustled him like a pony express rider fleeing from the Indians.

At the finish of the mile and three - sixteenths classic, Chris Chenery's stubby - tailed son of Princequillo - Hildene was five lengths ahead of Middleground, who beat Hill Prince in the Derby two weeks ago.

Middleground, hope of the vast Texas King ranch to cop a second Preakness, was five lengths ahead of the third horse, C. V. (Sonny) Whitney's Dooly in the field of six starters.

Mr. Trouble, the supposed ace of the Whitney entry, was fourth, tagging along six lengths back of his stablemate.

The track was officially labeled "slow" after three days of rain which ended yesterday, and the winner's time was a fair 1:59 1-5 considering the conditions. Capot set the track record of 1:56 flat in winning the Preakness over a fast strip last year.

Hill Prince, who beat Middleground in the Wood Memorial, then again in the Withers Mile after his Derby defeat, rewarded the faithful at the mutuels with $3.40 straight and $2.40 to place. There was no shaw wagering, because the track feared a minus pool with such a small field.

Middleground third choice returned $3.20. The King Ranch colt went off at $3.20 on the dollar, as the crowd heeded the optimism of Trainer Syl Veitch and established the Whitney horses second choice at $3.20 for the Deuce.

"He's the best three-year-old in the country," said Arcaro later as he walked away from the winner's circle where Hill Prince got the customary blanket of black-eyed susans draped around his handsome neck.

Arcaro could afford to be grateful, for it was his third Preakness score. He booted home Whirlaway in 1941 and Citation in 1948. Then, he pockets 10 per cent of Hill Prince's winnings, which totaled $56,155, of the big pot, which grossed $75,615.

Bill Boland, the Texas youngster who won the Derby with Middleground, said there was no doubt Hill Prince was the class of the three-year-olds today.

Middleground got $10,000 for second, while third was worth $5,000 and fourth $2.500.

Mrs. James Carson's Kinsman was fifth and Mrs. W. H. Labrot's Balkan was last.

Trainer Casey Hayes, who had a smile as wide as Chesapeake Bay as he stood with the dignitaries in the winner's circle along with owner Chenery and Hill Prince, was asked if this was his biggest victory.

"This is the only real horse I've ever had," he said.

It was the first Preakness for Hayes and Chenery, a New York utilities magnate by way of Richmond.

"He was restrained at the Derby," Chenery said. "The way we did it today was just let him run the race he wanted."

Steve Brooks, who rode Mr. Trouble, said his horse didn't like the race track. Jimmy Lynch was aboard Dooly.

When the small field barged past the packed stands for the first time, Balkan was leading by a head along the rail, with Middleground next and Mr. Trouble outside another head away.

Hill Prince moved into third back of Balkan and Mr. Trouble around the clubhouse bend. Then Arcaro and company took charge. Eddie said let's go, and Hill Prince sailed into the lead like a bank robber's get - away car zipping through a red light.

He was on top along the rail entering the back run, something the late-moving Hill Prince doesn't usually do.

Balkan quit early, but Mr. Trouble and Middleground were battling each other for second place as Hill Prince opened up three big lengths. Middleground closed up a length back of the flying leader as they swung around the final turn to the top of the stretch, where the business all began at the starting gate.

But Middleground couldn't close that length of gap. Hill Prince lowered the boom at the eighth-pole. While ridden out, he won with no trouble as the other tired contenders fought for the financial leavings.

This was the fourth victory in six starts this year for the Virginia pile-driver, and shot his 1950 earnings to $135,515. He put $46,225 into the Chenery sock in 1949, when he won six of seven races.

SANFORD HURLS YANKS PAST CHISOX, 3 TO 1

VICTORY ENABLES BOMBERS TO HOLD ON TO LOOP LEAD

Tigers Remain On Heels Of Pacemakers With 5-3 Win Over A's

CHICAGO, May 20. —(AP)— Fred Sanford may have saved his job today as he pitched the New York victory cemented the Yanks' grip Yankees to a 3-1 six-hit triumph on first place.

Sanford is one of the players mentioned in a deal that would bring a lefthand pitcher to the Yanks from the White Sox.

Bob Porterfield was originally scheduled to pitch today but Manager Casey Stengel switched to Sanford and the veteran righthander came through with his first complete game of the season.

The Yanks scored in the second inning on a walk, single and double by Billy Johnson. They picked up another in the fifth on a walk, sacrifice and double by Phil Rizzuto. The Yanks' final run crossed in the seventh when Johnson singled, raced to third as Gus Zernial let the ball get away for a two base error and scored on a single by Cliff Mapes.

Sanford blanked the White Sox until the seventh when Phil Masi and Gordon Goldsberry doubled to account for the lone Chicago run.

The victory was the Yanks' fourth straight. The loss was Chicago's 12th in their last 13 starts.

DOUBLE PLAYS HELP

DETROIT, May 20. —(AP)— The Detroit Tigers came up with five double plays in the first five innings to help young Art Houtteman post a 5-3 win over the Philadelphia Athletics today.

All the Tiger twin killings were engineered by the second baseman Gerry Priddy — Shortstop Johnny Lipon — First Baseman Dick Kryhoski combination. The A's came up with a pair of DP's in those same innings but neither team could get another the rest of the way.

The record number of double plays by one team for a single game is seven—set by the New York Yankees in 1942. On three occasions teams have made nine together in a single game.

Detroit bagged four runs in a big six-hit first inning off little Bobby Shantz, who absorbed his second loss as against three wins.

Phillies Slip Into Second Place Under 7-2 Defeat By Cubs

BROOKLYN, May 20.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers moved into first place in the National League today by taking both ends of a double header from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-2 and 4-3. The Dodgers took over the top from the Philadelphia Phils who lost to Chicago.

Carl Furillo singled home Bobby Morgan with the winning run in the second game which went eleven innings and was completed under the lights.

The Pirates did all of their scoring of the nightcap in the second inning to take a 3-0 lead. The Dodgers pecked away at Murray Dickson with single runs in the fifth and eighth and tied the score with a run in the ninth.

HUSKIES WIN

OAKLAND, Calif., May 20.—(AP)—The Washington Huskies defeated California by the scantest of margins in their 40th annual regatta here today.

GIANTS TAKE TWO

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Lefties Dave Koslo and Monte Kennedy came up with brilliant pitching jobs today as the New York Giants took both ends of a double header from the Cincinnati Reds, 8-0 and 4-3.

Kennedy started both games. In the opener he pitched to only one batter and then gave way to Koslo. This maneuver came about because both Manager Leo Durocher of the Giants and Luke Sewell of the Reds did not name their starting pitchers until just before the game started.

Durocher wanted Kennedy to face Ken Raffensberger and when it was known that Ewell Blackwell would start for the Reds, Kennedy was lifted after facing one batter which he had to do according to the rules.

Koslo stopped the Reds on two singles while the Giants pounded Blackwell and two relief pitchers for 14 hits including a three run homer by Rookie Monte Irvin. Alvin Dark chipped in with four hits.

Kennedy limited the Reds to four hits in beating Raffensberger and Willie Ramsdell in the nightcap. Two of the blows however were home runs by Bob Usher and Bob Adams which resulted in all of Cincinnati runs.

FRANCE, SWEDEN NET TEAMS WIN

Advance In European Zone Davis Cup Play; Italy Leads Luxembourg

LONDON, May 20. —(AP)— France and Sweden won their way into the third round of European zone Davis Cup play today as Italy's defending zone champions captured a 2-0 lead over Luxembourg.

France and Sweden captured both their opening singles matches yesterday and today they won the decisive doubles contests.

The French eliminated Switzerland at Paris when Robert Abdesselam and Paul Remy defeated Rene Buser and Jean Pierre Blondel, 6-3, 6-4, 8-6. France made the final score 4-0 as Bernard Destremeau defeated Georges Grange, 6-2, 6-3, 8-6.

The fifth match was halted by rain and since it had no bearing on the series, the team captains decided to skip it. France's Jacques Thomas was leading Max Albrecht, 7-5, 6-4, 1-6, 1-0.

Sweden moved up at Norway's expense. Lennart Bergelin and Sven Davisson vanquished Thorgny Haanes and Nils Erik Hessen, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2, at Oslo for a 3-0 edge. The remaining two singles matches will be held tomorrow.

Italy's favored courtman swept to two easy victories in the opening singles contests with Luxembourg. Rolando Del Bello routed Geza Werthem, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2, and Gianni Cucelli subdued Gaston Wampach, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1. The doules match will be played tomorrow at Mondorf-les-bains, Luxembourg.

The winner of the Italy-Luxembourg series will face the survivor of the Belgium-Yugoslav matches.

SANFORD HURLS YANKS PAST CHISOX, 3 TO 1

VICTORY ENABLES BOMBERS TO HOLD ON TO LOOP LEAD

Tigers Remain On Heels Of Pacemakers With 5-3 Win Over A's

CHICAGO, May 20. —(AP)— Fred Sanford may have saved his job today as he pitched the New York victory cemented the Yanks' grip Yankees to a 3-1 six-hit triumph on first place.

Sanford is one of the players mentioned in a deal that would bring a lefthand pitcher to the Yanks from the White Sox.

Bob Porterfield was originally scheduled to pitch today but Manager Casey Stengel switched to Sanford and the veteran righthander came through with his first complete game of the season.

The Yanks scored in the second inning on a walk, single and double by Billy Johnson. They picked up another in the fifth on a walk, sacrifice and double by Phil Rizzuto. The Yanks' final run crossed in the seventh when Johnson singled, raced to third as Gus Zernial let the ball get away for a two base error and scored on a single by Cliff Mapes.

Sanford blanked the White Sox until the seventh when Phil Masi and Gordon Goldsberry doubled to account for the lone Chicago run.

The victory was the Yanks' fourth straight. The loss was Chicago's 12th in their last 13 starts.

DOUBLE PLAYS HELP

DETROIT, May 20. —(AP)— The Detroit Tigers came up with five double plays in the first five innings to help young Art Houtteman post a 5-3 win over the Philadelphia Athletics today.

All the Tiger twin killings were engineered by the second baseman Gerry Priddy — Shortstop Johnny Lipon — First Baseman Dick Kryhoski combination. The A's came up with a pair of DP's in those same innings but neither team could get another the rest of the way.

The record number of double plays by one team for a single game is seven—set by the New York Yankees in 1942. On three occasions teams have made nine together in a single game.

Detroit bagged four runs in a big six-hit first inning off little Bobby Shantz, who absorbed his second loss as against three wins.

Weak End Notes

Writing about the odd sport of spearing fish under water, Ralph (Bradenton, Fla.) Warner concludes it would be no sport for politicians. "The first requirement," he says, "is to be able to hold your breath for at least a minute and a half."

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's SOLUNAR TABLES. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

HUSKIES WIN

OAKLAND, Calif., May 20.—(AP)—The Washington Huskies defeated California by the scantest of margins in their 40th annual regatta here today.

GIANTS TAKE TWO

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Lefties Dave Koslo and Monte Kennedy came up with brilliant pitching jobs today as the New York Giants took both ends of a double header from the Cincinnati Reds, 8-0 and 4-3.

Kennedy started both games. In the opener he pitched to only one batter and then gave way to Koslo. This maneuver came about because both Manager Leo Durocher of the Giants and Luke Sewell of the Reds did not name their starting pitchers until just before the game started.

Durocher wanted Kennedy to face Ken Raffensberger and when it was known that Ewell Blackwell would start for the Reds, Kennedy was lifted after facing one batter which he had to do according to the rules.

Koslo stopped the Reds on two singles while the Giants pounded Blackwell and two relief pitchers for 14 hits including a three run homer by Rookie Monte Irvin. Alvin Dark chipped in with four hits.

Kennedy limited the Reds to four hits in beating Raffensberger and Willie Ramsdell in the nightcap. Two of the blows however were home runs by Bob Usher and Bob Adams which resulted in all of Cincinnati runs.

FRANCE, SWEDEN NET TEAMS WIN

Advance In European Zone Davis Cup Play; Italy Leads Luxembourg

LONDON, May 20. —(AP)— France and Sweden won their way into the third round of European zone Davis Cup play today as Italy's defending zone champions captured a 2-0 lead over Luxembourg.

France and Sweden captured both their opening singles matches yesterday and today they won the decisive doubles contests.

The French eliminated Switzerland at Paris when Robert Abdesselam and Paul Remy defeated Rene Buser and Jean Pierre Blondel, 6-3, 6-4, 8-6. France made the final score 4-0 as Bernard Destremeau defeated Georges Grange, 6-2, 6-3, 8-6.

The fifth match was halted by rain and since it had no bearing on the series, the team captains decided to skip it. France's Jacques Thomas was leading Max Albrecht, 7-5, 6-4, 1-6, 1-0.

Sweden moved up at Norway's expense. Lennart Bergelin and Sven Davisson vanquished Thorgny Haanes and Nils Erik Hessen, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2, at Oslo for a 3-0 edge. The remaining two singles matches will be held tomorrow.

Italy's favored courtman swept to two easy victories in the opening singles contests with Luxembourg. Rolando Del Bello routed Geza Werthem, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2, and Gianni Cucelli subdued Gaston Wampach, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1. The doules match will be played tomorrow at Mondorf-les-bains, Luxembourg.

The winner of the Italy-Luxembourg series will face the survivor of the Belgium-Yugoslav matches.

Upping Of La. Oil Allowable Announced

BATON ROUGE, La., May 20.—(AP)—The Louisiana oil production allowable will be raised about 40,000 to 45,000 barrels in June, Commissioner of Conservation S. L. Digby said.

Digby said the allowable—the total amount of oil which all the wells in the state are allowed to produce daily—would be restored to approximately the level of last February by returning to the depth brackets in effect then.

The allowable was cut some 40,000 barrels in March, when purchasers gave notice of intention they would reduce their demand for Louisiana oil.

But Digby said recent market hearings indicated that crude stock levels in Louisiana and the country at large are at a point indicating that in increase is advisable.

TEXAS OIL QUOTA UPPED BY GROUP

R. R. Commission Orders Extra Day Of Crude Flow For June; Allowable 140,500 Bbls.

By Bo Byers

AUSTIN, Tex., May 20.—(AP)—Texas oil production got a shot in the arm. The railroad commission Wednesday ordered an extra day of crude oil flow for June, sending the new allowable 140,500 barrels above the present daily average.

Next month's permissive production will start at 2,366,376 barrels daily. The present allowable is 2,225,876.

The commission's action caused some surprise in view of the fact that advance nominations for June were up only 7,551 barrels over May, the U. S. bureau of mines forecast was up only 30,000 barrels, and importing companies said at yesterday's hearing they likely would not cut imports the next six months.

Independent producers who claim imports are crippling domestic production gained further encouragement from commission member Ernest O. Thompson.

He repeatedly indicated the belief that Texas could add two or three producing days without pushing national stocks of crude and products too high. He strongly hinted at another increase in the number of producing days in July.

R. L. Foree of Dallas, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, expressed gratitude for the commission's efforts to solve the import problem.

However, he was displeased by the testimony of top oil officials that they consider present imports in balance with domestic production.

"It is highly disappointing that the major United States oil importing companies have not come forth with firm commitments to reduce imports to levels that would permit an immediate recapture of this state's rightful share of the domestic market." Foree said in a prepared statement to the press.

The commission estimated June production of natural gasoline and distillate at 305,089 barrels daily, making Texas' total petroleum allowable 2,671,465 barrels per day.

The next statewide oil proration hearing will be held June 15 in Austin.

Domestic Production May Approach 1948's Peak

By Max B. Skelton

HOUSTON, Tex., May 20.—(AP)—Crude oil importers have no cutback on schedule but they think domestic production may approach its 1948 peak by the end of the year.

Texas officials, taking the importers at their word, have made it clear the state intends to claim its share of the anticipated increases.

They have warned a 140,000 barrel daily hike ordered for Texas June crude production allowables may be only a beginning.

The state's June allowable is 2,366,376 barrels daily, considerably above the 1,871,938 average of last July when a seventh consecutive cutback became effective.

But Texas officials and operators think the June allowable still is too far below the 2,717,019 barrel peak of early December 1948.

This became evident this week after the Texas railroad commission heard top executives of 12 major oil importing companies testify as to plans for the balance of the year.

The commission, in calling the executives to Austin, indicated they are tired of being caught in the middle in the argument over imports.

Texas law charges the commission with limiting crude production to market demand. Most operators have placed all the blame for the sharp production cutbacks on foreign oil imports replacing domestic output.

Most of the importers advised the commission:

1. Foreign oil imports are not hurting the domestic industry.

2. No increase can be expected in imports the balance of the year.

3. Texas now could stand from one to three additional production days in view of increased domestic demand.

Eugene Holman, president of Standard Oil Company New Jersay), predicted a sharp increase in demand for domestic crude.

By the end of the year, he said, demand east of the Rocky Mountains will be 400,000 barrels a day higher than the January-April daily average.

Testimony from the 12 companies indicated crude and refined products imports the last six months of the year will approximate 820,000 barrels daily. This compares with an 879,000 barrel daily March estimate made by the department of commerce.

The importers were unanimous in a belief more harm than good would develop from congress trying to solve the imports problem.

S. A. Swensrud, president of Gulf Oil Corporation, thinks the problem is solving itself.

He said:

"With over-all demand for oil on the upgrade, it may be anticipated with considerable confidence the so-called import problem is undergoing a natural solution.

He warned government interference with this solution would weaken, not strengthen, the oil economy.

R. G. Follis, Standard Oil Company of California board chairman, warned that imports control legislation would lead ultimately to federal control of the entire economic status of the industry.

There was indication in Washington congress would be most happy to see the problem solve itself.

A house interstate commerce subcommittee which has been studying petroleum imports advised congress, in effect, to wait and see what happens.

Congress was told immediate action would be nedd only if imports continu to increase.

The subcommittee thought current negotiations with Great Britain might aid in finding a solution by restoring foreign markets to American owned overseas companies.

It was Ernest O. Thompson, senior member of the Texas railroad commission, who warned that Texas will seek its full share of any anticipated demand increases.

He said Texas can increase its output in July and again in August "if the market demand develops as forecasted."

"Texas easily can move up three more days in daily production without taking more than its fair share of the nation's market demand," he said.

Backing his comments with statistics, Thompson said Texas has 56 per cent of the nation's oil reserves but now is producing only about 41 per cent of domestic crude output.

OIL PRODUCTION CONTINUES CLIMB

Records For Largest Yield In '50 Set In Tex., Miss., Mich.; La. Records Gain

TULSA, Okla., May 20—(AP)—The United States daily average crude oil production continued to climb during the week end May 13, reaching 5,045,325 barrels, the Oil and Gas Journal reported.

It was an increase of 42,425 barrels over the previous week, and the second straight week the total was over the 5,000,000 - barrel mark. The two weeks were the only ones this year with that production level.

Three states had new 1950 highs for the last week. Texas was up 14,600 barrels to a total of 2,085,100. Mississippi gained 7,550 barrels to 101,450 and Michigan increased 1,200 to 46,800.

The biggest jump, however, was in Kansas, up 23,400 barrels to 280,550. Louisiana gained 2,725 barrels to 522,300 and Oklahoma was up 2,400 to 406,600.

Sizeable losses were reported for the Rocky Mountain area, Arkansas and Indiana. Each of the latter were down 1,500 barrels to 79,100 and 27,900 respectively, and Illinois was off 1,100 to 175,400.

The eastern fields dropped 400 barrels to 61,100, Kentucky was off 400 to 26,100 and Benraska fell 100 to 1,400.

Florida's production was unchanged at 1,050 barrels.

Marine Is Cleared In Secret Slaying

PONTIAC, Mich., May 20.—(AP)—Cleared in the family-secret slaying of his father, 28-year-old Carson James was ready today to report back to duty with the United States marines.

A circuit court jury of 11 women and one man decided yesterday that the stocky, blond marine sergeant shot his father, 52-year-old Stanley James, in self-defense on Thanksgiving day, 1947.

Carson admitted killing the elder James, described by trial defense witnesses as "brutal," "quarrelsome," and an "abusive tyrant." The son had been charged with murder.

He and a brother buried the body in a cowshed on their mother's farm, and the whole family of nine kept the slaying a secret until a married sister disclosed it while talking in her sleep.

Cheers rose in the crowded Oakland county courtroom when the verdict was announced. The jury deliberated five and a half hours.

Young James and his mother, Mrs. Ruth James, 54, embraced.

Through tears the mother said: "God bless you son. Our prayers were answered."

Afterwards she told reporters "Carson's aquittal is a load off my heart and mind because I knew some day it (the slaying) would have to come out."

SENIORS WILL PRESENT PLAY

Broadway Success, 'Jenny Kissed Me' To Be Given By St. Matthew's

St. Matthew's High School seniors will present a recent Broadway hit, "Jenny Kissed Me," Wednesday, May 24, at 8 p.m. in their new gym. This three act comedy by Jean Kerr was first produced in New York in 1949.

"Jenny Kissed Me" is an entertaining play of universal appeal. Jenny is a charming girl who comes to live in the household of an elderly priest. She has been brought there by her aunt, Mrs. Deazy, a scheming but faithful housekeeper at the establishment. Jenny, 18, is the precise opposite of the kind of smart sophisticated young miss that puzzles and exasperates Father Moynihan. The plot is concerned with the priest's clumsy but sympathetic endeavors to make Jenny attractive to the boys. He is so successful that he nearly overplays his hand. A romance runs through the play, which ends as Jenny would like it. Michael Saunders, an older man trying hard to be fair and give Jenny a chanc to meet eligible youngsters takes a chance with his own future. Owen Parkside, an amusing but somewhat over-enthusiastic follower of jive, taks a fancy to Jenny.

With the assistance of the characters mentioned above and several young girls somehow Jenny succeeds in becoming "hep" or so they think.

The cast includes: Father Moynihan, Richard Petrus; Michael Saunders, Tommy Elioff; Mrs. Deazy, Gloria Martinez; Sister Mary of the Angels Rosemary Torrance; Ann Savana; Miss Stearns, Lucille Tornatore; Mary Delaney, Jo Marie Scalla; Harry, Marcie Renaud; Jo Polly Riley; Own Parkside Joe Maggio; Mr. Parkside Lawrence Guidry; Priscilla, Betty Jane Shipp; Jenny, Deon Bezz.

Confession Deepens Mystery In Slaying

SAN RAFAEL, Calif., May 20.—(AP)—Folsom prison has a murder mystery—who kiled Inmate Ralph Borden?

Convicts Louis Smith and John Allen were convicted sentenced to death.

But yesterday, John R. Heydenfeldt, 22, a psychiatric patient in San Quentin prison, said he had knifed Borden. After pleading guilty of wounding his San Quentin cellmate, Lloyd Ballard, he told Judge Edward I. Butler:

"I want to confess it (the Borden slaying) and absolve Allen and Smith."

Told that automatically would get him a death penalty, the youth said:

"I know what it means. I want to die."

Heydenfeldt won't get that wish very soon, however. Prison officials said they will investigate carefuly before accepting or rejecting his confession.

The Great Smoky Mountains of North Carolina, with 200,000 acres still in virgin timber, contain the most extensive stands of virgin red spruce and hardwood forests in America.

AWARDS GIVEN CITY POLICE

Group Passes Successfully First Aid Course Conducted Here

Successful completion of many hours of study of the stanard Red Cross first aid course was accomplished by Monroe members of the police Dept who were awarded certificates by their instructor A. S. Huffman, of Northeast Junior College, the past week.

This important course resulted late last fall when T. O. Bancroft, named co-ordinator of the police department of Monroe, announced that he proposed to have all police officers schooled in the proper application of first aid. As soon as this became known, A. S. Huffman, dean of men, at Northeast Junior College, and well experienced in Red Cross work, especially first aid in which he has been in times past an instructor offered his services free of charge to Mr. Bancroft, which were readily accepted.

It was arranged that the policemen were to meet in their spare time in the city hall courtroom once a week for two hour periods. In all, 18 hours are required to complete the course which was as practical and streamlined as possible. In all 46 officers took the course. The instruction included such situations as the treatment for shock, the bandaging of wounds, stopping of the flow of blood from arteries, artificial respiration, antidotes for positions, what to do in case of suicide attempts, fracture of bones and the treatment of the patient, and the ability to discern the difference between such conditions as illness and intoxication which sometimes are confused.

The men took deep interest in the studies and made creditable grades in the tests that concluded the work, Mr. Huffman stated.

Mrs. W. J. Veasey, executive secretary of the local chapter of the American Red Cross, stated that she regarded this instruction of vital importance to those who took the course and with it may be the means of lifesaving in time of emergencies.

Sheriff Ready To Defend Himself

EL PASO, Tex., May 20.—(AP)—Sheriff Joe Campbell says he is ready to fight a $75,000 damage suit filed against him by Western Union for snipping the company's wires to an Anapra, N. M., race news service.

The company yesterday also asked a federal court injunction to prevent Campbell from carrying out a threat to cut the wires each time they are restored.

"I suppose they will be granted a temporary injunction," Campbell said last night. "But I don't believe there is a federal court in the land which would give them a permanent injunction."

Campbell sent a deputy up a pole just this side of the New Mexico border last Saturday night to cut the wires.

Besides Campbell, the suit filed yesterday named County Attorney Ernest Guinn, Assistant County Attorney William C. Collins and Deputy Sheriff Earl C. Hammock as defendants.

Bi-Partisan Foreign Policy Key Is In Hands Of Acheson

His Action To Determine Whether Cooperation Is Restored

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson is coming home from London next week with the key to the future of bipartisan foreign policy tucked away in his tan leather brief case.

What he does with it will critically influence the success of the still wobbly project to restore foreign policy cooperation between Republicans and Democrats.

Before he left Washington Acheson gave several Republican senators the clear impression he would report fully to them when he got home. They look forward to this report as an evidence of the extent to which Acheson is willing to go to in informing and consulting them.

How he handles the matter therefore will have a far-reaching effect on the future of what is loosely called bi-partisan foreign policy.

It is a loose and inaccurate term, in the opinion of Democratic and Republican leaders alike, because it covers too much ground. President Truman said the other day that bi-partisanship is misunderstood. It suggests something which does not exist in fact—a sweeping, two-party controversy over foreign affairs.

One of the problems before Acheson and Republican leaders in the weeks ahead is to define how far bi-partisanship, or as some prefer, non-partisanship, should go.

When John Foster Dulles became a Republican adviser to Acheson last month almost his first move was along this line. He felt he had to clarify his own position and he talked alike to Mr. Truman, Acheson, and Republicans at the capitol.

He told them his presence in the state department could not bind the Republican party to support administration policies. He said his contributions to policy-making would serve these purposes:

(1) To tighten consultations between the administration and Republican leaders in congress.

(2) To help strengthen U. S. policies by introducing new ideas from the Republican side into the inner councils of the state department.

A former New York senator and a veteran of diplomacy, Dulles was anxious to make his views plain to both sides at the outset of his work. Some Republicans had suspected that the president and Acheson were trying to get bi-partisanship at a cheap price by treating Dulles as a Republican party official spokesman. Dulles quickly cancelled out any thought that he had or sought such power.

John Sherman Cooper, former senator from Kentucky, joined Acheson's staff as Republican adviser for the London talks a few weeks ahead of Dulles' advent. He was not a foreign affairs expert, but was more acceptable to the Truman administration than Dulles, who aroused great White House bitterness during his senatorial campaign in New York last fall.

Yet Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.), friend and supporter of both Cooper and Dulles, felt Dulles actually was the most valuable person the Republicans could put into the state department, and finally Acheson recommended him to the president. Substantially Mr. Truman's answer was: "If that's what it takes to restore bi-partisanship, I agree."

The point of the whole Dulles-Cooper incident is that personalities and personal relations, political maneuver and good faith those rather than mechanical arrangements—are the stuff of bi-partisan cooperation in the field of foreign affairs.

Underlying this fact is another—that neither Dulles nor any other individual—can speak for the Republicans in even their own congressional leaders—Senate Minority Leader Wherry, for example—cannot commit the minority members individually to some future course of action.

This is quite different from the position of the majority party which, being in power, must have a program of action and a system of discipline that enables the leaders to say what it will do on specific issues.

Thus arises another point vital to an understanding of bi-partisan foreign policy. This is that while it is the responsibility of the ruling party to pursue a positive line of action—it is equally a function of the minority party to criticize and attack this line.

Republicans are virtually unanimous in stressing this when they talk about bi-partisanship.

Ohio's Senator Taft told this reporter that "in consultation on foreign policy, Republicans, of course, reserve the right to criticize, to suggest changes, and in the last analysis to reject, if agreement cannot be reached."

Senator Wherry, of Nebraska, minority leader, underscored the idea another way. Recalling that the Republican procedure for making party policy in congress is to hold a conference, he said:

"You could take a vote in the conference on some issue and the vote could be sympathetic to what the administration wants to do. But even by a conference vote you cannot bind the individual members."

Senator Millikin (Colo.), Republican conference chairman, commented "You can't give a blank check on bi-partisanship in foreign policy."

"Republican action in this field is limited to important, specific programs, particular major issues. There is a great host of things in day-to-day diplomacy which are not relevant to bi-partisan development."

The main objective of both parties, he said, should be to "strive for continuity of basic policy."

Senator Taft likewise feels that the important thing is to work toward agreement on the great basic issues and skip over relatively minor details. This implies avoidance of pinpricking attacks on the administration's handling of foreign affairs.

The basic force behind the bi-partisan approach to foreign policy is made up of two ideas The first is that if other countries are to rely on American cooperation they must know reasonably well what the United States will do in the future regardless of which party rules.

The second idea is that as things go today a major proposal by the administration—for example, the Marshal plan—in effect commits this country in the eyes of foreigners as soon as it is put forward; to avoid the disaster of having critically important projects vetoed by congress there should be generated early enough two-party support to give reasonable assurance of congressional approval.

Two-party cooperation in foreign affairs began during the war. From the United Nations, it spread under the leadership of Vandenberg and a succession of secretaries of state to include other issues, and notably the American fight against expanding Soviet Communism. It did not cover China, Argentina, Spain and other matters on which the administration did not consult Republicans.

Following Mr. Truman's 1948 election, and concurrent with the 1949 defeats for American foreign policy in China, Senator Vandenberg became ill and Dean Acheson, never too popular at the capitol, became secretary of State. The bi-partisan approach to foreign policy fell apart. State department prestige in congress, especially after Sentor McCarthy (R.-Wis.) entered the fray with his Communist dropped to a low mark.

Recently, establishment of closer contacts with both Republicans and Democrats on the hill, the admission of Cooper and Dulles to the department's inner councils and renewed protestations of support for bi-partisanship have constituted an effort to save what leaders of both parties consider a good thing.

Exactly what this thing is, however, remains to be agreed on.

JAMBOREE WILL BE GIVEN SPACE

Arthur Hugh Matthews To Be Reporter; In Eagle Scout Ranks

Arthur Hugh Matthews, prominent Monroe scout, will be the official reporter for the Ouachita Valley Council's National Jamboree contingent in June and July. J. W. Webster, chairman of the council's jamboree committee, has announced that Mr. Wilson Ewing, publisher of the New Star-Morning World, is sponsoring Scout Matthews to take care of all of the reportorial duties of the jamboree trip. Scout Matthews, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Matthews, 509 Hall street, is an Eagle scout and a member of Troop 28, sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church, in Monroe. He is well qualified for the jamboree position for which he has been selected. In addition to his scouting background, he has written for school and church organizations. He has served in several leadership capacities in his troop and, at the present time, is junior assistant scoutmaster of the troop. He has also served as an outstanding member of the camp staff at Camp Ki-Ro-Li in 1949.

The jamboree contingent, which is Louisiana's largest, will leave Monroe on June 25 and be away for two weeks, returning to Louisiana on July 10. In addition to the jamboree, the group will visit Gettysburg National Park, Natural Bridge, Virginia, Lookout Mountain, Tennessee, Washington, D. C., and other points of interest along the route.

Congressman Passman is working up the itinerary for the group's visit to the nation's capital. This visit will include such places as the federal bureau of investigation, bureau of printing and engraving, Arlington National Cemetery, Mount Vernon, Lincoln Memorial, Jefferson Memorial, Washington Monument, and the Smithsonian Institute.

At the jamboree these scouts will joinover 47,000 other scouts from all parts of the United States and many foreign countries. They will all camp together, using their own camping equipment and cooking all of their own meals in this huge camp city.

Upping Of La. Oil Allowable Announced

BATON ROUGE, La., May 20.—(AP)—The Louisiana oil production allowable will be raised about 40,000 to 45,000 barrels in June, Commissioner of Conservation S. L. Digby said.

Digby said the allowable—the total amount of oil which all the wells in the state are allowed to produce daily—would be restored to approximately the level of last February by returning to the depth brackets in effect then.

The allowable was cut some 40,000 barrels in March, when purchasers gave notice of intention they would reduce their demand for Louisiana oil.

But Digby said recent market hearings indicated that crude stock levels in Louisiana and the country at large are at a point indicating that in increase is advisable.

TEXAS OIL QUOTA UPPED BY GROUP

R. R. Commission Orders Extra Day Of Crude Flow For June; Allowable 140,500 Bbls.

By Bo Byers

AUSTIN, Tex., May 20.—(AP)—Texas oil production got a shot in the arm. The railroad commission Wednesday ordered an extra day of crude oil flow for June, sending the new allowable 140,500 barrels above the present daily average.

Next month's permissive production will start at 2,366,376 barrels daily. The present allowable is 2,225,876.

The commission's action caused some surprise in view of the fact that advance nominations for June were up only 7,551 barrels over May, the U. S. bureau of mines forecast was up only 30,000 barrels, and importing companies said at yesterday's hearing they likely would not cut imports the next six months.

Independent producers who claim imports are crippling domestic production gained further encouragement from commission member Ernest O. Thompson.

He repeatedly indicated the belief that Texas could add two or three producing days without pushing national stocks of crude and products too high. He strongly hinted at another increase in the number of producing days in July.

R. L. Foree of Dallas, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, expressed gratitude for the commission's efforts to solve the import problem.

However, he was displeased by the testimony of top oil officials that they consider present imports in balance with domestic production.

"It is highly disappointing that the major United States oil importing companies have not come forth with firm commitments to reduce imports to levels that would permit an immediate recapture of this state's rightful share of the domestic market." Foree said in a prepared statement to the press.

The commission estimated June production of natural gasoline and distillate at 305,089 barrels daily, making Texas' total petroleum allowable 2,671,465 barrels per day.

The next statewide oil proration hearing will be held June 15 in Austin.

Domestic Production May Approach 1948's Peak

By Max B. Skelton

HOUSTON, Tex., May 20.—(AP)—Crude oil importers have no cutback on schedule but they think domestic production may approach its 1948 peak by the end of the year.

Texas officials, taking the importers at their word, have made it clear the state intends to claim its share of the anticipated increases.

They have warned a 140,000 barrel daily hike ordered for Texas June crude production allowables may be only a beginning.

The state's June allowable is 2,366,376 barrels daily, considerably above the 1,871,938 average of last July when a seventh consecutive cutback became effective.

But Texas officials and operators think the June allowable still is too far below the 2,717,019 barrel peak of early December 1948.

This became evident this week after the Texas railroad commission heard top executives of 12 major oil importing companies testify as to plans for the balance of the year.

The commission, in calling the executives to Austin, indicated they are tired of being caught in the middle in the argument over imports.

Texas law charges the commission with limiting crude production to market demand. Most operators have placed all the blame for the sharp production cutbacks on foreign oil imports replacing domestic output.

Most of the importers advised the commission:

1. Foreign oil imports are not hurting the domestic industry.

2. No increase can be expected in imports the balance of the year.

3. Texas now could stand from one to three additional production days in view of increased domestic demand.

Eugene Holman, president of Standard Oil Company New Jersay), predicted a sharp increase in demand for domestic crude.

By the end of the year, he said, demand east of the Rocky Mountains will be 400,000 barrels a day higher than the January-April daily average.

Testimony from the 12 companies indicated crude and refined products imports the last six months of the year will approximate 820,000 barrels daily. This compares with an 879,000 barrel daily March estimate made by the department of commerce.

The importers were unanimous in a belief more harm than good would develop from congress trying to solve the imports problem.

S. A. Swensrud, president of Gulf Oil Corporation, thinks the problem is solving itself.

He said:

"With over-all demand for oil on the upgrade, it may be anticipated with considerable confidence the so-called import problem is undergoing a natural solution.

He warned government interference with this solution would weaken, not strengthen, the oil economy.

R. G. Follis, Standard Oil Company of California board chairman, warned that imports control legislation would lead ultimately to federal control of the entire economic status of the industry.

There was indication in Washington congress would be most happy to see the problem solve itself.

A house interstate commerce subcommittee which has been studying petroleum imports advised congress, in effect, to wait and see what happens.

Congress was told immediate action would be nedd only if imports continu to increase.

The subcommittee thought current negotiations with Great Britain might aid in finding a solution by restoring foreign markets to American owned overseas companies.

It was Ernest O. Thompson, senior member of the Texas railroad commission, who warned that Texas will seek its full share of any anticipated demand increases.

He said Texas can increase its output in July and again in August "if the market demand develops as forecasted."

"Texas easily can move up three more days in daily production without taking more than its fair share of the nation's market demand," he said.

Backing his comments with statistics, Thompson said Texas has 56 per cent of the nation's oil reserves but now is producing only about 41 per cent of domestic crude output.

OIL PRODUCTION CONTINUES CLIMB

Records For Largest Yield In '50 Set Ln Tex., Miss., Mich.; La. Records Gain

TULSA, Okla., May 20—(AP)—The United States daily average crude oil production continued to climb during the week end May 13, reaching 5,045,325 barrels, the Oil and Gas Journal reported.

It was an increase of 42,425 barrels over the previous week, and the second straight week the total was over the 5,000,000 - barrel mark. The two weeks were the only ones this year with that production level.

Three states had new 1950 highs for the last week. Texas was up 14,600 barrels to a total of 2,085,100. Mississippi gained 7,550 barrels to 101,450 and Michigan increased 1,200 to 46,800.

The biggest jump, however, was in Kansas, up 23,400 barrels to 280,550. Louisiana gained 2,725 barrels to 522,300 and Oklahoma was up 2,400 to 406,600.

Sizeable losses were reported for the Rocky Mountain area, Arkansas and Indiana. Each of the latter were down 1,500 barrels to 79,100 and 27,900 respectively, and Illinois was off 1,100 to 175,400.

The eastern fields dropped 400 barrels to 61,100, Kentucky was off 400 to 26,100 and Benraska fell 100 to 1,400.

Florida's production was unchanged at 1,050 barrels.

Marine Is Cleared In Secret Slaying

PONTIAC, Mich., May 20.—(AP)—Cleared in the family-secret slaying of his father, 28-year-old Carson James was ready today to report back to duty with the United States marines.

A circuit court jury of 11 women and one man decided yesterday that the stocky, blond marine sergeant shot his father, 52-year-old Stanley James, in self-defense on Thanksgiving day, 1947.

Carson admitted killing the elder James, described by trial defense witnesses as "brutal," "quarrelsome," and an "abusive tyrant." The son had been charged with murder.

He and a brother buried the body in a cowshed on their mother's farm, and the whole family of nine kept the slaying a secret until a married sister disclosed it while talking in her sleep.

Cheers rose in the crowded Oakland county courtroom when the verdict was announced. The jury deliberated five and a half hours.

Young James and his mother, Mrs. Ruth James, 54, embraced.

Through tears the mother said: "God bless you son. Our prayers were answered."

Afterwards she told reporters "Carson's aquittal is a load off my heart and mind because I knew some day it (the slaying) would have to come out."

SENIORS WILL PRESENT PLAY

Broadway Success, 'Jenny Kissed Me' To Be Given By St. Matthew's

St. Matthew's High School seniors will present a recent Broadway hit, "Jenny Kissed Me," Wednesday, May 24, at 8 p.m. in their new gym. This three act comedy by Jean Kerr was first produced in New York in 1949.

"Jenny Kissed Me" is an entertaining play of universal appeal. Jenny is a charming girl who comes to live in the household of an elderly priest. She has been brought there by her aunt, Mrs. Deazy, a scheming but faithful housekeeper at the establishment. Jenny, 18, is the precise opposite of the kind of smart sophisticated young miss that puzzles and exasperates Father Moynihan. The plot is concerned with the priest's clumsy but sympathetic endeavors to make Jenny attractive to the boys. He is so successful that he nearly overplays his hand. A romance runs through the play, which ends as Jenny would like it. Michael Saunders, an older man trying hard to be fair and give Jenny a chanc to meet eligible youngsters takes a chance with his own future. Owen Parkside, an amusing but somewhat over-enthusiastic follower of jive, taks a fancy to Jenny.

With the assistance of the characters mentioned above and several young girls somehow Jenny succeeds in becoming "hep" or so they think.

The cast includes: Father Moynihan, Richard Petrus; Michael Saunders, Tommy Elioff; Mrs. Deazy, Gloria Martinez; Sister Mary of the Angels Rosemary Torrance; Ann Savana; Miss Stearns, Lucille Tornatore; Mary Delaney, Jo Marie Scalia; Harry, Marcie Renaud; Jo Polly Riley; Own Parkside Joe Maggio; Mr. Parkside Lawrence Guidry; Priscilla, Betty Jane Shipp; Jenny, Deon Bezz.

Confession Deepens Mystery In Slaying

SAN RAFAEL, Calif., May 20.—(AP)—Folsom prison has a murder mystery—who kiled Inmate Ralph Borden?

Convicts Louis Smith and John Allen were convicted sentenced to death.

But yesterday, John R. Heydenfeldt, 22, a psychiatric patient in San Quentin prison, said he had knifed Borden. After pleading guilty of wounding his San Quentin cellmate, Lloyd Ballard, he told Judge Edward I. Butler:

"I want to confess it (the Borden slaying) and absolve Allen and Smith."

Told that automatically would get him a death penalty, the youth said:

"I know what it means. I want to die."

Heydenfeldt won't get that wish very soon, however. Prison officials said they will investigate carefully before accepting or rejecting his confession.

The Great Smoky Mountains of North Carolina, with 200,000 acres still in virgin timber, contain the most extensive stands of virgin red spruce and hardwood forests in America.

AWARDS GIVEN CITY POLICE

Group Passes Successfully First Aid Course Conducted Here

Successful completion of many hours of study of the stanard Red Cross first aid course was accomplished by Monroe members of the police Dept who were awarded certificates by their instructor A. S. Huffman, of Northeast Junior College, the past week.

This important course resulted late last fall when T. O. Bancroft, named co-ordinator of the police department of Monroe, announced that he proposed to have all police officers schooled in the proper application of first aid. As soon as this became known, A. S. Huffman, dean of men, at Northeast Junior College, and well experienced in Red Cross work, especially first aid in which he has been in times past an instructor offered his services free of charge to Mr. Bancroft, which were readily accepted.

It was arranged that the policemen were to meet in their spare time in the city hall courtroom once a week for two hour periods. In all, 18 hours are required to complete the course which was as practical and streamlined as possible. In all 46 officers took the course. The instruction included such situations as the treatment for shock, the bandaging of wounds, stopping of the flow of blood from arteries, artificial respiration, antidotes for positions, what to do in case of suicide attempts, fracture of bones and the treatment of the patient, and the ability to discern the difference between such conditions as illness and intoxication which sometimes are confused.

The men took deep interest in the studies and made creditable grades in the tests that concluded the work, Mr. Huffman stated.

Mrs. W. J. Veasey, executive secretary of the local chapter of the American Red Cross, stated that she regarded this instruction of vital importance to those who took the course and with it may be the means of lifesaving in time of emergencies.

Sheriff Ready To Defend Himself

EL PASO, Tex., May 20.—(AP)—Sheriff Joe Campbell says he is ready to fight a $75,000 damage suit filed against him by Western Union for snipping the company's wires to an Anapra, N. M., race news service.

The company yesterday also asked a federal court injunction to prevent Campbell from carrying out a threat to cut the wires each time they are restored.

"I suppose they will be granted a temporary injunction," Campbell said last night. "But I don't believe there is a federal court in the land which would give them a permanent injunction."

Campbell sent a deputy up a pole just this side of the New Mexico border last Saturday night to cut the wires.

Besides Campbell, the suit filed yesterday named County Attorney Ernest Guinn, Assistant County Attorney William C. Collins and Deputy Sheriff Earl C. Hammock as defendants.

Bi-Partisan Foreign Policy Key Is In Hands Of Acheson

His Action To Determine Whether Cooperation Is Restored

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson is coming home from London next week with the key to the future of bipartisan foreign policy tucked away in his tan leather brief case.

What he does with it will critically influence the success of the still wobbly project to restore foreign policy cooperation between Republicans and Democrats.

Before he left Washington Acheson gave several Republican senators the clear impression he would report fully to them when he got home. They look forward to this report as an evidence of the extent to which Acheson is willing to go to in informing and consulting them.

How he handles the matter therefore will have a far-reaching effect on the future of what is loosely called bi-partisan foreign policy.

It is a loose and inaccurate term, in the opinion of Democratic and Republican leaders alike, because it covers too much ground. President Truman said the other day that bi-partisanship is misunderstood. It suggests something which does not exist in fact—a sweeping, two-party controversy over foreign affairs.

One of the problems before Acheson and Republican leaders in the weeks ahead is to define how far bi-partisanship, or as some prefer, non-partisanship, should go.

When John Foster Dulles became a Republican adviser to Acheson last month almost his first move was along this line. He felt he had to clarify his own position and he talked alike to Mr. Truman, Acheson, and Republicans at the capitol.

He told them his presence in the state department could not bind the Republican party to support administration policies. He said his contributions to policy-making would serve these purposes:

(1) To tighten consultations between the administration and Republican leaders in congress.

(2) To help strengthen U. S. policies by introducing new ideas from the Republican side into the inner councils of the state department.

A former New York senator and a veteran of diplomacy, Dulles was anxious to make his views plain to both sides at the outset of his work. Some Republicans had suspected that the president and Acheson were trying to get bi-partisanship at a cheap price by treating Dulles as a Republican party official spokesman. Dules quickly cancelled out any thought that he had or sought such power.

John Sherman Cooper, former senator from Kentucky, joined Acheson's staff as Republican adviser for the London talks a few weeks ahead of Dulles' advent. He was not a foreign affairs expert, but was more acceptable to the Truman administration than Dulles, who aroused great White House bitterness during his senatorial campaign in New York last fall.

Yet Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.), friend and supporter of both Cooper and Dulles, felt Dulles actually was the most valuable person the Republicans could put into the state department, and finally Acheson recommended him to the president. Substantially Mr. Truman's answer was: "If that's what it takes to restore bi-partisanship, I agree."

The point of the whole Dulles-Cooper incident is that personalities and personal relations, political maneuver and good faith those rather than mechanical arrangements—are the stuff of bipartisan cooperation in the field of foreign affairs.

Underlying this fact is another—that neither Dulles nor any other individual—can speak for the Republicans in even their own congressional leaders—Senate Minority Leader Wherry, for example—cannot commit the minority members individually to some future course of action.

This is quite different from the position of the majority party which, being in power, must have a program of action and a system of discipline that enables the leaders to say what it will do on specific issues.

Thus arises another point vital to an understanding of bi-partisan foreign policy. This is that while it is the responsibility of the ruling party to pursue a positive line of action—it is equally a function of the minority party to criticize and attack this line.

Republicans are virtually unanimous in stressing this when they talk about bi-partisanship.

Ohio's Senator Taft told this reporter that "in consultation on foreign policy, Republicans, of course, reserve the right to criticize, to suggest changes, and in the last analysis to reject, if agreement cannot be reached."

Senator Wherry, of Nebraska, minority leader, underscored the idea another way. Recalling that the Republican procedure for making party policy in congress is to hold a conference, he said:

"You could take a vote in the conference on some issue and the vote could be sympathetic to what the administration wants to do. But even by a conference vote you cannot bind the individual members."

Senator Millikin (Colo.), Republican conference chairman, commented "You can't give a blank check on bi-partisanship in foreign policy."

"Republican action in this field is limited to important, specific programs, particular major issues. There is a great host of things in day-to-day diplomacy which are not relevant to bi-partisan development."

The main objective of both parties, he said, should be to "strive for continuity of basic policy."

Senator Taft likewise feels that the important thing is to work toward agreement on the great basic issues and skip over relatively minor details. This implies avoidance of pinpricking attacks on the administration's handling of foreign affairs.

The basic force behind the bipartisan approach to foreign policy is made up of two ideas. The first is that if other countries are to rely on American cooperation they must know reasonably well what the United States will do in the future regardless of which party rules.

The second idea is that as things go today a major proposal by the administration—for example, the Marshal plan—in effect commits this country in the eyes of foreigners as soon as it is put forward; to avoid the disaster of having critically important projects vetoed by congress there should be generated early enough two-party support to give reasonable assurance of congressional approval.

Two-party cooperation in foreign affairs began during the war. From the United Nations, it spread under the leadership of Vandenberg and a succession of secretaries of state to include other issues, and notably the American fight against expanding Soviet Communism. It did not cover China, Argentina, Spain and other matters on which the administration did not consult Republicans.

Following Mr. Truman's 1948 election, and concurrent with the 1949 defeats for American foreign policy in China, Senator Vandenberg became ill and Dean Acheson, never too popular at the capitol, became secretary of State. The bipartisan approach to foreign policy fell apart. State department prestige in congress, especially after Sentor McCarthy (R.-Wis.) entered the fray with his Communist dropped to a low mark.

Recently, establishment of closer contacts with both Republicans and Democrats on the hill, the admission of Cooper and Dulles to the department's inner councils and renewed protestations of support for bi-partisanship have constituted an effort to save what leaders of both parties consider a good thing.

Exactly what this thing is, however, remains to be agreed on.

Arthur Hugh Matthews To Be Reporter; In Eagle Scout Ranks

Arthur Hugh Matthews, prominent Monroe scout, will be the official reporter for the Ouachita Valley Council's National Jamboree contingent in June and July. J. W. Webster, chairman of the council's jamboree committee, has announced that Mr. Wilson Ewing, publisher of the New Star-Morning World, is sponsoring Scout Matthews to take care of all of the reportorial duties of the jamboree trip. Scout Matthews, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Matthews, 509 Hall street, is an Eagle scout and a member of Troop 28, sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church, in Monroe. He is well qualified for the jamboree position for which he has been selected. In addition to his scouting background, he has written for school and church organizations. He has served in several leadership capacities in his troop and, at the present time, is junior assistant scoutmaster of the troop. He has also served as an outstanding member of the camp staff at Camp Ki-Ro-Li in 1949.

The jamboree contingent, which is Louisiana's largest, will leave Monroe on June 25 and be away for two weeks, returning to Louisiana on July 10. In addition to the jamboree, the group will visit Gettysburg National Park, Natural Bridge, Virginia, Lookout Mountain, Tennessee, Washington, D. C., and other points of interest along the route.

Congressman Passman is working up the itinerary for the group's visit to the nation's capital. This visit will include such places as the federal bureau of investigation, bureau of printing and engraving, Arlington National Cemetery, Mount Vernon, Lincoln Memorial, Jefferson Memorial, Washington Monument, and the Smithsonian Institute.

At the jamboree these scouts will joinover 47,000 other scouts from all parts of the United States and many foreign countries. They will all camp together, using their own camping equipment and cooking all of their own meals in this huge camp city.

Trygve Lie Confers With Robert Schuman

PARIS, May 20. —(AP)— French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman and United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie conferred for an hour today. Schuman said they had discussed the possibility of a security council meeting with the big powers represented by heads of state or foreign ministers.

Schuman declined to express the French viewpoint on such a question. He said that "It must, of course, be discussed by all members."

WORLD MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 20—(AP)—The stock market finished a week of rising prices with fresh gains today.

Almost all of the advances were scored in a few minutes of fast trading at the opening of business. After coasting along for an hour or so, a mild flurry of demand hiked prices a little more.

Closing quotations were up fractions to around a point and at or near the best levels of the day.

There were a few holdouts to the forward move, notably rubber stocks.

Trading was fairly active throughout the two-hour day although a good part of the activity was concentrated in early dealings. Sales approached 900,000 shares, against last Saturday's 570,000.

For the fifth session in a row the market touched a new four-year peak. Prospects of good business generally for months ahead provided strong support.

Corporate bonds were on a firm price footing.

nificance in Berlin, whose citizens are constantly reminded of Soviet-sponsored Communist pressure on all sides.

The troops who marched there today have been trained to back up West Berlin police during the "Whitsuntide" march next weekend. The Communist-controlled East German Press has boasted that the march might turn into a "putsch" to take over the sectors of the city now held by the Western Allies.

The three western commandants today demanded Soviet assurance that free communications between Berlin and Western Germany will not be interrupted over next weekend.

The request was made after East German police had announced they would block interzonal traffic on the Autobahn and re-route it by secondary roads next weekend in order to facilitate the "shipping of several hundred thousand young peacefighters to Berlin."

In Frankfurt and Heidelberg were American forces are more heavily concentrated, Armed Forces Day parades were bigger and longer than in Berlin.

Germans as well as Allies were admitted to Berlin's Tempelhof Airdrome to witness a demonstration by the air force of loading and unloading operations on C54's, the big four-engined planes that broke the Russian blockade of Berlin.

German sailors were taken aboard a U. . destroyer in the North Sea port of Bremerhaven.

Jet fighters streaked in formation over Munich, Erding, Neurnberg and as far as Linz, Austria. "Flying Boxcars" simulated the transportation of troops by air in flights over Frankfurt, Heidelberg, Stuttgart, Wiesbaden and Augsburg.

The day was celebrated even in the heart of the Russian camp—in Moscow. There military, air and naval attaches of the U. S. embassy played host to Russian armed forces representatives and most diplomats in one of the biggest receptions in the history of he diplomatic colony.

The party was at Spasso House, residence of U. S. Ambassador Allan G. Kirk.

In Duesseldorf a former German army colonel who just returned from a Russian prisoner-of-war-camp said the Russian people are being conditioned for war with the United States and have begun storing huge quantities of food and supplies.

He was George Feldmann, who said that during his six years in Russian prison camps he had seen an increase in the tempo of anti-west feeling, particularly anti-U. S. feeling.

"The Russian people think that war with America will come soon," he said. "They are constantly told that the United States wants to fight Russi. in order to rob her. But from what I saw I do not believe the Russians are prepared to wage a war yet."

men.

In the present situation, however, women do not play an important enough part in our life to do all they might, said the judge, and for the best results for all their roles should be enlarged.

Reasons for the present inequality of women in the social, political and economic fields mentioned by the Texas jurist included the prejudice against feminine leadership, the "humble attitude" of many women, lack of self-confidence and a sense of responsibility in many women and "just plain inertia."

Judge Hughes cited the recent history of the nation and the world to emphasize the growing participation in local and national affairs and economic life enjoyed by the modern woman. "However," she added, women today are not completely free from the restrictions and discriminations of the past."

Suggested by the judge as constructive steps in the struggle for complete equality were a change in the personal attitudes of many women, a campaign to swing public opinion on the side of the women's aims and a willingness to fight for the personal principles involved.

Banquet ceremonies were presided over by Mrs. Gladys Miles. Appearing on the entertainment section of the evening were three well-known Monroe musical personalities, Mrs. Camille Wood, singer, and pianists Mrs. Nell Bennett and Miss Jane Wallace, student at O. P. H. S.

The organization luncheon on Saturday featured an address by Congressman Otto E. Passman of Louisiana's fifth congressional district. Passcan, introduced by Mrs. Pauline Welch, who had charge of the program, discussed the important phases of conservation, in connection with the luncheon theme, "Keep Louisiana Green."

Prefacing his remarks with the announcement that he had always been a champion of the cause of equal rights and pay for women and has followed the practice in his business dealings, the lawmaker announced his determination to continue the fight for equal rights.

His discussion of the general topic covered not only conservation of natural resources, but also "the conservation and preservation of our present form of government and the American way of life."

Passman said history revealed that enterprise had begun the campaign for conservation, especially in the fields of reforestation, long before government took a hand in the conservation field.

The drive for reforestation, said the congressman, has begun to achieve its aims, in that timber resources and tree growth were now striking a balance with lumber production. According to Passman, the South, especially, displayed a bright future as one of the centers of the national timber industry.

Conservation of the soil, said Passman, is a cause which as yet has shown less favorable results. He announced his support of soil conservation projects, declaring that present damage by erosion and other causes were threatening the American standard of living.

In a discussion of "conservation of our economy," the congressman charged too liberal and too much federal aid were threatening bankruptcy for the nation, and that federal expenditures and the dependence on Washington funds must be cut.

In closing, Passman urged the women to support candidates for public office who would "think of the next generation and nor merely of the next elecgion."

The final business meeting of organization officials, a post-convention board breakfast, will be held at the Frances Sunday morning.

At 10:30 this morning, convention delegates will conclude the social features of the meeting at an al fresco luncheon at the home of William Grasse, south of Monroe.

WORLD MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 20—(AP)—The stock market finished a week of rising prices with fresh gains today.

Almost all of the advances were scored in a few minutes of fast trading at the opening of business. After coasting along for an hour or so, a mild flurry of demand hiked prices a little more.

Closing quotations were up fractions to around a point and at or near the best levels of the day.

There were a few holdouts to the forward move, notably rubber stocks.

Trading was fairly active throughout the two-hour day although a good part of the activity was concentrated in early dealings. Sales approached 900,000 shares, against last Saturday's 570,000.

For the fifth session in a row the market touched a new four-year peak. Prospects of good business generally for months ahead provided strong support.

Corporate bonds were on a firm price footing.

nificance in Berlin, whose citizens are constantly reminded of Soviet-sponsored Communist pressure on all sides.

The troops who marched there today have been trained to back up West Berlin police during the 'Whitsuntide" march next weekend. The Communist-controlled East German Press has boasted that the march might turn into a "putsch" to take over the sectors of the city now held by the Western Allies.

The three western commandants today demanded Soviet assurance that free communications between Berlin and Western Germany will not be interrupted over next weekend.

The request was made after East German police had announced they would block interzonal traffic on the Autobahn and re-route it by secondary roads next weekend in order to facilitate the "shipping of several hundred thousand young peacefighters to Berlin."

In Frankfurt and Heidelberg were American forces are more heavily concentrated, Armed Forces Day parades were bigger and longer than in Berlin.

Germans as well as Allies were admitted to Berlin's Tempelhof Airdrome to witness a demonstration by the air force of loading and unloading operations on C54's, the big four-engined planes that broke the Russian blockade of Berlin.

German sailors were taken aboard a U. . destroyer in the North Sea port of Bremerhaven.

Jet fighters streaked in formation over Munich, Erding, Neurnberg and as far as Linz, Austria. "Flying Boxcars" simulated the transportation of troops by air in flights over Frankfurt, Heidelberg, Stuttgart, Wiesbaden and Augsburg.

The day was celebrated even in the heart of the Russian camp—in Moscow. There military, air and naval attaches of the U. S. embassy played host to Russian armed forces representatives and most diplomats in one of the biggest receptions in the history of he diplomatic colony.

The party was at Spasso House, residence of U. S. Ambassador Allan G. Kirk.

In Duesseldorf a former German army colonel who just returned from a Russian prisoner-of-war-camp said the Russian people are being conditioned for war with the United States and have begun storing huge quantities of food and supplies.

He was George Feldmann, who said that during his six years in Russian prison camps he had seen an increase in the tempo of anti-west feeling, particularly anti-U. S. feeling.

"The Russian people think that war with America will come soon," he said. "They are constantly told that the United States wants to fight Russi. in order to rob her. But from what I saw I do not believe the Russians are prepared to wage a war yet."

men.

In the present situation, however, women do not play an important enough part in our life to do all they might, said the judge, and for the best results for all their roles should be enlarged.

Reasons for the present inequality of women in the social, political and economic fields mentioned by the Texas jurist included the prejudice against feminine leadership, the "humble attitude" of many women, lack of self-confidence and a sense of responsibility in many women and "just plain inertia."

Judge Hughes cited the recent history of the nation and the world to emphasize the growing participation in local and national affairs and economic life enjoyed by the modern woman. "However," she added, women today are not completely free from the restrictions and discriminations of the past."

Suggested by the judge as constructive steps in the struggle for complete equality were a change in the personal attitudes of many women, a campaign to swing public opinion on the side of the women's aims and a willingness to fight for the personal principles involved.

Banquet ceremonies were presided over by Mrs. Gladys Miles. Appearing on the entertainment section of the evening were three well-known Monroe musical personalities, Mrs. Camille Wood, singer, and pianists Mrs. Nell Bennett and Miss Jane Wallace, student at O. P. H. S.

The organization luncheon on Saturday featured an address by Congressman Otto E. Passman of Louisiana's fifth congressional district. Passcan, introduced by Mrs. Pauline Welch, who had charge of the program, discussed the important phases of conservation, in connection with the luncheon theme. "Keep Louisiana Green."

Prefacing his remarks with the announcement that he had always been a champion of the cause of equal rights and pay for women and has followed the practice in his business dealings, the lawmaker announced his determination to continue the fight for equal rights.

His discussion of the general topic covered not only conservation of natural resources, but also "the conservation and preservation of our present form of government and the American way of life."

Passman said history revealed that enterprise had begun the campaign for conservation, especially in the fields of reforestation, long before government took a hand in the conservation field.

The drive for reforestation, said the congressman, has begun to achieve its aims, in that timber resources and tree growth were now striking a balance with lumber production. According to Passman, the South, especially, displayed a bright future as one of the centers of the national timber industry.

Conservation of the soil, said Passman, is a cause which as yet has shown less favorable results. He announced his support of soil conservation projects, declaring that present damage by erosion and other causes were threatening the American standard of living.

In a discussion of "conservation of our economy," the congressman charged too liberal and too much federal aid were threatening bankruptcy for the nation, and that federal expenditures and the dependence on Washington funds must be cut.

In closing, Passman urged the women to support candidates for public office who would "think of the next generation and nor merely of the next elecgion."

The final business meeting of organization officials, a post-convention board breakfast, will be held at the Frances Sunday morning.

At 10:30 this morning, convention delegates will conclude the social features of the meeting at an al fresco luncheon at the home of William Grasse, south of Monroe.

High Steel Production Record Is Set For Week

By G. A. Phillips

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Record high steel production featured a broad recovery movement in business operations this week.

Slowed down only temporarily by the short-lived railroad strike, the spring boomlet in business and industry resumed the forward push well fortified with favorable developments. Included were:

A strong stock market firmly anchored to a new high since July, 1946; a sudden pickup in business in primary and second textile markets; heavy demand for nonferous metals which resulted in a cent-a-pound hike in copper prices; overall industrial production equalling or closely approaching the best figures since the end of the war.

Retail trade also was better this week and new orders for delivery all the way into the middle of summer indicated merchants expect volume to hold up over the nearby term.

Unless there is a new flareup on the labor front or developments not now foreseen, economists expect the nation's economy to maintain a swift pace through the remainder of the second quarter.

There still is a large backlog of demand for new motor cars and trucks, new houses and the multitude of things that go to make them a home, and an assortment of other consumer and durable goods.

In addition, the current high rate of national income and high employment virtually guarantees a large turnout of vacationists this summer and all signs point to record expenditures for travel, entertainment and recreation. These dollars turn over fast when they get into the spending stream.

While an early sampling of opinion in the vacation field indicates Europe and other foreign countries will get a larger share of the holiday dollar this year than ever before, the great majority of the total spent for such purposes will find its way into the domestic economy through the almost unlimited number of resort in this country.

The American Express Co., a firm that keeps well abreast of such matters in addition to its other activities, says 33,000,000 people in this country have a paid vacation coming to them this year, either through a labor union contract or voluntary arrangements with employers. That is a new high, exceeding the previous top of 31,700,000 paid vacations last year by a substantial margin.

American Express also says 60,000,000 Americans took a vacation of some durtion in the United States last year and spent an estimated $12,000,000,000 while doing it. There is every hope and expectation that both the number vacationing and the amount they spend will be larger this year, the firm said.

Present indications are that some 440,000 United States citizens will go abroad this year and spend something like $400,000,000 to $500,000,000. This is a new high both in numbers and dollar expenditures.

A break-neck pace was maintained on the industrial front this week after railroad firemen returned to their jobs.

Steel mills worked at 101.3 per cent of capacity and came up with the highest number of tons in history—1,931,000. Last week the operating rate was 100.1 and tonnage totaled 1,908,200. A year ago mills worked at 95.6 per cent of capacity and produced 1,762,400 tons.

Brilliant performances were again turned in by men and furnaces in Pittsburgh, where operators averaged 102.2 per cent and in Youngstown, where activity was near the 106-107 rate held for more than a month. Birmingham and Buffalo both made a better than average contribution to the record total produced.

Automobile output missed a new high mark by the proverbial cat's whisker. There were 174,020 cars and trucks assembled in this country and Canada, only 460 under last week's 174,480, an all-time high. A slight drop in Chevrolet assemblies due to factors caused by the rail strike was the reason.

A new production record was set by DeSoto.

One of the most optimistic statements yet made about the future of this important industry came from the Veteran Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of General Motors. He told the annual meeting of stockholders the demand for General Motors cars and other products probably would continue throughout 1950 at the current record pace.

The booming building industry boomed to still higher marks with no sign from any quarter of a let up. Heavy engineering contracts awarded this week totaled $206,029,000 against $183,343,000 last week and $147,773,000 a year ago.

Dun & Bradstreet confirmed recent preliminary reports that building activity was at an all-time high. The firm reported permits issued in 215 cities in the first four months totaled $1,572,993,049, up 37.9 per cent higher than the previous record high of $1,294,875,220 touched in the first four months of fabulous 1929.

A steady pace was set in crude oil production, soft coal output and electric power generated this week, totals in each case varying only slightly from the high marks of last week. Car loadings were still unsettled by conditions created by the strike of firemen but showed signs of returning gradually to the normal 725,000 to 775,000 total expected at this time of year.

Lumber shipments exceeded production by 3.4 per cent but new orders fell below production by 0.8 per cent.

The stock market plugged along to a steady rate throughout the week and came up with an impressive cumulative result. Around $1 3/4 billion was added to the quoted value of shares listed on the exchange; volume was good most days and the market averages reached the highest level since July 10, 1946 at one time.

Long Asking For Biggest Bond Issue Yet For State

His List Of Measures Before Legislature Unusually Short

By Edmond LeBreton

BATON ROUGE, La., May 20.—(AP)—The list of measures Gov. Earl K. Long has asked the Louisiana legislature to pass is short, but it includes one of the biggest financial proposals ever placed before the lawmakers of this state.

If it should be voted, first by the legislature, then by the electorate in November, the proposed $140,000,000 bond authorization for roads and bridges would be far and away the largest single borrowing authority ever approved.

This does not mean that the state would immediately increase its bonded debt by that amount—the governor made it plain that the bonds would be sold only as needed, in small batches to keep interest costs down, and that much of the money would be available to administrations succeeding his.

But the authority would be on the books, and if past experience indicates anything, it is that the whole $140,000,000 in bonds sooner or later would be issued.

By comparison, the present total bonded indebtedness of the state is about $208,000,000 in direct obligations, plus about $20,000,000 in bonds issued by the university, the department of education and the New Orleans Charity Hospital.

The next largest bond authorization in Louisiana was voted 20 years ago—$75,000,000 which then as now was intended for highway work, including a bridge ove the Mississippi river at New Orleans. The $60,000,000 veterans bonus bonds voted in 1948 rank next.

The bond issue was the only administration measure coming in for much discussion during the first two weeks of the session, which were relatively harmonious and light—the houses met a total of only six days. The governor stressed the major works in New Orleans and improvements on main roads for which he said the bond money was principally destined. Some of his floor leaders said they wanted to talk over the issue with members of the opposition and try for advance agreement before introducing the bill, which is still not formally before the legislature.

X-RAY TRAILER IN CATAHOULA

State Owned Car To Visit Parish For Making Of Diagnoses

JONESVILLE, La., May 10.—(Special)—The state-owned x-ray trailer will be in Catahou a parish four days next month to make chest pictures of all parish residents who desire them. The films are made for the purpose of detecting tuberculosis.

Dr. J. A. Coleman, director of the Catahoula health unit, said, "We urge everyone to avail themselves of this opportunity for early diagnosis of tuberculosis. Tuberculosis can be cured if found in the early stages," he emphasized.

On Tuesday, June 13, the trailer will be at Block High Schoo in Jonesville for filming white persons only. On Wednesday, June 14, the trailer will be at the Catahoula Parish Training School in Jonesville for filming of colored persons only.

On Thursday, June 15, the trailer will be at the Harrisonburg schoo and on Friday, June 16, it will be stationed at the Sicily Island School. Both white and colored persons will be x-rayed on the days scheduled for Harrisonburg and Sicily Island.

Firm Announces Oil Price Boost

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Atlantic Refining Company has posted a price increase of 15 cents a barrel for crude oil it buys in five Louisiana and Texas coastal fields.

The company's new posting, retroactive to May 1, is $2.75 a barrel.

Oil men at Dallas say the price boost reflects only a local squeeze in the area concerned for crude oil.

It is believed the increase is not of the nature that might touch off a general advance in crude prices. It is understood Atlantic itself produces a large proportion of the crude oil from these fields.

Markers And Wreaths Placed On Graves Of Departed Members

Beautiful memorial services were held on Thursday, May 11, when Fort Miro Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution placed the D. A. R. insignia markers on the graves of those members who had passed away during the past few years. Mrs. Gladys B. Sperry, Regent and Mrs. Manning S. McGuire, chaplian of the Fort Miro Chapter, gave the ritual service in the placing of the markers. After placing a beautiful wreath of magnolia leaves, tied with blue and white ribbons on each grave, Mrs. Sperry read the following tributes.

We are met here this afternoon to mark in votive memorial the last earthly resting place of our departed member, Mrs. Leda Swilley Bates, whose untimely departure from this life occurred in July, 1949, in an automobile accident while on a vacation trip.

Although a new member of our chapter, Mrs. Bates—in the two meetings that she was privileged to attend—displayed those fine and beautiful attributes of character that immediately established her worth and made her a distince asset to the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Her winning smile, her quiet unassuming manner, her natural sweetness of disposition, a magnanimous capacity for friendship, and a vast overall amount of good ing qualities that endeared her to a wide circle of friends. Those who knew her longest loved her best and considered it one of life's richest blessings to possess a friend whose heart was so trusty that one might safely bury all one's secrets in it—a friend who could releave one's cares by her conversation; their doubts, by her counsel; their sadness, by her good humor; and whose very looks gave comfort in time of trouble.

To her loved ones she was a devoted daughter, sister, wife, and mother. To her church and community she was ever a faithful worker.

And, as we place this marker on her grave, we do so to joyfully recall the memory of a beautiful character, whose useful life is worthy of our emulation. By her worthy example may we all realize that:

"To live in the hearts of those we leave behind us,
Is not to die,
For she lives twice, who lives
The first life well."

And as a challenge to each us, may we strive to ever:

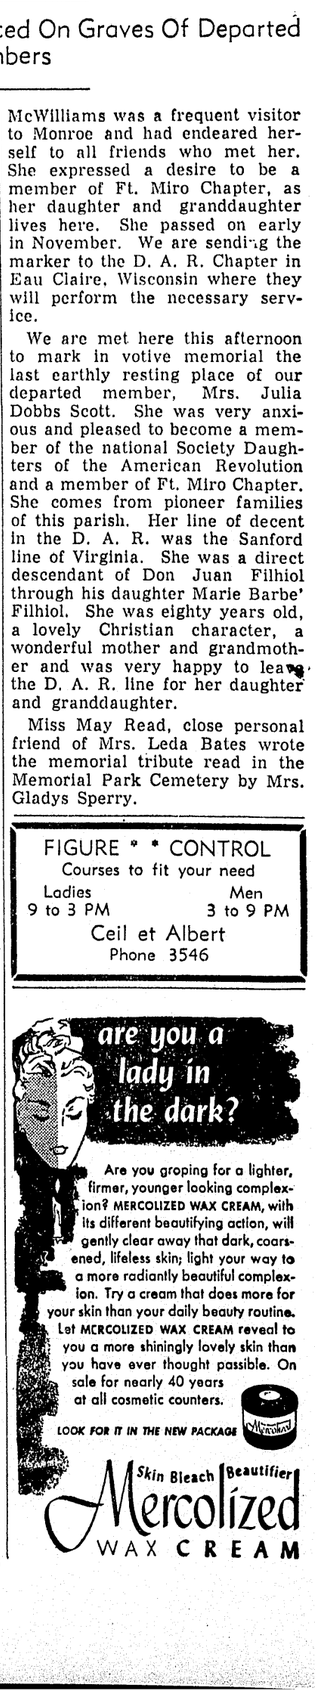

"Be noble, and the nobleness that lives in others—
Sleeping, but never dead—
Will rise in majesty to Meet our own!"

Mrs. Edith Fleming (John) of Eau Claire, Wisconsin, a new member, mother of Mrs. Reynolds McWilliams was a frequent visitor to Monroe and had endeared herself to all friends who met her. She expressed a desire to be a member of Ft. Miro Chapter, as her daughter and granddaughter lives here. She passed on early in November. We are sending the marker to the D. A. R. Chapter in Eau Claire, Wisconsin where they will perform the necessary service.

We are met here this afternoon to mark in votive memorial the last earthly resting place of our departed member, Mrs. Julia Dobbs Scott. She was very anxious and pleased to become a member of the national Society Daughters of the American Revolution and a member of Ft. Miro Chapter. She comes from pioneer families of this parish. Her line of decent in the D. A. R. was the Sanford line of Virginia. She was a direct descendant of Don Juan Filhiol through his daughter Marie Barbe' Filhiol. She was eighty years old, a lovely Christian character, a wonderful mother and grandmother and was very happy to leave the D. A. R. line for her daughter and granddaughter.

Miss May Read, close personal friend of Mrs. Leda Bates wrote the memorial tribute read in the Memorial Park Cemetery by Mrs. Gladys Sperry.

Firm Announces Oil Price Boost

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Atlantic Refining Company has posted a price increase of 15 cents a barrel for crude oil it buys in five Louisiana and Texas coastal fields.

The company's new posting, retroactive to May 1, is $2.75 a barrel.

Oil men at Dallas say the price boost reflects only a local squeeze in the area concerned for crude oil.

It is believed the increase is not of the nature that might touch off a general advance in crude prices. It is understood Atlantic itself produces a large proportion of the crude oil from these fields.

GIRL SCOUTERS FOR BIG TIME

Will Have Fun And Adventure In Ki-Ro-Li During July

During the past week bulletins have been mailed to the parents of all Girl Scouts, telling that a Girl Scout Day Camp will be held at Camp Ki-Ro-Li during the last two weeks in July. For six days of fun and adventure in the out-of-doors, girls will come by private car or chartered bus to the campsite, where they will work and play in a unit with other girls of their own age and with their own unit leaders. Nature exploration, games, singing, crafts, swimming and other activities will be carried on under the supervision of adult leaders.

Mrs. H. V. Brady, camp chairman of the Ouachita Parish Gril Scout Council, has announced that Mrs. W. L. Wooley is chairman of the Day Camp committee and that the following are serving with her in making arrangements for the camp: Mrs. R. W. Hopper, Mrs. R. E. Harrell, Mrs. Dick Dean, Mrs. S. C. Strausser, and Mrs. Harry Schroeder.

Dates for the camp have been set for July 18, 19, 20, and 25, 26, 27. To avoid the hottest part of the day, it is planned that campers will arrive at camp each morning at 8:00 and will leave at 2:30 in the afternoon. Each girl will bring her own lunch (a nosebag lunch the Scouts call it) and milk will be provided by the camp. All of the camping standards of the Girl Scout organization will be met in operating the camp, Mrs. Wooley has announced. A registered nurse will be in charge of the health and safety of the campers, first aiders will be on staff, and swimming will be in charge of Red Cross lifesavers.

Girls should register for the day camp before June 6, if possible. Mrs. Wooley states, in order that the committee may know approximately what staff and equipment will be needed. Until June 6 registration will open only to registered Girl Scouts, both Brownis and Intermediates. After that date, any girl who will be in the third through the eighth grade in school next year may register for camp. In order to insure the maximum benefits from such a camping experience, the number of girls will be limited. A camp folder will be mailed to anyone upon request to the Girl Scout office.

The Girl Scout organization is a Red Feather Agency of the Community Chest.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

STICK TO RULES YOU'RE SURE OF

By Oswald Jacoby
Written For Nea Service

"Last night," writes H. M. B., of Denver, "I discarded a deuce to freeze the pack. I held six cards and my partner held three, while each of the opponents had at least a dozen cards. Each side had already made a canasta, and they had more melds down on the table than we had.

"I thought that this was a good time to freeze, but my opponents said it wasn't. They said it was contrary to all of the Jacoby rules.

"It worked out well for me. My partner got rid of two cards that were making a nuisance of themselves in her hand, and then she melded out. Sh' said it was a fine play and who is this guy Jacoby anyway?

"All of this puzzles me. What have you got to say for yourself?"

I've got to say, but it won't do me much good. You'll hear lots of people quoting "Jacoby rules" that don't exist except in their own imagination. The next time somebody springs one on you, ask to see it in print—either in one of my newspaper articles or in one of my books.

Actually, you picked a very fine time to freeze the pack. You had every reason to expect what eventually took place. You and your partner were right to be playing for out since the opponents had more melds down on the table and more cards in their hands. Your partner had the better chance, with only three cards in her hand, and your freeze was shrewdly planned to help her get rid of unwanted cards so as to build up some sort of going-out meld.

Incidentally, your partner had the right idea when she scoffed at "rules" and the people who make them. The advice of a card expert is useful only if it works. Don't pay any attention to impractical advice. Stick to tactics that win, no matter what the experts say. But remember that if the advice is silly enough the expert probably never gave it to begin with.

Q—Your side has already made a canasta, and you hold only one card. You draw a joker. Cn you meld the joker and just refuse to discard? You don't want to meld out.

A—No. If you meld the joker, you must automatically meld out. If your other card is meldable, you may meld it otherwise you are out. If you don't want to meld out, you must discard one of your two cards and keep the other in your hand.

Q—Your side has no canasta. You hold only one card, and draw a joker. Can you meld the joker and discard your other card without melding out? In other words, you come down to no cards, and simply draw one card and discard it whenever it is your turn to play.

A—You are not allowed to do that. Coming down to no cards at all is just what is meant by melding out: and that automatically brings the hand to an end. However, you are not allowed to meld out when your side has no canasta. In the situation described, you cannot meld. You must discard either the original card or the joker, and continue to play with one card still in your hand.

A—You are not allowed to do that. Coming down to no cards at all is just what is meant by melding out: and that automatically brings the hand to an end. However, you are not allowed to meld out when your side has no canasta. In the situation described, you cannot meld. You must discard either the original card or the joker, and continue to play with one card still in your hand.

TO BE JUNE BRIDE

Miss Maxine Moore Cahoon, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Grant Clinton Boardman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark C. Boardman of this city, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Moore of Fort Worth, Texas. The garden wedding will take place June 10 at Woodbine, the country home of the Moore's.

WELCOME GARDEN CLUB MEMBERS ENJOY RECENT GARDEN TOUR

Instead of the regular meeting of the Welcome Garden Club the members and guests enjoyed a tour of several gardens, at which time the hostesses showed with pride the results of their labors.

The first stop was with the club's president, Mrs. Jewell McQuiller. There one hardly realized when she stepped over the borderline into the lovely garden of Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, which was the second to be viewed. From the out-door picnic house, Mrs. Montgomery served refreshing drinks to the guests.

Third stop was at the Tom Leos home on College Ave. While there Mr. H. K. Touchstone extended the invitation to cross the lawn into their lovely garden, and it was a privilege indeed to go through the hot-house and slat-house, as well as to wonder around the spacious grounds. There again it was hard to realize where the borderline was between these two beautiful lawns.

Next, Mrs. J. H. Scogin, Jr., was on hand to conduct her guests through her beautiful grounds. From the Scogin home on Marie Place, the cars wended their way out to the country home of Mrs. T. D. Pickens. There the guests wandered through her home and admired the beautiful paintings and hooked rugs, further proof of her artistic ability, as well as being an ardent gardener.

Delicious refreshments were served on the lawn, and assisting Mrs. Pickens were the following hostesses: Mrs. Wesley Walters, Mrs. A. R. Butler, Mrs. L. C. Willett, Mrs. Norman Jardine, Mrs. Joe Williamson, and Mrs. W. M. Reynolds. Mrs. C. C. Lucky was in charge of arranging the tour.

Mrs. McQuiller called a short business meeting, at which time several new members were welcomed into the club. The president announced that the invitation had been extended to visit the Pittard gardens to view some four thousand day lilies in bloom. Several cars of the ladies availed themselves of the opportunity to see this unusual sight.

Names registered in the guest book were as follows: Mrs. Joe H. Monroe, Mrs. John J. Kelley, Mrs. Bob Pribble, Mrs. Orrie M. Shite, Sr., Mrs. W. B. Wheelis, Mrs. P. E. Massey, Mrs. E. C. Cobb, Mrs. R. M. Kettenring, Mrs. R. O. Ware, Mrs. J. H. Scogin, Jr., Mrs. Tom Leos, Mrs. Norman Jardine, Mrs. C. C. Lucky, Mrs. G. M. Gleason, Mrs. Mary Garretson, Mrs. J. W. Golson, Mrs. Ethel Cooper, Mrs. Joe Williamson, Mrs. W. E. Leckie, Mrs. E. T. Keagan, Mrs. W. D. Kleppinger, Mrs. Julius Fink, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. Vivian Doonce, Mrs. O. R. Brauer, Mrs. W. A. Smith, Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, Mrs. Ertie Sampkins, Mrs. Wesley Walters, Mrs. T. D. Pickens, Mrs. Wesley Walters, Mrs. S. B. Hunt, Mrs. Louis M. Ray, Mrs. Fred Homia, Mrs. Jewell McQuiller, Mrs. J. P. Royce, Mrs. L. C. Willett, Mrs. L. J. Hulin, Mrs. Bettie Willbanks, Mrs. T. C. Burford, Mrs. M. G. Moore, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. R. B. Henry, Mrs. John Lewis, Mrs. Will Mitchell, Mrs. Henson Coon, Mrs. E. L. Page, Mrs. A. R. Butler, Mrs. W. N. Reynolds, Mrs. H. B. Cannon, Mrs. W. C. Fisher, and Mrs. J. L. Warren.

Shackleford-Brooks

Foretelling a mid-May wedding of much interest here is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shackleford of Betonia, Miss. of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Shackleford, to Mr. Eugene Brooks, son of Mr. James Brooks of Ferriday. The wedding will be solemnized May 19 at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Shackleford is a graduate of Anding Central High School and attended All Saints College in Vicksburg for two years. Mr. Brooks was graduated from Hinds Junior College and served three years in the Navy during the World War II.

CHILDREN'S SUMMER READING CLUB PLANNED BY THE PARISH LIBRARY

One of the most important activities of a public library is the promotion of summer reading for the children of the area served by the library. Last summer the reading club sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Public Library was a huge success. Over three hundred children read the required number of books and earned certificates. This year it is hoped that at least one thousand children will participate. The program for this summer is based on the theme "Keep Louisiana green." This is the slogan of the Louisiana Forestry Commission. In a state where timber is one of our most important assets, it is most essential that young people know something about the importance of preventing forest fires.

Each child who enrolls as a member of the summer reading club will be given a button to wear. These buttons are being furnished by the U. S. department of agriculture. He will also be given a small notebook in which to keep a record of books read during the summer. These notebooks must be signed by one parent, stating that the child has read the books. They are to be turned in at the library not later than August 26th. In order to earn a certificate a child must read 12 books, 2 of which are to be chosen from a selected list dealing with the subject of forestry. Children who read more than 12 books, will receive a gold star on their certificate for each 5 books over the first 12. The notebooks for keeping the record of books read were donated by the Monroe branch of the American Association of University Women.

As an added attraction Mr. Smith of the Louisiana Forestry Commission will show moving pictures on the subject of forestry each day of the first week after the close of school. That is the week of June 5 through June 10. There will be three shows each day. The first one at 10:00, the 2nd at 10:30 and the third at 11:00. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the films will be shown at the library in Monroe. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday they will be shown at the library in West Monroe. Because only 50 children can attend each showing, reservations must be made at the library for the day and hour which a child wishes to come. Bookmobile patrons of the library may attend the show either in Monroe or West Monroe. Don't forget to call 7240 if you plan to come to a show in Monroe or 6747 if you plan to attend the one at the West Monroe library and tell the person who answers the phone the day and hour you want to come. Each child who sees one of these forestry films will be given credit for reading one book on the subject of forestry. The Louisiana Forestry Commission is also furnishing bookmarks to each member of the club.

Because of their interest in teaching conservation of forest resources, the Brown Paper Mill has offered to take the children who earn certificates on a picnic at the close of the summer reading program.

The Children's Bookshop is offering two books as prizes to the children who read the most books during the summer. One book will be given to the child in the age group from 6 through 9 and the other to the child in the age group from 10 up. All books read must be in the child's reading level.

Reading during the summer vacation period is a very wholesome means of recreation. It keeps children at home and off the streets, it keeps them away from the extremely hot rays of the sun, it teaches while it entertains them, and reading good books destroys the desire for "Funny-books," which parents and educators both deplore. This program is being planned for the pleasure of the children of Ouachita parish. It is absolutely free. Parents of children who have never borrowed books from the library must sign their cards and accept responsibility for lost or damaged books, or for books kept overtime. The many groups who are cooperating with the library are evidence of the fact that this is a most worthwhile program. If you have a child, be sure that he enrolls at his branch of the library to take part in the summer reading program.

BRIDE-ELECT

Miss Inell Charles whose engagement and approaching marriage to Ira Taylor of Farmerville, is announced today by her mother, Mrs. Irene Donovan of West Monroe. The wedding will take place June 3.

DOROTHY DIX

Fair-Weather Wife

Woman Reproaches Husband For Business Reverses

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a married man with a wife and four children. I have been fairly successful, but recently I have had reverses which necessitated selling our home and which have forced me to deprive my wife of some of the things to which she has been accustomed. My wife is furious over the situation. She nags at me all the time, reproaches me for bad management and criticizes me even to the children. This has got me into such a nervous state that I have about lost all confidence in myself.

DOROTHY DIX

Do you think she is giving me a fair deal, particularly as I am devoted to her and the children and have no thought but for their welfare?

JOSEPH F.

ANSWER: I think that your wife is giving you a rotten deal and that she is the poorest sort of sport. Any woman is a shirker and a quitter who doesn't stand by her husband in his misfortune and share his ill luck with as good a grace as she did his prosperity.

LACKS SENSE

Also, she knows that she not only has lack of heart but lack of sense, because by her conduct she is doing everything possible to kill the goose that lays the golden egg and keep you from ever getting on your feet again. For she is breaking down your morale, and when that is gone everything is lost.

To have a business venture go awry, to lose money, even to have to give up your home is bad, of course, but it is only a passing misfortune to those who take it in the right spirit. Often it is a blessing in disguise, because we learn wisdom from our failures, and when we find ourselves blocked in one direction we turn in another.

But it is only the man who does not get discouraged who can profit by his losses. He must keep his heart high. He must still have faith in himself, and it is very difficult to do this if he has a melancholy wife at home who whines over her misfortunes and wet-blankets every plan and saps his courage by her prophecies of disaster.

The woman who wants her husband to succeed must hold up his hands. She must breathe fresh courage and hope into him. She must make him feel that she has faith in him. For that kind of a wife a man can go out and fight the world and conquer.

But the woman who sends her husband to the battle with his ears full of her lamentations over his failure and his heart bitter with the sense of her disloyalty has no fight left in him. Fair-weather wives are no better than fair-weather friends.

DEAR MISS DIX: What is a man to do whose principles prevent him from being a philanderer? Grin and bear it? I am one of those who pine for a little love, but never get it. Why cannot the cold and unsympathetic wives manifest a little affection even as the husbands compel themselves to walk the strait and narrow path?

WILL B.

ANSWER: I doubt that such wives can act otherwise than as they do. They are even as they are made.

It is certainly a devastating experience for a warm-hearted, affectionate man to get an iceberg for a mate, and, as you say, there is nothing they can do but to grin and bear it.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.

Large Audience Hears Book Review By Rev. D. A. Curren

Friday evening, the Reverend Dennis A. Curren, former assistant pastor of St. Matthew's Church, and now retreat master as well as instructor at Maryhill Seminary, gave the people of Monroe a long-to-be remembered book review of "The Cardinal."

The beautiful ball room of the Virginia Hotel made a perfect setting for the unfolding of the pages of Henry Morton Robinson's wonderful book.

A large enthusiastic audience was an incentive to the speaker whose reputation as an orator is well-known, and who, by his brilliant wit, has made himself a much sought entertainer.

The speaker was introduced by Monsignor Marsh whose remarks were very touching and most complimentary. In closing, Monsignor Marsh made reference to the fact that Father Curren had been a "Cardinal" before he was a priest, which rather put the cart before the horse, meaning Father Curren's affiliation with professional ball playing for many years before his religious vocation.

One could not give praise enough or begin to describe the manner in which Father Curren handled his subject. So familiar with every phase of this great drama was he that his listeners felt they were actually aboard the luxurious liner Vesuvio with Father Stephen Fermoyle, sharing his experiences, which were indeed varied.

Father Curren opened up with a quotation: the first question from the Catechism—"Why did God make you?" He emphasized the human side of life, in which we found sometimes rash judgment, but, then, great charity loomed up from the heart of the here. Pathetic threads are entwined in the story, false accusations and the usual misunderstandings of life.

Father Curren complimented Henry Morton Robinson, the writer of "The Cardinal" for the authentic and meticulous manner in which he wrote the book. Mr. Robinson skillfully brought his readers to the realm of sacerdotal rituals, mysteries and devotions, and we know few writers have entered this field. Father Stephen Fermoyle conquered many obstacles and we see him rise above all criticisms as the story moves with entrancing art through a memorable gallery of characters, scenes and events noted in his climb to the eminence of a prince of the Roman Catholic Church.

We may close in saying that Father Curren gave us in technicolor of expression what Henry Morton Robinson so deftly gave us in printers' ink.

Girl Fights With Attacker, Killed

CHICAGO, May 20. — (AP) — A pretty 16-year-old high school girl was slain early today in a battle with a knife-wielding assailant. She was attacked in front of her south side home as she returned from a church social program.

Slashed and brutally beaten, the girl was found lying in a pool of blood on the front steps by her brother who heard her screams.

The girl, Patricia Swartz, died 40 minutes later at St. Bernard's Hospital.

DOROTHY DIX

Fair-Weather Wife

Woman Reproaches Husband For Business Reverses

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a married man with a wife and four children. I have been fairly successful, but recently I have had reverses which necessitated selling our home and which have forced me to deprive my wife of some of the things to which she has been accustomed. My wife is furious over the situation. She nags at me all the time, reproaches me for bad management and criticizes me even to the children. This has got me into such a nervous state that I have about lost all confidence in myself.

DOROTHY DIX

Do you think she is giving me a fair deal, particularly as I am devoted to her and the children and have no thought but for their welfare?

JOSEPH F.

ANSWER: I think that your wife is giving you a rotten deal and that she is the poorest sort of sport. Any woman is a shirker and a quitter who doesn't stand by her husband in his misfortune and share his ill luck with as good a grace as she did his prosperity.

LACKS SENSE

Also, she knows that she not only has lack of heart but lack of sense, because by her conduct she is doing everything possible to kill the goose that lays the golden egg and keep you from ever getting on your feet again. For she is breaking down your morale, and when that is gone everything is lost.

To have a business venture go awry, to lose money, even to have to give up your home is bad, of course, but it is only a passing misfortune to those who take it in the right spirit. Often it is a blessing in disguise, because we learn wisdom from our failures, and when we find ourselves blocked in one direction we turn in another.

But it is only the man who does not get discouraged who can profit by his losses. He must keep his heart high. He must still have faith in himself, and it is very difficult to do this if he has a melancholy wife at home who whines over her misfortunes and wet-blankets every plan and saps his courage by her prophecies of disaster.

The woman who wants her husband to succeed must hold up his hands. She must breathe fresh courage and hope into him. She must make him feel that she has faith in him. For that kind of a wife a man can go out and fight the world and conquer.

But the woman who sends her husband to the battle with his ears full of her lamentations over his failure and his heart bitter with the sense of her disloyalty has no fight left in him. Fair-weather wives are no better than fair-weather friends.

DEAR MISS DIX: What is a man to do whose principles prevent him from being a philanderer? Grin and bear it? I am one of those who pine for a little love, but never get it. Why cannot the cold and unsympathetic wives manifest a little affection even as the husbands compel themselves to walk the strait and narrow path?

WILL B.

ANSWER: I doubt that such wives can act otherwise than as they do. They are even as they are made.

It is certainly a devastating experience for a warm-hearted, affectionate man to get an iceberg for a mate, and, as you say, there is nothing they can do but to grin and bear it.

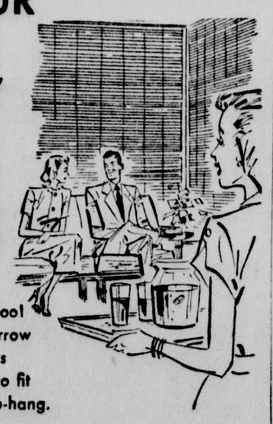

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.

LENWIL HOLDS LAST P.-T.A. MEET

May Queen Crowned In Interesting Ceremony On Fathers' Night

Crowning of the May queen was an interesting feature of the regular P. T. A. meeting of Lenwil school when the organization observed Father's Night.

Rev. C. C. Martin, pastor Peniel Baptist Church, led the invocation.

Glenda Owens was named queen by popular vote over twelve other contestants who were crowned maids in the same ceremony. Ellen Mae Clark received the second highest number of votes in the contest and was privileged to crown the queen, who later crowned the maids. The twelve maids were Regina Christy, Glenda Terrell, Joyce Vessell, Sharon Wilbanks, Jimmie Underwood, Julia Dillard, Doris McDonald, Glenda Smith, Jackie Joiner, Norma Crowell, Berta Jean Blazier and Ella Mae Clark.

Songs and choral readings by the second grade, chorus numbers by fourth and fifth grades; a play by the third grade; a comic skit by seventh grade; boys' chorus from fourth and fifth grades; Mother Goose rhyme drawings by third grade; chorus by sixth and seventh grades, and a reading, "My Sister's Best Fellow" by Hilda Jean Brantley, concluded the program.

During a business session which followed, the following officers were installed and will guide the activities of the organization during the next term. President, Mrs. W. E. Howard; vice president, Mrs. E. A. Banks; secretary, Mrs. Merle Bennett; treasurer, Mrs. C. P. King.

Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, guest speaker, talked on legislation pertaining to schools.

Miss Clara Freiburg Awards Certificates At Music Recital

The puils of Miss Clara Freiburg gave the music lovers of Monroe an evening of delightful entertainment at Northeast Junior College auditorium on Tuesday, May 16.

The program was divided into three parts. The first group, after the brilliant opening "March" was performed by first year students. The second group comprised the romantic and classical composers, while the third consisted of modern and contemporary artists.

The group as a whole gave a finished performance. They displayed remarkable technique, rythmns and depth of understanding considering the youthfulness of performers. There were more than the usual number of boys in the class and they, as well as the girls, brought out to the fullest the rich tones of the new concert grand piano.

There were four outstanding performances by the girls who had won "superior" rating in the national piano playing auditions.

Sara Lou Hundson played Bethoven's "Sonata Op. 79, 1st Movement." Her rendition of the difficult composition was excellent and her technique and fingerwork would have done credit to a much older person.

Penny Prophit's pedal effects and her beautiful touch in "Scotch Poem" by McDowell brought out the singing tones and enhanced the beauty of the selection.

Mary Gertrude Rodriguez played "Polichinello" by Rachmaninoff which showed her excellent technique to good advantage.

In Debussy's "Claire de Lune," Fern Lee Kirk showed much depth of feeling and her performance was masterful.

MUSICAL COTERIE HAS FINAL MEETING OF THE YEAR HERE

The Musical Coterie held its final meeting of the year last Friday.

The study of John Cage and his prepared piano completed the course outlined for the year.

The Coterie members decided they would like to share this study with the three Junior Coterie Clubs and any other interested people.

The owner of a local music company, graciously volunteered the use of his store as the place for the program, where the piano was prepared by Mr. Max Kulke and put on display several days in advance.

The scheduled program was presented twice: One performance at four o'clock in the afternoon for the junior clubs and other music students; the other at eight o'clock in the evening for the adult Coterie members and all other people interested in music.

To open the program Mrs. H. H. Land, in her most charming manner, gave a brief review of Mr. Cage's life. She also gave the background and nature of the experiments which led to the development of the prepared piano. She pointed out that John Cage is the experimentalist in the group of young American composers of today. His experiments led to the prepared piano, which represents a miniature percussion orchestra. His experiments in composition were only in rhythm and sound.

Mr. Max Kulke explained how the prepared piano was set up with hardware, such as bolts, screws, nuts and pieces of fruit jar rubbers, placed between the strings. He prepared the piano according to Mr. Cage's specifications. It took him two hours to complete the preparation.

Mr. Cage's sonatas and interludes composed for this specific prepared piano were played by Mrs. B. D. Allbritton. Her program was beautifully prepared and presented in the typical Allbritton fashion, which is most inspiring. Before each number Mrs. Allbritton gave a very interesting annotation.

There were over one hundred and fifty people who registered at the two programs and many more did not register. Twenty-two Coterie members were present.

The Musical Coterie is very grateful to all who made this program possible and we feel it is a step forward in the appreciation of the modern trend and development of the music of today.

Throw Off Loser to Avoid Over-Trump

By Oswald Jacoby

Written for NEA Service

"Other people are surprised when they fall into the soup," said Hard Luck Joe, "but I have learned by experience to expect nothing better. It's probably just as well. If I suddenly got a normal break it might be too much for my heart."

"If I have to start worrying about your heart too," began his partner, "I'll just give up. It's bad enough to sit here and watch you throw tricks out the window!"

Joe was indignant. He was sure he had just played the hand as well as anybody could. He was simply the unluckiest bridge player who ever lost a rubber.

"I'll leave it to Jacoby," he exploded. "And I'll bet you anything you like that he'll agree with me."

As usual, Joe was quite wrong. It was a good thing he didn't bet. He could have made the hand by means of a very unusual play.

The play had been very simple. West opened the king of hearts, and Joe won with the ace. He looked sourly at East, who had signaled by playing the nine of hearts.

Joe next cashed the ace of diamonds and the ace of spades. Then he led a low heart. West won with the jack of hearts, and East completed his high-low by dropping the three.

Obeying his partner's signal, West led another heart. Joe ruffed in dummy, but East overruffed—just as he had advertised. East then led the queen of clubs, and the defenders set the contract by taking two tricks in that suit.

"What was wrong with the way I played the hand?" demanded Joe. "I couldn't draw trumps without losing five tricks at the end. It's not my fault that the hearts were split 6-2. Don't tell me I could've made that hand!"

But that's just what I had to tell Joe. Do you see how he should have played the hand? If not, look it over a second time before you read on.

Joe played the hand properly up to the time that he put one of dummy's trumps on the third round of hearts. That play was doomed to lose. East had played high-low in hearts, thus asking his partner to lead the suit again. What else could he mean?

The proper play on the third heart was to discard one of dummy's losing clubs. Joe would lose that trick, to be sure, but then there would be only one losing club in dummy. He would lose one club, ruff a second club, and discard his last club on one of dummy's high diamonds. In all, he would lose only two hearts and one club, making his contract.

In short, the proper play was to transfer dummy's ruff from one suit to another—from a suit that could be over-ruffed to a suit that couldn't be.

HENDRICKS BACK IN

Friends of J. P. Hendricks, 207 Laurel street, West Monroe, will regret to learn that he has been returned as a patient to Riverside sanitarium because of a second attack of heart trouble. He is a former employe of the Monroe post office, but because of impaired health retired three years ago.

MARY VIRGINIA GREGORY WEDS RICHARD W. GEORGE, JR.

At a ceremony characterized by simple dignity and beauty, Miss Virginia Gregory, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gregory of this city, exchanged marriage vows with Richard W. George, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. George of Ruston. The marriage was solemnized in the evening Friday, May 12, at the home of the bride's parents with the Rev. William E. King of Dubach, cousin of the groom, officiating, with only immediate members of the families present.

The bridal couple exchanged the vows of the impressive double ring ceremony before a setting of arrangements of madonna lilies, cala lilies, Marguerite White gladiola and Queen Ann's lace.

Mrs. Hollis Dollar, close friend of the bride served as matron-of-honor and only attendant, was wearing a sheer blue gown.

Mr. Elvin Byrom served the groom as best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a blue bouffant gown of chiffon and lace with a pink cloche and pink veil. Her other accessories were blue and she was carrying a bride's bouquet of sweetheart roses and split carnations.

A reception immediately followed the ceremony. The dining room was artistically developed in white and pink with the table overlaid with a handsome linen cutwork cloth. Satin bows and miniature wedding bells were at each corner with wide satin streamers running to the center. The tiered wedding confection was encircled with tulle and a shower of sweet peas. Presiding at the punch bowls were Mrs. M. J. Hortman and Mrs. O. H. Hill, aunts of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, Mr. and Mrs. George will be at home in Ruston.

Passage Of Bond Election Required To Meet Demands

We saw the parade of Monroe city school children on Friday afternoon, publicizing the school bond election.

It may not be amiss at this time for citizens to clarify their thinking regarding the election by a statement of questions and answers that come to mind:

Question 1. Do we need a school improvement program for the Monroe schools?

Answer 1. School improvement, new and enlarged facilities, is a crying need throughout the country, and Monroe's needs seem to follow the general pattern.

Consultants from the School of Education of Louisiana State University in cooperation with a specialist in school housing from the United States office of education listed the following needs in the report of a survey made of the schools recently:

Repairs and renovations of all existing schools. Additions, such as gymnasium at Neville High; permanent buildings to replace temporary buildings at Barkdull Faulk, with covered walks to connect the new building with the main building; old study hall at Central Grammar arranged as a gymnasium and play room; a new addition at Georgia Tucker to house kindergarten and primary rooms and enlargement of the cafeteria; addition of a gymnasium and industrial arts room at Lida Benton; and a gymnasium-auditorium and extra classrooms at Sherrouse.

Question 2. Are these immediate or long-range needs?

Answer 2. Both are listed. The temporary buildings scattered over the many school grounds will be used for a time, and later replaced with permanent buildings. Ever crowded conditions will probably be solved first, with an eye to school population reaching an expected peak in 1952.

Question 3. Did the survey committee report the need of new buildings in other parts of the city, not having school buildings at present?

Answer 3. Yes. An elementary school on the two city blocks owned by the city school board in the Cotton Mill Addition section of the city; another on a site to be selected east of Park avenue, and northeast of Marie place; a school in the near future situated near the intersection of the Loop road and Sterlington highway; an elementary school for Negro children near the present site of Newton School, another in the vicinity of Bryant's Addition, and a centrally located elementary, junior and senior high combined. These are the needs listed as having arisen in the recent years of our growing population.

Question 4. Would it not be cheaper to enlarge the available school buildings than to build new ones on other sites?

Answer 4. Such a solution would not meet the requirements of modern educational principles as expressed by the survey group: (a) "An elementary school should be located within convenient walking distance of every child at elementary school level." (b) "New schools should be located on sites free from dangerous traffic lanes and adequate in size to meet the recreational requirements of the children."

Question 5. Is Monroe behind other communities in her school housing facilities?

Answer 5. The survey committee found the present buildings well-planned and conveniently located, but like other communities throughout the country, school population in Monroe has outgrown housing space, and modern educational demands have created a need for extra rooms to be used for visual education, school lunch rooms, for industrial arts, for music, and for other purposes.

Tomorrow's questions and answers will deal with estimated costs of the improvements mentioned in today's discussion.

Those present included: Mrs. Jack Taylor, Mrs. Leo Terzia, Jr., Mrs. W. C. Cookston, Jr., Mrs. C. B. Ackel, Mrs. D. G. Kiper, Mrs. Robert Farr, Miss Dorothy Jo Jones, Miss Florence Fluker, Mrs. Dan Moore, Jr., Mrs. G. W. Levert, Mrs. Kyle, Mrs. Hargrove, and Mrs. Shelton.

Classes To Be Held In Caning Chairs

"Many beautiful chairs are carried to the attic or discarded because the cane parts are worn or broken. Sometimes the work is postponed because the homemaker does not know how to go about the task." This is the opinion of Mrs. Euna Spielman, home demonstration agent and Mrs. Mildred Swift, associate.

The work requires time and patience, but it is not difficult. The first class in caning instruction will be given on Friday morning, May 26, at 9:30 a.m. at the Agriculture building, 704 Cypress, West Monroe. The chair to be caned must be one with holes all around the seat. Each person can bring a chair, or two people can work together, or you can just observe. However, it is difficult to learn the different steps without actually doing the work.

On Friday, May 26, the first three steps will be taught; on Friday, June 2, the fourth step, and on Friday, June 9, the last step.

Before coming to class, remove the old seat by cutting it off close to the wood. Remove all cane from the holes. If the furniture is to be refinished, complete the work before starting to recane. The cost of caning a chair is less than $2.00.

Please call 3228 for information as to materials needed for caning your chair.

All women in Ouachita parish are invited to this work shop.

Passage Of Bond Election Required To Meet Demands

We saw the parade of Monroe city school children on Friday afternoon, publicizing the school bond election.

It may not be amiss at this time for citizens to clarify their thinking regarding the election by a statement of questions and answers that come to mind:

Question 1. Do we need a school improvement program for the Monroe schools?

Answer 1. School improvement, new and enlarged facilities, is a crying need throughout the country, and Monroe's n eds seem to follow the general pattern.

Consultants from the School of Education of Louisiana State University in cooperation with a specialist in school housing from the United States office of education listed the following needs in the report of a survey made of the schools recently:

Repairs and renovations of all existing schools. Additions, such as gymnasium at Neville High; permanent buildings to replace temporary buildings at Barkdull Faulk, with covered walks to connect the new building with the main building; old study hall at Central Grammar arranged as a gymnasium and play room; a new addition at Georgia Tucker to house kindergarten and primary rooms and enlargement of the cafeteria; addition of a gymnasium and industrial arts room at Lida Benton; and a gymnasium-auditorium and extra classrooms at Sherrouse.

Question 2. Are these immediate or long-range needs?

Answer 2. Both are listed. The temporary buildings scattered over the many school grounds will be used for a time, and later replaced with permanent buildings. Ever crowded conditions will probably be solved first, with an eye to school population reaching an expected peak in 1952.

Question 3. Did the survey committee report the need of new buildings in other parts of the city, not having school buildings at present?

Answer 3. Yes. An elementary school on the two city blocks owned by the city school board in the Cotton Mill Addition section of the city; another on a site to be selected east of Park avenue, and northeast of Marie place; a school in the near future situated near the intersection of the Loop road and Sterlington highway; an elementary school for Negro children near the present site of Newton School, another in the vicinity of Bryant's Addition, and a centrally located elementary, junior and senior high combined. These are the needs listed as having arisen in the recent years of our growing population.

Question 4. Would it not be cheaper to enlarge the available school buildings than to build new ones on other sites?

Answer 4. Such a solution would not meet the requirements of modern educational principles as expressed by the survey group: (a) "An elementary school should be located within convenient walking distance of every child at elementary school level." (b) "New schools should be located on sites free from dangerous traffic lanes and adequate in size to meet the recreational requirements of the children."

Question 5. Is Monroe behind other communities in her school housing facilities?

Answer 5. The survey committee found the present buildings well-planned and conveniently located, but like other communities throughout the country, school population in Monroe has outgrown housing space, and modern educational demands have created a need for extra rooms to be used for visual education, school lunch rooms, for industrial arts, for music, and for other purposes.

Tomorrow's questions and answers will deal with estimated costs of the improvements mentioned in today's discussion.

Handless Film Star Is Scared By Plane

EMPORIA, Kas., May 20.—(AP)—Harold Russell, who starred in the movie "Best Years Of Our Lives," showed up for a speech here yesterday, shaken and scared by his own admission.

He narrowly escaped cracking up in a small plane, which the pilot tried to land on a two-lane highway. The airport here was flooded by a near cloudburst.

He landed 18 miles east of here and Russell returned by car—three hours later for a breakfast date but in time for a scheduled speech.

RANSOM SCHOOL HOLDS BIG FETE

Party Held On Campus Suited To Merry Month Of May

In her usual charming manner Sharon Thomisee of the sixth grade announced the events of the spring festival as they unfolded Friday at Ransom School. The principal, Mrs. W. D. Clark, gave a short welcome address and then the royal court assembled on the platform in the following order:

Robbie Dee Fuller in pink dotted organdy floor length model with full tiered skirt entered with her escort, Howard Whitlock.

Evelyn Perkins in gold taffeta was escorted by Melvin Whitlock; Dianne Prestwood in blue net over taffeta wore a model fashioned with drop shoulders and full skirt, was escorted by Larry Furlow.

Leta Dean Frazier in orchid net over taffeta made with sweetheart neck and shoulder ruffles was escorted by Buddy Gaster.

Ruby McLinn was wearing a beautiful model in white organdy with full scalloped skirt as she entered on the arm of Scotty Barron.

Gloria Crawford wore a pale blue taffeta gown with drop shoulders and ruffles as she entered with Jackie Sims.

Barbara Hightower, in pink organdy with full skirt and blue sash was escorted by Charles Lee Magouirk.

Maureen Rhone entered next with J. L. Furlow. She was wearing a pale blue organdy model with intricate ruffles of lace on the front of the blouse and skirt.

Ila Kay Guraedy was dressed in aqua organdy with narrow shoulder straps and ruffled neck. Her escort was Joe Kelly.

The next couple was Priscilla Thompson and Glenn Scruggs. She was wearing white net over blue taffeta with rounded neck and hem gathered into scallops which were held in place by pastel rose buds.

Ellie Sechler, escorted by James Fletcher, was wearing an orchid organdy over purple taffeta. It had a very full skirt and a double ruffle around the neck and hem.

The crown bearers entered next bearing the golden jeweled crowns on white satin pillows. The king's crown was carried by Jewel McBroom who was dressed in immaculate white linen suit. The queen's crown was carried by Dianne Bennet who was dressed in pale blue taffeta and net model. The quaint overskirt was draped into scallops held in place by pink rose buds and the skirt was fashioned of myriad ruffles of net.

The maid of honor was Georgia Butler. She was wearing a bouffant gown of white organdy with crisp ruffles from top to bottom of the full skirt. She carried an arm bouquet of white aster reids and red roses with long streamers of white tulle and red satin. Her escort was Forrest Klingfost.

The next to approach the royal platform was the king, Releigh Christy, who walked alone. He was dressed in spotless white linens. He was met at the platform by Mr. Mack Avants, who crowned him king of the spring festival.

The tiny flower girls in frilly spring models came next. They were Alice Hay and Becky Scruggs carrying baskets with huge bows to match their dresses and scattering rose petals. Following close behind them came the queen, Beverly Black. She was beautiful in a gown of white shadow printed organdy. She looked like a queen indeed in this billowing dress with ruffled top and hem. She carried an arm bouquet of aster reids and red roses just like that of her maid of honor.

She was met by her king who placed the crown upon her head as she knelt on the satin pillow before him.

When the royal court was seated, Mr. Avants spoke on the value of citizenship training in the school. He told how the pupils in each grade at Ransom set up their own standards of good citizenship and then tried to live up to them. At the conclusion of his speech, Mrs. Clark made the citizenship awards to the outstanding boy and girl from each of the thirteen rooms in the school. The awards were sterling pins with the word "citizenship" inscribed across the front of them. These awards are made annually to the outstanding children and the pupils come to look upon them as the highest honor that could be bestowed upon them at Ransom School. The following children received the awards:

First grade, Mrs. Matthew's room, Alice Hay and Julian Terrell; Mrs. Odom's room, Patsy Hayden and Forrest Klingfost.

Third grade, Mrs. McKinney, Glenda Rogers and Glenn Ray; Mrs. Edmiston's room, Levena McDaniel and Harold Whitlock.

Fourth grade, Mrs. Sones's room, Ronnie Butler and Gloria Crawford; Mr. Siess's room, Dianne Prestwood and J. C. Klingfost; Miss Gannaway's room, Peggy Perkins and Charles Lee Magouirk.

Fifth grade, Mrs. Simpson's room, Gwendolyn Dunn and Edward Castleberry; Mrs. Buatt's room, Ronnie Sanford and Patsy Brown.

Sixth grade, Mrs. Cloutier's room, Nina Stancel and Wade Brown; Mr. Gilmore's room, Shelby Jean Taylor and Jerry Crawford.

Sweepstakes awards were then made to the rooms that scored the highest in the intramural contests that had been held in school the previous week. Mrs. Edmiston's room received a golden loving cup for first place, Mrs. Simpson's room received a red ribbon banner for second place and Mrs. Sones's fourth grade, a white banner for third place.

After this, each room performed a number for the entertainment of the queen's court and the guests present. The numbers included folk dances, rythm band, singing games, and the chorus sang a most enjoyable original version of old McDonald's Farm in which the entire fourth grade took part.

HIROHITO ADVISES BRIDE

TOKYO, May 20.—(AP)—Emperor Hirohito gave this advice to his second daughter, Taka, before she married commoner Toshimichi Takatsukasa: "Try to live as simply as possible. As soon as you marry you will be a member of the Takatsukasa famiy. Be a good daughter to them. Consult your husband on difficult problems. Living outside is different from living in the palace. Be careful to lock your doors."

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. A nation-wide survey by Jacques Bacal, lawyer and family relations expert, showed that after divorce 20 per cent of the divorced women were "more unhappy," 69 per cent "less unhappy" and 11 per cent "no change in happiness." "But," says Mr. Bacal, "these divorcees were comparing their situation today with the days of tears and mental anguish before divorce and not with happy earlier married days." One divorcee said: "If I did that I'd go crazy." Divorce is sometimes necessary, but with wise marriage counsel it rarely is.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Yes. Miami College sociologist Read Bain says teachers, parents and the public constantly talk of the stupidity and brutality of the police. Thus children grow up thinking the policeman an enemy when they should look upon him as a friend and protector—which he is. Cases are on record where a child has dashed before an auto running from the policeman who was trying to save it! Most policemen are fine men. Let's not lose sight of this because of the crooked few.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. Most scientists doubt it. We've long known poisons, one ounce of which if properly administered would kill 200,000,000 people. But these poisons would have to be injected into each individual. The most likely germ (or virus) for BW (biological warfare) is said to be parrot fever because it grows and increases by its own momentum. But, again, if you start an epidemic it is almost impossible to keep it from backfiring as germs can't tell one uniform from another. I don't feel scared—yet.

In her usual charming manner Sharon Thomisee of the sixth grade announced the events of the spring festival as they unfolded Friday at Ransom School. The principal, Mrs. W. D. Clark, gave a short welcome address and then the royal court assembled on the platform in the following order:

Robbie Dee Fuller in pink dotted organdy floor length model with full tiered skirt entered with her escort, Howard Whitlock.

Evelyn Perkins in gold taffeta was escorted by Melvin Whitlock; Dianne Prestwood in blue net over taffeta wore a model fashioned with drop shoulders and full skirt, was escorted by Larry Furlow.

Leta Dean Frazier in orchid net over taffeta made with sweetheart neck and shoulder ruffles was escorted by Buddy Gaster.

Ruby McLinn was wearing a beautiful model in white organdy with full scalloped skirt as she entered on the arm of Scotty Barron.

Gloria Crawford wore a pale blue taffeta gown with drop shoulders and ruffles as she entered with Jackie Sims.

Barbara Hightower, in pink organdy with full skirt and blue sash was escorted by Charles Lee Magouirk.

Maureen Rhone entered next with J. L. Furlow. She was wearing a pale blue organdy model with intricate ruffles of lace on the front of the blouse and skirt.

Ila Kay Guraedy was dressed in aqua organdy with narrow shoulder straps and ruffled neck. Her escort was Joe Kelly.

The next couple was Priscilla Thompson and Glenn Scruggs. She was wearing white net over blue taffeta with rounded neck and hem gathered into scallops which were held in place by pastel rose buds.

Ellie Sechler, escorted by James Fletcher, was wearing an orchid organdy over purple taffeta. It had a very full skirt and a double ruffle around the neck and hem.

The crown bearers entered next bearing the golden jeweled crowns on white satin pillows. The king's crown was carried by Jewel McBroom who was dressed in immaculate white linen suit. The queen's crown was carried by Dianne Bennet who was dressed in pale blue taffeta and net model. The quaint overskirt was draped into scallops held in place by pink rose buds and the skirt was fashioned of myriad ruffles of net.

The maid of honor was Georgia Butler. She was wearing a bouffant gown of white organdy with crisp ruffles from top to bottom of the full skirt. She carried an arm bouquet of white aster reids and red roses with long streamers of white tulle and red satin. Her escort was Forrest Klingfost.

The next to approach the royal platform was the king, Releigh Christy, who walked alone. He was dressed in spotless white linens. He was met at the platform by Mr. Mack Avants, who crowned him king of the spring festival.

The tiny flower girls in frilly spring models came next. They were Alice Hay and Becky Scruggs carrying baskets with huge bows to match their dresses and scattering rose petals. Following close behind them came the queen, Beverly Black. She was beautiful in a gown of white shadow printed organdy. She looked like a queen indeed in this billowing dress with ruffled top and hem. She carried an arm bouquet of aster reids and red roses just like that of her maid of honor.

She was met by her king who placed the crown upon her head as she knelt on the satin pillow before him.

When the royal court was seated, Mr. Avants spoke on the value of citizenship training in the school. He told how the pupils in each grade at Ransom set up their own standards of good citizenship and then tried to live up to them. At the conclusion of his speech, Mrs. Clark made the citizenship awards to the outstanding boy and girl from each of the thirteen rooms in the school. The awards were sterling pins with the word "citizenship" inscribed across the front of them. These awards are made annually to the outstanding children and the pupils come to look upon them as the highest honor that could be bestowed upon them at Ransom School. The following children received the awards:

First grade, Mrs. Matthew's room, Alice Hay and Julian Terrell; Mrs. Odom's room, Patsy Hayden and Forrest Klingfost.

Fifth grade, Mrs. Simpson's room, Gwendolyn Dunn and Edward Castleberry; Mrs. Buatt's room, Ronnie Sanford and Patsy Brown.

Sixth grade, Mrs. Cloutier's room, Nina Stancel and Wade Brown; Mr. Gilmore's room, Shelby Jean Taylor and Jerry Crawford.

Sweepstakes awards were then made to the rooms that scored the highest in the intramural contests that had been held in school the previous week. Mrs. Edmiston's room received a golden loving cup for first place, Mrs. Simpson's room received a red ribbon banner for second place and Mrs. Sones's fourth grade, a white banner for third place.

After this, each room performed a number for the entertainment of the queen's court and the guests present. The numbers included folk dances, rythm band, singing games, and the chorus sang a most enjoyable original version of old McDonald's Farm in which the entire fourth grade took part.

HIROHITO ADVISES BRIDE

TOKYO, May 20.—(AP)—Emperor Hirohito gave this advice to his second daughter, Taka, before she married commoner Toshimichi Takatsukasa: "Try to live as simply as possible. As soon as you marry you will be a member of the Takatsukasa family. Be a good daughter to them. Consult your husband on difficult problems. Living outside is different from living in the palace. Be careful to lock your doors."

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

Answer to Question No. 1

1. A nation-wide survey by Jacques Bacal, lawyer and family relations expert, showed that after divorce 20 per cent of the divorced women were "more unhappy," 69 per cent "less unhappy" and 11 per cent "no change in happiness." "But," says Mr. Bacal, "these divorcees were comparing their situation today with the days of tears and mental anguish before divorce and not with happy earlier married days." One divorcee said: "If I did that I'd go crazy." Divorce is sometimes necessary, but with wise marriage counsel it rarely is.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Yes. Miami College sociologist Read Bain says teachers, parents and the public constantly talk of the stupidity and brutality of the police. Thus children grow up thinking the policeman an enemy when they should look upon him as a friend and protector—which he is. Cases are on record where a child has dashed before an auto running from the policeman who was trying to save it! Most policemen are fine men. Let's not lose sight of this because of the crooked few.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. Most scientists doubt it. We've long known poisons, one ounce of which if properly administered would kill 200,000,000 people. But these poisons would have to be injected into each individual. The most likely germ (or virus) for BW (biological warfare) is said to be parrot fever because it grows and increases by its own momentum. But, again, if you start an epidemic it is almost impossible to keep it from backfiring as germs can't tell one uniform from another. I don't feel scared—yet.

MY MAN and YOURS

By Margene Danch

"Mommy, will the sandman come today?" Jeanne asked, this morning.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"You said the sandman was coming," Jeanne said, setting her jaw firmly.

"The sandman comes at night," I said.

"No . . . no, you said he was coming soon . . . maybe today."

"Why Jeanne, I did not. The sandman is just make-believe. A long timeago someone's mother made up a story saying a little elf-like man came at night to put sleep in children's eyes. There's no real sandman. It's just a story."

"But you said," Jeanne insisted.

"I don't know what you're talking about," I said mixing up a batch of play-dough quickly. (She's tired of scissor-cutting already.)

When the dough was ready, I put it in a bowl and set it out on the redwood table in the backyard.

"I want the sandman to come, right now!" Jeanne said as I was putting her apron on.

"Make a sandman out of the dough," I answered.

"Want a real one."

"Oh, brother!" I thought as I went in the house. "Hope she molds two dozen of them and gets it out of her system."

Jeanne played with the dough for about fifteen minutes and then came in the kitchen.

"Mommy, will the sandman come tomorrow?" she asked.

"If you say that word once more, Jeanne, you're going to your room. Do you unlerstand?"

The minute I said I was sorry. Jeanne started sobbing and ran to bury her head in a pillow on the davenport.

"What's all the fuss about?" Bill said coming into the room.

"Jeanne keeps asking when the sandman is coming, and I've tried to expain."

"Well, when is he coming?" Bill asked. "You promised them two sacks of sand for the sandbox a couple of days ago, remember?"

Hmmm. Maybe the sandman will come tomorrow.

OFFERS TO PAY FRIENDS IF HADACOL DOESN'T HELP

HADACOL HELPS SUFFERERS OF VITAMIN B-1, B-2, NIACIN AND IRON DEFICIENCIES

Mrs. Wallace tells her granddaughter, Maynell Wallace, over the phone how HADACOL brought relief to her.

Mrs. Belle Wallace, 449 Formwalt St., S. W., Atlanta Ga., is so grateful to HADACOL for the blessings it has brought her that she has recommended HADACOL to a number of her friends. She told them she would pay for their bottles of HADACOL if it didn't help them. She explains with a smile that she hasn't had to pay any of her friends, because HADACOL has helped them.

Mrs. Wallace, who is 74 years old, has five children, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. She was suffering from a deficiency of Vitamins B-1, B-2, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

Mrs. Wallace said: "I couldn't sleep or eat until I started taking HADACOL. I'd lie awake and toss and turn until the small hours of the morning. I was highly nervous. I couldn't even thread a needle. But, since I've been taking HADACOL, my nerves are as steady as can be. I couldn't eat because when I did my stomach would puff and bloat and fill with gas. I am on the 7th bottle of HADACOL and my stomach is so much better.

Appetite Good

"I have a good appetite and my stomach does not bloat or fill with gas. I sleep like a log. I have recommended HADACOL to a number of friends and have told them that if it didn't help them, too, I'd pay for it, but I didn't have to because HADACOL did help them. HADACOL has done me more good than anything I have ever taken."

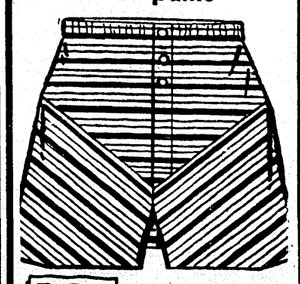

Why Be Satisfied With Temporary Relief?

HADACOL also helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (where Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ, and every part of your body—to the heart, liver, kidneys and lungs—(even to the eyes, hair and nails) to help repair the damage that such a deficiency may be causing there. Countless thousands are benefiting from HADACOL. Why don't you give it a chance to help you? Why continue to suffer? Remember, HADACOL doesn't give temporary relief. Instead, it treats the real cause of your illness when, as so often, it's due to such deficiencies. That's why it's so effective; that's why it is accomplishing such amazing results.

You'll Feel Great . . .

. . . with the first few bottles you take, or your money back. There is only one HADACOL and it is sold on a strict money-back guarantee. So give this remarkable HADACOL medicine a chance to help you. It's never too late to start taking HADACOL. Many who despaired of improvement found that HADACOL was almost like a miracle for them. Remember that HADACOL is amazingly different and amazingly effective because it treats the real cause of deficiencies of Vitamins B-1, B-2, Niacin and Iron. Make up your mind to take HADACOL regularly. Refuse substitutes. Insist on the genuine. You can't lose a cent, because it's sold on a strict money-back guarantee. Only $1.25 for Trial size. Large Family or Hospital size $3.50.

"Mommy, will the sandman come today?" Jeanne asked, this morning.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"You said the sandman was coming," Jeanne said, setting her jaw firmly.

"The sandman comes at night," I said.

"No . . . no, you said he was coming soon . . . maybe today."

"Why Jeanne, I did not. The sandman is just make-believe. A long timeago someone's mother made up a story saying a little elf-like man came at night to put sleep in children's eyes. There's no real sandman. It's just a story."

"But you said," Jeanne insisted.

"I don't know what you're talking about," I said mixing up a batch of play-dough quickly. (She's tired of scissor-cutting already.)

When the dough was ready, I put it in a bowl and set it out on the redwood table in the backyard.

"I want the sandman to come, right now!" Jeanne said as I was putting her apron on.

"Make a sandman out of the dough," I answered.

"Want a real one."

"Oh, brother!" I thought as I went in the house. "Hope she molds two dozen of them and gets it out of her system."

Jeanne played with the dough for about fifteen minutes and then came in the kitchen.

"Mommy, will the sandman come tomorrow?" she asked.

"If you say that word once more, Jeanne, you're going to your room. Do you unlerstand?"

The minute I said I was sorry. Jeanne started sobbing and ran to bury her head in a pillow on the davenport.

"What's all the fuss about?" Bill said coming into the room.

"Jeanne keeps asking when the sandman is coming, and I've tried to expain."

"Well, when is he coming?" Bill asked. "You promised them two sacks of sand for the sandbox a couple of days ago, remember?"

Hmmm. Maybe the sandman will come tomorrow.

OFFERS TO PAY FRIENDS IF HADACOL DOESN'T HELP

HADACOL HELPS SUFFERERS OF VITAMIN B-1, B-2, NIACIN AND IRON DEFICIENCIES

Mrs. Wallace tells her granddaughter, Maynell Wallace, over the phone how HADACOL brought relief to her.

Mrs. Belle Wallace, 449 Formwalt St., S. W., Atlanta Ga., is so grateful to HADACOL for the blessings it has brought her that she has recommended HADACOL to a number of her friends. She told them she would pay for their bottles of HADACOL if it didn't help them. She explains with a smile that she hasn't had to pay any of her friends, because HADACOL has helped them.

Mrs. Wallace, who is 74 years old, has five children, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. She was suffering from a deficiency of Vitamins B-1, B-2, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

Mrs. Wallace said: "I couldn't sleep or eat until I started taking HADACOL. I'd lie awake and toss and turn until the small hours of the morning. I was highly nervous. I couldn't even thread a needle. But, since I've been taking HADACOL, my nerves are as steady as can be. I couldn't eat because when I did my stomach would puff and bloat and fill with gas. I am on the 7th bottle of HADACOL and my stomach is so much better.

Appetite Good

"I have a good appetite and my stomach does not bloat or fill with gas. I sleep like a log. I have recommended HADACOL to a number of friends and have told them that if it didn't help them, too, I'd pay for it, but I didn't have to because HADACOL did help them. HADACOL has done me more good than anything I have ever taken."

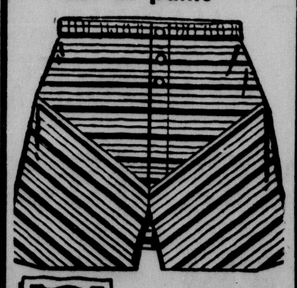

Why Be Satisfied With Temporary Relief?

HADACOL also helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (where Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ, and every part of your body—to the heart, liver, kidneys and lungs—(even to the eyes, hair and nails) to help repair the damage that such a deficiency may be causing there. Countless thousands are benefiting from HADACOL. Why don't you give it a chance to help you? Why continue to suffer? Remember, HADACOL doesn't give temporary relief. Instead, it treats the real cause of your illness when, as so often, it's due to such deficiencies. That's why it's so effective; that's why it is accomplishing such amazing results.

You'll Feel Great . . .

. . . with the first few bottles you take, or your money back. There is only one HADACOL and it is sold on a strict money-back guarantee. So give this remarkable HADACOL medicine a chance to help you. It's never too late to start taking HADACOL. Many who despaired of improvement found that HADACOL was almost like a miracle for them. Remember that HADACOL is amazingly different and amazingly effective because it treats the real cause of deficiencies of Vitamins B-1, B-2, Niacin and Iron. Make up your mind to take HADACOL regularly. Refuse substitutes. Insist on the genuine. You can't lose a cent, because it's sold on a strict money-back guarantee. Only $1.25 for Trial size. Large Family or Hospital size $3.50.

MADE BY DISABLED AND NEEDY VETERANS

FOR SOME THE War WILL NEVER END

Of America's 19,000,000 veterans of all wars and campaigns, nearly 100,000 were in Veterans Administration hospitals at the end of April.

For many thousands of these, the war truly will never end. They are doomed for the remainder of their lives to remain charges of their government—grim remainders of the tragic price of war.

A grateful nation has seen to it that these heroes—some bedfast for life, others destined to spend the rest of their days in wheel chairs or on crutches—get the best of medical care. Modern hospitals and highly trained doctors and nurses see to their physical needs, thanks to the American tradition that it is the obligation of government to "care for him who shall have borne the battle."

When you are asked to buy a Buddy Poppy, remember that every penny contributed by the American people in this campaign will be spent during the next twelve months for veteran welfare work exclusively. Most of what you give for a Buddy Poppy will be spent right here onour own to remind them that they are not forgotten.

The contribution you make through the purchase of a Buddy Poppy will be spent strickly for these patriotic purposes:

- For the aid, relief and comfort of disabled and needy veterans, their dependents, or their widows and orphans.
- For maintenance or expansion of the V.F.W. National Home for widows and orphans of veterans at Eaton Rapids, Michigan.
- For hospital or individual assistance and entertainment for needy veterans and service patients, and their dependents.
- For rehabilitation, welfare and service work, including liaison service with the Veterans Administration.
- For necessary expenses for military funerals of deceased veterans.
- For acquisition, improvement and maintenance of burial plots and the decoration of graves of veterans and servicemen.

SPECIAL PROGRAM– See– The V. F. W. "Buddy Poppy Girl Doris Day" in an interesting and educational short at Joy Drive-In and Star Drive-In today and tomorrow and Tuesday. At the Joy on Thursday and Friday, and BUY A POPPY Saturday, May 27th.

In Christian symbolism the palm has always been used to represent joy, and especially that joy which comes from victory. Doubtless this symbol came into the church through the use made of palm branches by the Greeks and Romans to celebrate their triumphs over their enemies, but to the Christian the palm symbolizes victory over self and the world. The great multitude of the redeemed are represented as standing before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and with palms in their hands.

Because of your cooperation, the members of the church and our friends of the community, Sunday, May 14, was probably the most significant day in our local congregation's history. There were 588 present by actual count, and some were turned away. Unto the Lord and you go the credit! And now that the building is completed, save for equipment which will he had soon, there was no excuse to be offered if the church does not grow in numbers and spirituality. To that end your aid is asked and your prayers sought.

"The Ascension" is the theme of the morning message. The Christ left the earth and returned to the Father God. What is the meaning of the ascension?

"Straight Talk" is the subject of the evening meditation. Jesus is pointed in his words about one of man's tendencies, that of passing judgement.

In 1949, Old Faithful spurted more times, at shorter intervals, than in any previous year.

"... I shall not want"

Today through the light shed upon the twenty-third Psalm by the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, its promise brightens into practical fulfillment.

Supply, health — whatever is legitimately needful—is available to man without fail, and comes through the spiritual understanding of God, divine Love, which Christian Science brings.

Anyone who thoughtfully studies Science and Health and puts its teachings to the test in his daily life will find the "still waters" of the Bible promise.

Science and Health may be bought, borrowed or read at all Christian Science Reading Rooms. The coupon is also for your use.

In Christian symbolism the palm has always been used to represent joy, and especially that joy which comes from victory. Doubtless this symbol came into the church through the use made of palm branches by the Greeks and Romans to celebrate their triumphs over their enemies, but to the Christian the palm symbolizes victory over self and the world. The great multitude of the redeemed are represented as standing before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and with palms in their hands.

Because of your cooperation, the members of the church and our friends of the community, Sunday, May 14, was probably the most significant day in our local congregation's history. There were 588 present by actual count, and some were turned away. Unto the Lord and you go the credit! And now that the building is completed, save for equipment which will he had soon, there was no excuse to be offered if the church does not grow in numbers and spirituality. To that end your aid is asked and your prayers sought.

"... I shall not want"

Today through the light shed upon the twenty-third Psalm by the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, its promise brightens into practical fulfillment.

Supply, health — whatever is legitimately needful—is available to man without fail, and comes through the spiritual understanding of God, divine Love, which Christian Science brings.

Anyone who thoughtfully studies Science and Health and puts its teachings to the test in his daily life will find the "still waters" of the Bible promise.

Psychiatry Employed To Curb Sex Crimes

By Howard W. Blakeslee

NEW YORK—At last the United States is starting something to reduce sex crimes. Two states, New York and California, have new laws pioneering a new kind of drive.

Both states are doing something that many judges and doctors have long advocated. This is to regard sex crime as a devil with two heads. One head is criminal. The other is a sick mind. Treat the sex-mad mind and the criminal head may die a natural death.

The new laws in both states aim to give medical care to sex offenders, in special mental hospitals which are part of the penal system.

Judges for years have recognized that sex criminals sent to prison come out worse than when they were sentenced. Judges have often felt sure some of these criminals would end with sex murders. But the law permitted them no preventives.

The New York law, passed in 1950, is written to break up the repeater sex crimes. Offenders can be kept in custody until doctors say they are cured, even if that means prison for life.

In California the new laws emphasize medical treatment and take numberous steps to treat the sex criminal and to educate the public.

Increase in Sex Murders

The laws in both states strike specially at two classes of sex crimes, one, against children, and two, when done with violence. They stem partly from the rise in sex murders since the end of the war.

This public awakening extends beyond crimes. There is also a rising sentiment for better protection of young girls against temptations to voluntary misconduct.

Signs of this movement are in the current wide-spread publication of the so-called ice cream parlor and hot dog stand sex cases. All these are voluntary trysts of teen-age girls with boys and men, who take them to autos, alleys, barns, lanes and fields, for immoral acts.

In all these violations of morals, the girls are considerably younger than the men who take them out. Much of the misconduct is with men two or three times the ages of the girls.

The case that pinned the name on these episodes was among nine girls, 13 to 15, and 13 men in Belvidere, Ill. They met in or near ice cream parlors. One of the men has been convicted of statutory rape, with a five-year sentence.

Two divorcees at Hammond, Ind., arranged meetings between four young girls and 10 men. Parent-teacher and other associations joined in efforts to improve teenage morality. A neighboring town, East Chicago, has adopted a 10:30 p.m. curfew.

Large Groups Involved

In Zanesville, Ohio, nearly 20 teen-agers were involved in sexual misconduct in autos and other places. Seven boys received jail sentences.

At Rockford, Ill., three girls, aged 14 to 16, were involved with eight married men, all bus drivers. At Milwaukee a gang of white and negro teen-agers was broken up. At Monticello, Ill., 11 bobby-soxers were found misconducting themselves with men ranging from 19 to 50 years. Here drinking parties were part of the routine. At Carlinville, Ill., a 14 and a 17-year-old girl trysted with men of that and other towns nearby.

Lincoln, Neb., was aroused by arrest of six University of Nebraska students, accused of picking up two girls on different nights. County Attorney Frederick Wagener said these incidents prompted more calls to his office than any other case in his three-year tenure.

In these communities about 60 men have been arrested and charged with varying degrees of crime from rape to contributing to the delinquency of a minor female. Among the girls six have been sent to institutions for delinquents.

The new type of laws in New York and California would give enforcement officers a new approach in dealing with teen-age offenses. The officers would be able to provide psychiatric treatment. They would have the power to screen the offenders for the type of personality likely to foment the spread of immoral conduct beyond ordinary limits.

New York's laws were passed unanimously after a 20-month study of 102 male sex criminals in Sing Sing prison. It was found that every one of these men suffered from emotional disorders. All had been unhappy children, due to mismanagement by their parents. As boys, nearly half had good records. Fourteen had been considered model children. Alcoholism was a contributing cause in about half the Sing Sing men.

The New York law calls for indeterminate sentences, to be served in mental institutions, with parole only after medical treatment has been pronounced a cure. The law covers violent rape, felonious sex assault and sex offenses against small children. It provides for more research in sex crimes and makes provision for institutions in which sex offenders will receive psychiatric treatment.

California's Big Progress

California in 1949 passed a law permitting any person who feels he is becoming a potential sex criminal to volunteer for psychiatric treatment. To date there have been 10 volunteers.

Another 1949 California law permits judges to order psychiatric examination for sex offenders, to decide whether a prison or a hospital is the best place.

This year two bills were passed to strengthen the previous year's law. One would make it mandatory for judges to send all cases which are possible sex psychopaths to a mental hospital for examination before sentence. These offenders include not only molesters of children, but peeping Toms, exhibitionists and others whose sex actions are considered irrational.

The other 1950 bill requires that a second offender on a misdemeanor sex charge automatically goes to the superior court for a hearing on whether to go to a mental hospital. This bill allows considerable latitude to the judge on what constitutes a sexual psychopath. There are, for example, persons who set fires partly as a sexual gratification. A judge may order such an arsonist to receive a sex psychopathic examination.

Critical Hospital Shortage

California now has two state hospitals for care of sex offenders. A new hospital for this purpose is to be opened this year at Terminal Island, Long Beach. The legislature has appropriated $6,000,000 to build a prison where a medical staff can care for 400 sex offenders. San Quentin penitentiary has 800 sex offenders, who receive group psychiatric treatment. But the psychiatric staff is short handed so that the 800 have to be screened to pick the cases needing treatment most.

The state plans a newspaper campaign to inform the public about the voluntary treatment and about sex problems in general. A manual is under preparation for policemen in spotting sex offenders and in their handling after arrest.

Sex guidance clinics are planned for public schools. These would counsel children with abnormal tendencies, and advise with their parents and teachers.

Historic Church Damaged By Fire

NEW ORLEANS, May 20.—(AP)—Historic St. Paul's Evangelical Church, twice destroyed by fire in its 110-year existence, suffered an estimated $15,000 damage from a third blaze today.

Police reinforcements were called out to keep back the crowd which jammed the adjoining streets.

Fire Chief Howard Dey said firemen had difficulty getting water to the steeple of the church because of the low water pressure brought about by the use of numerous lines to fight the fire.

It's quite a stretch for him to reach the tractor clutch, but he manages and drives like a veteran. He likes long hours at the wheel.

TWIN CITIES MEN IN 'EXERCISE SWARMER'

Brigadier General W. R. Wolfinbarger, commanding general of the Air Task Force Swarmer, briefs these two men from the state of Louisiana on their role in Exercise Swarmer, the joint Army-Air Force maneuver. These men were among those responsible for air-landing over 250,000 tons of equipment during the 10-day maneuver. They are (left to right) Lt. Col. William G. Miller, West Monroe, La., and General Wolfinbarger, and Lt. Raymond F. Thompson, of Monroe. (Armed Forces Photo.)

LOCAL OFFICERS IN EX. SWARMER

Monroe, West Monroe Men In Army-Air Force Maneuvers

CAMP MACKALL, N. C.—(Special)—Exercise Swarmer, largest airhead maneuver in the history of the U. S. army and air force will test and evaluate both the tactical air power and the air transport potential of the U. S. air force.

Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad, U. S. A. F., who commands the entire exercise, has established an air task force to organize, command and direct all friendly air force units under one centralized command and has designated Brig. Gen. W. R. Wolfinbarger, U. S. A. F., as the commander of this task force.

General Wolfinbarger's air task force swarmer is composed of a 600 plane armada and supporting organizations marshalled for the exercise from home stations scattered across the nation and from as far away as Germany and Japan.

During the exercise, units of the air task force are operating from several bases in the Carolinas, Virginia and Louisiana. An intricate web of telephone and radio communications facilities connect the headquarters with the dispersed bases. In addition, radios permit flights of aircraft to be contacted in the air directly from the headquarters.

The nerve center of air task force operations is located deep in a pine forest east of Marston, N. C. In the headquarters huts, hidden under the Carolina pines, scenes reminiscent of wartime campaigns prevail as staff officers constantly scan plotting boards and maps which show an up-to-the-minute picture of all friendly and enemy activity in the maneuver area. From their analysis of the situation, decisions are made, and orders transmitted to the subordinate units.

As in actual war, the first operations of the air task force involve reconnaissance aircraft gathering information on aggressor strength and activities. These operations began on April 15, and will continue throughout the exercise.

Present operations of the air task force are designed to wrest control of the air over the objective area from the theoretical enemy nation known as "agressor", and to destroy the aggressor's fighting potential in the area. This campaign started on April 21.

D-Day will see a sharp rise in activity at the air task force headquarters and at the maneuver bases of the subordinate units. In one of the largest air operations staged in the post-war period, all types of aircraft from jet propelled fighters to large B-50 superfortresses will strike the aggressor.

From Barksdale A. F. Base, La., B-50s and B-29s will bomb aggressor rear bases in Florida. Fighters and light bombers will strike the enemy in the maneuver area.

Under a protective umbrella of escorting fighters, troop carrier aircraft will drop the major portion of two airborne divisions on enemy-held Fort Bragg and Camp Mackall, N. C. The balance of these two airborne divisions will be airlanded in the forward areas.

Fighters will circle the paratroopers as they jump and after they are on the ground, affording protection against air attacks, and bombing and strafing ground targets in close air support of the airborne doughboys.

Once the paratroopers have seized the airfield at Camp Mackall, the air task force will launch round-the-clock transport operations, delivering men and equipment to mount and sustain a ground operation by an army corps composed of two divisions. Flights of fighter interceptors will patrol the corridors used by the steady stream of transports, fending off attacks by aggressor aircraft.

Close tactical air support of army troops, long recognized as one of the most important missions of the air force, will continue throughout all phases of the ground operation.

General Wolfinbarger has organized his air task force into two principal subordinate forces — an air transport force and a tactical air force.

Air Task Force Role in Swarmer

The swarmer tactical air force is the "combat" element of the air task force. It is composed of fighters, light bombers, dive bombers and reconnaissance aircraft. Its commander, Colonel Gilbert L. Meyers, served as a combat operations officer in the ninth tactical air command in Europe during World War II. A tactical bomber force composed of two squadrons of jet propelled B-45s is operating under control of the tactical air force.

The air transport force composed of troop carrier and transport aircraft, will carry out all the transport operations. Its commander, Colonel T. R. Milton was chief of staff of the Berlin airlift task force.

The majority of the units in the air task force are from the regular air force, however, the force also includes organizations from the naval and marine air arms, as well as from the air force reserve and air National Guard.

Among the aircraft being employed by the air task force are the north American F-86 "Sabre", holder of the worlds speed record; the Republic F-84 "Thunderjet," veteran of many joint exercises; the north American B-45 "Tornado", the air force's first operational jet bomber; the RF-80 "Shooting Star", reconnaissance version of the F-80 fighter; the Boeing B-29 and B-50 superfortresses; the Fairchild C-82 and C-119 packet troop carriers; Douglas C-54 "Skymasters" and C-74 "Globemasters".

Naval units of the air task force are flying F4U-4 "Corsair" fighters and AD-4 "Skyraider" divebombers. A marine air transport squadron and air force reserve units are equipped with Curtiss C-46 "Commandos". The air National Guard units are operating North American F-51 "Mustangs" of World War II fame.

U. N. Russians Follow Cocktail Party Line

By Francis W. Carpenter

LAKE SUCCESS—Russia's Jakob A. Malik is setting a fast pace in the diplomatic reception and banquet circuit while keeping a cold shoulder turned to all official United Nations meetings.

The tall, smiling Russian, a sharp contrast in the U. N. to the poker-faced Andrei A. Gromyko, turns up regularly at U. N. cocktail parties and dinners in swank New York places and talks with great animation with his fellow delegates.

But Gromyko's successor pays absolutely no attention to two delegates, T. F. Tsiang, of Nationalist China and Ales Bebler, Yugoslav deputy foreign minister. As far as Malik is concerned, they are not in the room—and the feeling is mutual with them.

The Diplomatic Game

Malik is playing the diplomatic game with the rest of the U. N. crowd off the floor while their home offices try to figure out the next move in the Chinese crisis in the U. N.

In brief, here is the trouble:

Moscow is backing Mao Tze-Tung's Red China for the big power U. N. seat held by Chiang Kai-Shek's delegation. Moscow and the countries in the Soviet bloc have pulled a walkout-strike against 18 U. N. organizations, including the three big councils, because they will not kick out Tsiang and seat the Communists.

There has been considerable name-calling in the sedate U. N. halls and tempers have been rather hot. The fight started in January when Tsiang was president of the security council.

Tsiang pointedly neglected to have Malik at the formal dinner given by the security council president at the end of his month's term. Malik probably would not have come if invited.

But Malik and Tsiang crossed paths in January at a reception given by U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin to introduce his new deputy, Ernest A. Gross, to U. N. society.

Tsiang and Malik stayed on opposite sides of the room and gave no sign of recognition. The same went at that party for Malik and Bebler.

The banquet circuit was quiet in February but the deep freeze still was on. Cuban Delegate Carlos Blanco, the February council president, invited Malik to the regular dinner, Malik replied he was unable to come.

In March Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan, foreign minister of Pakistan, gave a special dinner for security council delegates.

Malik, Tsiang and Bebler attended that affair, the first time they had met since January.

The Ice Box League

Then French Delegate Jean Chauvel gave a high level cocktail party in his Park avenue home and all three antagonists attended. By this time Tsiang had become angry at U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie because of Lie's efforts to settle the Chinese affair by seating the Reds as the actual rulers of China.

Tsiang was cool toward the French party. Lie later was asked if they had had any words at their meeting and he replied no, they were gentlemen.

Cut Worms Are Damaging Crops

J. J. Joyce, Jr., Ouachita parish farm agent, issued a warning Saturday to the effect that cut worms are infesting fields in other parishes not so far from Ouachita.

They are eating up oats, pasture grass and peas. Even corn and cotton are also being damaged by the pests.

So far as known they have not got in their destructive work in Ouachita parish but it is feared that they will be coming this way.

The agent warns that he should be notified when they first appear and he will advise as to the best way to get rid of the invaders.

Farmers Find Soil-Savers

By Edward S. Kitch

ROCK FALLS, Ill.—The pine tree is taking root in Illinois to halt erosion of cornbelt soil.

William Briggs, district representative of the U. S. soil conservation service, says there are 3,000,000 acres of marginal land in this state suitable for planting pine seedlings. Most of it is overgrazed sandy soil. It won't raise profitable crops. It is easily whipped into the air by winds or washed away by heavy rains.

Timber, Briggs said, is the best method to keep sandy land in place.

Farmers Can't Lose

Farmers are listening to the story of soil conservation. Private and government agencies are encouraging them to plant pine seedlings. Many are doing it. They know crop-destroying insects are held in check by birds which thrive where trees grow.

The trees farm men now plant will provide game cover, hold down the soil and give a profitable cash crop over a period of years.

Wayne L. Ashby, district forrester with the Illinois state department of conservation, says the total planting in the state last year was 5,696,000 seedlings. This year farmers will plant 7,000,000 seedlings.

Wisconsin and Michigan are expected to set 13,000,000 to 14,000,000 pine seedlings. Minnesota, the conservation men say, will plant from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 seedlings.

Four-year pine seedlings are available to the farmer for one penny each. They are cultivated in forest service sponsored nurseries.

With the aid of a new farm-size tree planting machine produced by Harry A. Lowther, Joliet, Ill., an average of 1,000 seedlings can be planted in one hour. His tree planters are used nationwide in reforestation programs.

William A. Kluender, forestry and agriculture agent with the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, serves as a present-day Johnny Appleseed. He demonstrates modern tree-planting techniques to farmers in territory serviced by the railroad.

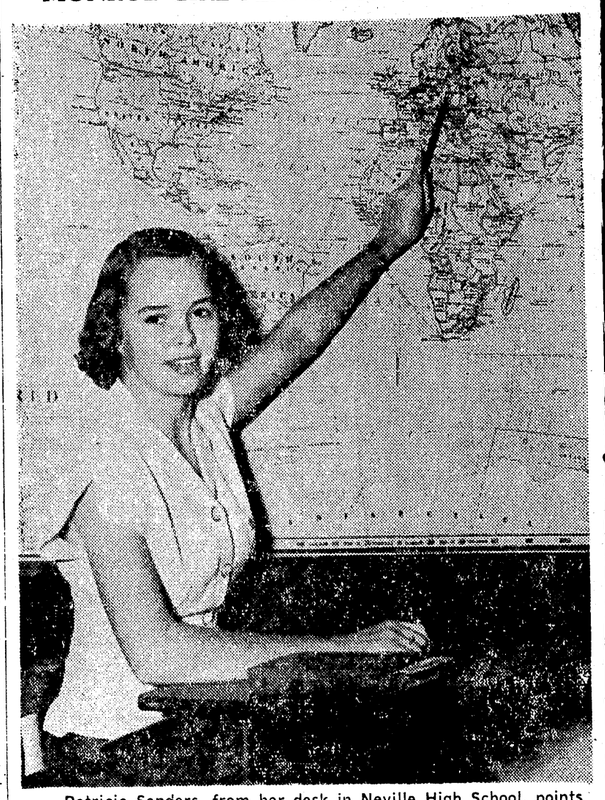

Kluender aided Ralph Hawks, Clinton, Iowa, veterinarisn, launch his private reforestration program This spring Hawks expects his tree growing venture to finance higher education for his two boys who are now four and five years old.

Profits Come in Time

Buying 85 acres at $7.50 an acre, Hawks planted 30,000 seedlings. His tree plantation is on sand wasteland near Fulton, Illinois. He will eventually plant 90,000 trees on it.

Profits from tree growing are reaped in a long-time process. Seven years after the seedlings are planted, they can be thinned out to make room for maturing Christmas trees.

MONROE GIRL PLANS EUROPEAN TRIP

Pat Sanders Plans For European Tour

Neville Girl Will Visit Italy, France, Switzerland, Sweden And Finland This Summer; Is Representing Junior Red Cross

By Jim Reynolds
(Of The Morning World Staff)

A trip to Europe is almost standard equipment in every youngster's hope chest of dreams. Few of us, though, ever get the chance to follow up on our youthful plans.

There's one girl in Monroe, however, who's checking her clothing list and timetables right now, looking forward to a tour of Europe as a representative of her state and her country.

She is pretty Mary Patricia Sanders, a student at Neville High School and an outstanding worker in the Junior Red Cross movement.

In fact, it was her Red Cross work which first brought her the opportunity to make her transatlantic trip.

The trip, which begins July 27, is the culmination of youth activity which began for Pat more than two years ago. In 1948, she represented the Twin Cities Junior Red Cross chapter at the national convention at San Francisco. After another year's activities and experience, she journeyed to the training center in Talladega, Ala., where she was elected to the camp council and achieved the distinction of being the only girl appointed camp director for a day.

Pat was then chosen a member of the southeastern area council of the Junior Red Cross, a group of five students who lead the activities of the organization in this area.

When ten European Red Cross societies issued an invitation to a number of young Americans to visit the war-torn lands which have been receiving school and health supplies from the Junior Red Cross members of the area councils were chosen to make the study visit.

The trip for the pretty Neville student really begins on June 26, when she will be in Detroit, in charge of one of the forums at the annual Junior Red Cross convention, which lasts through the 29th.

The following day, Pat is due in the nation's capital, where she will attend meetings and orientation lectures for ten days prior to departure overseas.

She boards the S. S. Vulcania in New York on July 10, and arrives at her first stop, Naples, Italy on the 27th. From there, it's a rapid tour to Geneva, Switzerland, for a week, where the group will learn how the league of Red Cross societies and the international committee of the Red Cross operate.

From Geneva, Pat's group will visit in France, Sweden and Finland. In each country, the delegates will study community life with a special interest, naturally, in the problems and interests of youth and their relation to the Red Cross programs being carried on overseas and in America. Whenever possible, the group will visit schools, meet teachers and students and discuss school life.

The trip for the fortunate teenagers will be financed by the host countries, except for transportation, which will be covered by a special section of the children's fund of the Junior Red Cross.

To Pat, the tour is "the most thrilling thing that ever happened to me. I hardly even dreamed I'd get a chance like this. It's wonderful!"

The end to the European tour will arrive September 7, when Pat and her companions board the S.S. Saturnia at Cannes, on the French Riviera, for the trip home.

"It won't be much fun to finish a wonderful trip like that," said Pat thoughtfully, "but still," again the grin, even happier now, "I know it'll be great to get home again."

Watson Tours U.S. On Motorcycle

By Percy Fant
(Of The Morning World Staff)

Would it be fun to travel long distances on a three-wheeled motorcycle? What do you think? Bob Watson, 35, says: "I get a kick out of it."

And Bob should know—he's traveled over 59,000 miles in the past three years.

He dropped in for a brief visit in Monroe last week while "motoring" back to his home in Middleton, Conn. after spending the winter in Florida.

Bob explained to newsmen that his travels have taken him through 41 states so far. But what about expenses? Well, the traveler has an easy answer for that one:

Hitched to his motorcycle is a "cracker box" camp trailer, carrying his equipment and supplies, and when opened, it provides a tent-covered room seven feet long and five feet wide. He sleeps in his tentroom and does his own cooking.

Among his "standard" equipment are a typewriter, radio, clothes, an accordian, and anything else that he sees fit to make him completely independent on the road.

As for traveling expenses, Bob solves that problem by selling novelties and leather goods. He makes shell jewelry, too.

But Bob has a "slight" handicap: he's partially paralyzed. This resulted froms ickness when he was eight. He wants other handicapped people to make more of their lives, to get out and make a place for themselves in the world. He says they can get training through the state department of rehabilitation, or in a workshop of the Society For Crippled Children and Adults.

Bob was admitted to the state trade school at Middleton after aptitude tests proved he was mechanically inclined. There he learned machine operation and blueprint reading. Following this training, he was employed in a machine shop and worked 11 hours a night in essential industry during the war, running a turret-lathe.

May Pack Meet In Bernstein Park

The meeting was opened by David DeLand leading the Cub promise. The following achievements were presented: James Gibson, Bobby Ford, J. H. Heard, and Eugene Howard, Wolf badge; Newt Caldwell, Jackie Norton, and Bobby Hayes, Silver Arrow on Wolf badge; Marvin Gibson, Lion badge.

Assistant Cubmaster Henry Princehouse then gave a brief outline on the Cub-O-Ree to be held Saturday, May 20th at Camp Ki-Ro-Li for all Cub Scouts in the Ouachita council. Cubmaster Alex Lea was presented a Cub Scout Plaque from his pack to express their appreciation for his interest in Cubbing.

The Cub Scouts then separated from the parents for a soft-ball game with Mr. Hart, Mr. Levasseur, and Henry Princehouse in charge. At dark the game was called on account of cold drinks being served.

The pack was dismissed with announcement of June 15th as next meeting date for a pack picnic.

In California the new laws emphasize medical treatment and take numberous steps to treat the sex criminal and to educate the public.

Increase in Sex Murders

The laws in both states strike specially at two classes of sex crimes, one, against children, and two, when done with violence. They stem partly from the rise in sex murders since the end of the war.

This public awakening extends beyond crimes. There is also a rising sentiment for better protection of young girls against temptations to voluntary misconduct.

Signs of this movement are in the current wide-spread publication of the so-called ice cream parlor and hot dog stand sex cases. All these are voluntary trysts of teen-age girls with boys and men, who take them to autos, alleys, barns, lanes and fields, for immoral acts.

In all these violations of morals, the girls are considerably younger than the men who take them out. Much of the misconduct is with men two or three times the ages of the girls.

The case that pinned the name on these episodes was among nine girls, 13 to 15, and 13 men in Belvidere, Ill. They met in or near ice cream parlors. One of the men has been convicted of statutory rape, with a five-year sentence.

Two divorcees at Hammond, Ind., arranged meetings between four young girls and 10 men. Parent-teacher and other associations joined in efforts to improve teen-age morality. A neighboring town, East Chicago, has adopted a 10:30 p.m. curfew.

Large Groups Involved

In Zanesville, Ohio, nearly 20 teen-agers were involved in sexual misconduct in autos and other places. Seven boys received jail sentences.

At Rockford, Ill., three girls, aged 14 to 16, were involved with eight married men, all bus drivers. At Milwaukee a gang of white and negro teen-agers was broken up. At Monticello, Ill., 11 bobby-soxers were found misconducting themselves with men ranging from 19 to 50 years. Here drinking parties were part of the routine. At Carlinville, Ill., a 14 and a 17-year-old girl trysted with men of that and other towns nearby.

Lincoln, Neb., was aroused by arrest of six University of Nebraska students, accused of picking up two girls on different nights. County Attorney Frederick Wagener said these incidents prompted more calls to his office than any other case in his three-year tenure.

In these communities about 60 men have been arrested and charged with varying degrees of crime from rape to contributing to the delinquency of a minor female. Among the girls six have been sent to institutions for delinquents.

The new type of laws in New York and California would give enforcement officers a new approach in dealing with teen-age offenses. The officers would be able to provide psychiatric treatment. They would have the power to screen the offenders for the type of personality likely to foment the spread of immoral conduct beyond ordinary limits.

New York's laws were passed unanimously after a 20-month study of 102 male sex criminals in Sing Sing prison. It was found that every one of these men suffered from emotional disorders. All had been unhappy children, due to mismanagement by their parents. As boys, nearly half had good records. Fourteen had been considered model children. Alcoholism was a contributing cause in about half the Sing Sing men.

The New York law calls for indeterminate sentences, to be served in mental institutions, with parole only after medical treatment has been pronounced a cure. The law covers violent rape, felonious sex assault and sex offenses against small children. It provides for more research in sex crimes and makes provision for institutions in which sex offenders will receive psychiatric treatment.

California's Big Progress

California in 1949 passed a law permitting any person who feels he is becoming a potential sex criminal to volunteer for psychiatric treatment. To date there have been 10 volunteers.

Another 1949 California law permits judges to order psychiatric examination for sex offenders, to decide whether a prison or a hospital is the best place.

This year two bills were passed to strengthen the previous year's law. One would make it mandatory for judges to send all cases which are possible sex psychopaths to a mental hospital for examination before sentence. These offenders include not only molesters of children, but peeping Toms, exhibitionists and others whose sex actions are considered irrational.

The other 1950 bill requires that a second offender on a misdemeanor sex charge automatically goes to the superior court for a hearing on whether to go to a mental hospital. This bill allows considerable latitude to the judge on what constitutes a sexual psychopath. There are, for example, persons who set fires partly as a sexual gratification. A judge may order such an arsonist to receive a sex psychopathic examination.

Critical Hospital Shortage

California now has two state hospitals for care of sex offenders. A new hospital for this purpose is to be opened this year at Terminal Island, Long Beach. The legislature has appropriated $6,000,000 to build a prison where a medical staff can care for 400 sex offenders. San Quentin penitentiary has 800 sex offenders, who receive group psychiatric treatment. But the psychiatric staff is short-handed so that the 800 have to be screened to pick the cases needing treatment most.

The state plans a newspaper campaign to inform the public about the voluntary treatment and about sex problems in general. A manual is under preparation for policemen in spotting sex offenders and in their handling after arrest.

Sex guidance clinics are planned for public schools. These would counsel children with abnormal tendencies, and advise with their parents and teachers.

Historic Church Damaged By Fire

NEW ORLEANS, May 20.—(AP)—Historic St. Paul's Evangelical Church, twice destroyed by fire in its 110-year existence, suffered an estimated $15,000 damage from a third blaze today.

Police reinforcements were called out to keep back the crowd which jammed the adjoining streets.

Fire Chief Howard Dey said firemen had difficulty getting water to the steeple of the church because of the low water pressure brought about by the use of numerous lines to fight the fire.

3-YEAR-OLD REPAIRS TRACTOR

Freddie (Frederick H. Bruggeman), now 3 1/2, is an accomplished tractor driver and mechanic at Garden Grove, Calif. He is in his glory when tinkering with cars, tractors, or his own bicycle. It's quite a stretch for him to reach the tractor clutch, but he manages and drives like a veteran. He likes long hours at the wheel.

TWIN CITIES MEN IN 'EXERCISE SWARMER'

Brigadier General W. R. Wolfinbarger, commanding general of the Air Task Force Swarmer, briefs these two men from the state of Louisiana on their role in Exercise Swarmer, the joint Army-Air Force maneuver. These men were among those responsible for air-landing over 250,000 tons of equipment during the 10-day maneuver. They are (left to right) Lt. Col. William G. Miller, West Monroe, La., and General Wolfinbarger, and Lt. Raymond F. Thompson, of Monroe. (Armed Forces Photo.)

LOCAL OFFICERS IN EX. SWARMER

Monroe, West Monroe Men In Army-Air Force Maneuvers

CAMP MACKALL, N. C.—(Special)—Exercise Swarmer, largest airhead maneuver in the history of the U. S. army and air force will test and evaluate both the tactical air power and the air transport potential of the U. S. air force.

Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad, U. S. A. F., who commands the entire exercise, has established an air task force to organize, command and direct all friendly air force units under one centralized command and has designated Brig. Gen. W. R. Wolfinbarger, U. S. A. F., as the commander of this task force.

General Wolfinbarger's air task force swarmer is composed of a 600 plane armada and supporting organizations marshalled for the exercise from home stations scattered across the nation and from as far away as Germany and Japan.

During the exercise, units of the air task force are operating from several bases in the Carolinas, Virginia and Louisiana. An intricate web of telephone and radio communications facilities connect the headquarters with the dispersed bases. In addition, radios permit flights of aircraft to be contacted in the air directly from the headquarters.

The nerve center of air task force operations is located deep in a pine forest east of Marston, N. C. In the headquarters huts, hidden under the Carolina pines, scenes reminiscent of wartime campaigns prevail as staff officers constantly scan plotting boards and maps which show an up-to-the-minute picture of all friendly and enemy activity in the maneuver area. From their analysis of the situation, decisions are made, and orders transmitted to the subordinate units.

As in actual war, the first operations of the air task force involve reconnaissance aircraft gathering information on aggressor strength and activities. These operations began on April 15, and will continue throughout the exercise.

Present operations of the air task force are designed to wrest control of the air over the objective area from the theoretical enemy nation known as "agressor", and to destroy the aggressor's fighting potential in the area. This campaign started on April 21.

D-Day will see a sharp rise in activity at the air task force headquarters and at the maneuver bases of the subordinate units. In one of the largest air operations staged in the post-war period, all types of aircraft from jet propelled fighters to large B-50 superfortresses will strike the aggressor.

From Barksdale A. F. Base, La., B-50s and B-29s will bomb aggressor rear bases in Florida. Fighters and light bombers will strike the enemy in the maneuver area.

Under a protective umbrella of escorting fighters, troop carrier aircraft will drop the major portion of two airborne divisions on enemy-held Fort Bragg and Camp Mackall, N. C. The balance of these two airborne divisions will be airlanded in the forward areas.

Fighters will circle the paratroopers as they jump and after they are on the ground, affording protection against air attacks, and bombing and strafing ground targets in close air support of the airborne doughboys.

Once the paratroopers have seized the airfield at Camp Mackall, the air task force will launch round-the-clock transport operations, delivering men and equipment to mount and sustain a ground operation by an army corps composed of two divisions. Flights of fighter interceptors will patrol the corridors used by the steady stream of transports, fending off attacks by aggressor aircraft.

Close tactical air support of army troops, long recognized as one of the most important missions of the air force, will continue throughout all phases of the ground operation.

General Wolfinbarger has organized his air task force into two principal subordinate forces — an air transport force and a tactical air force.

Air Task Force Role in Swarmer

The swarmer tactical air force is the "combat" element of the air task force. It is composed of fighters, light bombers, dive bombers and reconnaissance aircraft. Its commander, Colonel Gilbert L. Meyers, served as a combat operations officer in the ninth tactical air command in Europe during World War II. A tactical bomber force composed of two squadrons of jet propelled B-45s is operating under control of the tactical air force.

The air transport force composed of troop carrier and transport aircraft, will carry out all the transport operations. Its commander, Colonel T. R. Milton was chief of staff of the Berlin airlift task force.

The majority of the units in the air task force are from the regular air force, however, the force also includes organizations from the naval and marine air arms, as well as from the air force reserve and air National Guard.

Among the aircraft being employed by the air task force are the north American F-86 "Sabre", holder of the worlds speed record; the Republic F-84 "Thunderjet," veteran of many joint exercises; the north American B-45 "Tornado", the air force's first operational jet bomber; the RF-80 "Shooting Star", reconnaissance version of the F-80 fighter; the Boeing B-29 and B-50 superfortresses; the Fairchild C-82 and C-119 packet troop carriers; Douglas C-54 "Skymasters" and C-74 "Globemasters".

Naval units of the air task force are flying F4U-4 "Corsair" fighters and AD-4 "Skyraider" divebombers. A marine air transport squadron and air force reserve units are equipped with Curtiss C-46 "Commandos". The air National Guard units are operating North American F-51 "Mustangs" of World War II fame.

U. N. Russians Follow Cocktail Party Line

By Francis W. Carpenter

LAKE SUCCESS—Russia's Jakob A. Malik is setting a fast pace on the diplomatic reception and banquet circuit while keeping a cold shoulder turned to all official United Nations meetings.

The tall, smiling Russian, a sharp contrast in the U. N. to the poker-faced Andrei A. Gromyko, turns up regularly at U. N. cocktail parties and dinners in swank New York places and talks with great animation with his fellow delegates.

But Gromyko's successor pays absolutely no attention to two delegates, T. F. Tsiang, of Nationalist China and Ales Bebler, Yugoslav deputy foreign minister. As far as Malik is concerned, they are not in the room—and the feeling is mutual with them.

The Diplomatic Game

Malik is playing the diplomatic game with the rest of the U. N. crowd off the floor while their home offices try to figure out the next move in the Chinese crisis in the U. N.

In brief, here is the trouble:

Moscow is backing Mao Tze-Tung's Red China for the big power U. N. seat held by Chiang Kai-Shek's delegation. Moscow and the countries in the Soviet bloc have pulled a walkout-strike against 18 U. N. organizations, including the three big councils, because they will not kick out Tsiang and seat the Communists.

There has been considerable name-calling in the sedate U. N. halls and tempers have been rather hot. The fight started in January when Tsiang was president of the security council.

Tsiang pointedly neglected to have Malik at the formal dinner given by the security council president at the end of his month's term. Malik probably would not have come if invited.

But Malik and Tsiang crossed paths in January at a reception given by U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin to introduce his new deputy, Ernest A. Gross, to U. N. society.

Tsiang and Malik stayed on opposite sides of the room and gave no sign of recognition. The same went at that party for Malik and Bebler.

The banquet circuit was quiet in February but the deep freeze still was on. Cuban Delegate Carlos Blanco, the February council president, invited Malik to the regular dinner, Malik replied he was unable to come.

In March Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan, foreign minister of Pakistan, gave a special dinner for security council delegates.

Malik, Tsiang and Bebler attended that affair, the first time they had met since January.

The Ice Box League

Then French Delegate Jean Chauvel gave a high level cocktail party in his Park avenue home and all three antagonists attended. By this time Tsiang had become angry at U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie because of Lie's efforts to settle the Chinese affair by seating the Reds as the actual rulers of China.

Tsiang was cool toward the French party. Lie later was asked if they had had any words at their meeting and he replied no, they were gentlemen.

Cut Worms Are Damaging Crops

J. J. Joyce, Jr., Ouachita parish farm agent, issued a warning Saturday to the effect that cut worms are infesting fields in other parishes not so far from Ouachita.

They are eating up oats, pasture grass and peas. Even corn and cotton are also being damaged by the pests.

So far as known they have not got in their destructive work in Ouachita parish but it is feared that they will be coming this way.

The agent warns that he should be notified when they first appear and he will advise as to the best way to get rid of the invaders.

Farmers Find Soil-Savers

By Edward S. Kitch

ROCK FALLS, Ill.—The pine tree is taking root in Illinois to halt erosion of cornbelt soil.

William Briggs, district representative of the U. S. soil conservation service, says there are 3,000,000 acres of marginal land in this state suitable for planting pine seedlings. Most of it is overgrazed sandy soil. It won't raise profitable crops. It is easily whipped into the air by winds or washed away by heavy rains.

Timber, Briggs said, is the best method to keep sandy land in place.

Farmers Can't Lose

Farmers are listening to the story of soil conservation. Private and government agencies are encouraging them to plant pine seedlings. Many are doing it. They know crop-destroying insects are held in check by birds which thrive where trees grow.

The trees farm men now plant will provide game cover, hold down the soil and give a profitable cash crop over a period of years.

Wayne L. Ashby, district forrester with the Illinois state department of conservation, says the total planting in the state last year was 5,696,000 seedlings. This year farmers will plant 7,000,000 seedlings.

Wisconsin and Michigan are expected to set 13,000,000 to 14,000,000 pine seedlings. Minnesota, the conservation men say, will plant from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 seedlings.

Four-year pine seedlings are available to the farmer for one penny each. They are cultivated in forest service sponsored nurseries.

SETTING OUT pine Seedlings.

With the aid of a new farm-size tree planting machine produced by Harry A. Lowther, Joliet, Ill., an average of 1,000 seedlings can be planted in one hour. His tree planters are used nationwide in reforestation programs.

William A. Kluender, forestry and agriculture agent with the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, serves as a present-day Johnny Appleseed. He demonstrates modern tree-planting techniques to farmers in territory serviced by the railroad.

Kluender aided Ralph Hawks, Clinton, Iowa, veterinarisn, launch his private reforestration program This spring Hawks expects his tree growing venture to finance higher education for his two boys who are now four and five years old.

Profits Come in Time

Buying 85 acres at $7.50 an acre, Hawks planted 30,000 seedlings. His tree plantation is on sand wasteland near Fulton, Illinois. He will eventually plant 90,000 trees on it.

Profits from tree growing are reaped in a long-time process. Seven years after the seedlings are planted, they can be thinned out to make room for maturing Christmas trees.

MONROE GIRL PLANS EUROPEAN TRIP

Patricia Sanders, from her desk in Neville High School, points to one of the stops on her proposed trip to Europe as a representative of the American Junior Red Cross.

Pat Sanders Plans For European Tour

Neville Girl Will Visit Italy, France, Switzerland, Sweden And Finland This Summer; Is Representing Junior Red Cross

By Jim Reynolds
(Of The Morning World Staff)

A trip to Europe is almost standard equipment in every youngster's hope chest of dreams. Few of us, though, ever get the chance to follow up on our youthful plans.

There's one girl in Monroe, however, who's checking her clothing list and timetables right now, looking forward to a tour of Europe as a representative of her state and her country.

She is pretty Mary Patricia Sanders, a student at Neville High School and an outstanding worker in the Junior Red Cross movement.

In fact, it was her Red Cross work which first brought her the opportunity to make her transatlantic trip.

The trip, which begins July 27, is the culmination of youth activity which began for Pat more than two years ago. In 1948, she represented the Twin Cities Junior Red Cross chapter at the national convention at San Francisco. After another year's activities and experience, she journeyed to the training center in Talladega, Ala., where she was elected to the camp council and achieved the distinction of being the only girl appointed camp director for a day.

Pat was then chosen a member of the southeastern area council of the Junior Red Cross, a group of five students who lead the activities of the organization in this area.

When ten European Red Cross societies issued an invitation to a number of young Americans to visit the war-torn lands which have been receiving school and health supplies from the Junior Red Cross members of the area councils were chosen to make the study visit.

The 20 students named to represent more 19,000,000 Junior Red Cross members in this country hail from 18 states in all sections of the nation. Pat is the only southern area council member from Louisiana.

The trip for the pretty Neville student really begins on June 26, when she will be in Detroit, in charge of one of the forums at the annual Junior Red Cross convention, which lasts through the 29th.

The following day, Pat is due in the nation's capital, where she will attend meetings and orientation lectures for ten days prior to departure overseas.

She boards the S. S. Vulcania in New York on July 10, and arrives at her first stop, Naples, Italy on the 27th. From there, it's a rapid tour to Geneva, Switzerland, for a week, where the group will learn how the league of Red Cross societies and the international committee of the Red Cross operate.

From Geneva, Pat's group will visit in France, Sweden and Finland. In each country, the delegates will study community life with a special interest, naturally, in the problems and interests of youth and their relation to the Red Cross programs being carried on overseas and in America. Whenever possible, the group will visit schools, meet teachers and students and discuss school life.

The trip for the fortunate teenagers will be financed by the host countries, except for transportation, which will be covered by a special section of the children's fund of the Junior Red Cross.

To Pat, the tour is "the most thrilling thing that ever happened to me. I hardly even dreamed I'd get a chance like this. It's wonderful!"

The end to the European tour will arrive September 7, when Pat and her companions board the S.S. Saturnia at Cannes, on the French Riviera, for the trip home.

"It won't be much fun to finish a wonderful trip like that," said Pat thoughtfully, "but still," again the grin, even happier now, "I know it'll be great to get home again."

Watson Tours U.S. On Motorcycle

By Percy Fant
(Of The Morning World Staff)

Would it be fun to travel long distances on a three-wheeled motorcycle? What do you think? Bob Watson, 35, says: "I get a kick out of it."

And Bob should know—he's traveled over 59,000 miles in the past three years.

He dropped in for a brief visit in Monroe last week while "motoring" back to his home in Middleton, Conn. after spending the winter in Florida.

Bob explained to newsmen that his travels have taken him through 41 states so far. But what about expenses? Well, the traveler has an easy answer for that one:

Hitched to his motorcycle is a "cracker box" camp trailer, carrying his equipment and supplies, and when opened, it provides a tent-covered room seven feet long and five feet wide. He sleeps in his tentroom and does his own cooking.

Among his "standard" equipment are a typewriter, radio, clothes, an accordian, and anything else that he sees fit to make him completely independent on the road.

As for traveling expenses, Bob solves that problem by selling novelties and leather goods. He makes shell jewelry, too.

But Bob has a "slight" handicap: he's partially paralyzed. This resulted froms ickness when he was eight. He wants other handicapped people to make more of their lives, to get out and make a place for themselves in the world. He says they can get training through the state department of rehabilitation, or in a workshop of the Society For Crippled Children and Adults.

Bob was admitted to the state trade school at Middleton after aptitude tests proved he was mechanically inclined. There he learned machine operation and blueprint reading. Following this training, he was employed in a machine shop and worked 11 hours a night in essential industry during the war, running a turret-lathe.

During this period, Bob underwent 10 surgical operations to improve his physical condition, but still had enough money saved to purchase his motorcycle.

Bob says next winter he may set out for California—his fourth warm-weather vacation.

May Pack Meet In Bernstein Park

Cub Pack 34 held its May pack meeting at Bernstein park with approximately 60 Cub scouts, parents and guests in attendance.

The meeting was opened by David DeLand leading the Cub promise. The following achievements were presented: James Gibson, Bobby Ford, J. H. Heard, and Eugene Howard, Wolf badge; Newt Caldwell, Jackie Norton, and Bobby Hayes, Silver Arrow on Wolf badge; Marvin Gibson, Lion badge.

Assistant Cubmaster Henry Princehouse then gave a brief outline on the Cub-O-Ree to be held Saturday, May 20th at Camp Ki-Ro-Li for all Cub Scouts in the Ouachita council. Cubmaster Alex Lea was presented a Cub Scout Plaque from his pack to express their appreciation for his interest in Cubbing.

The Cub Scouts then separated from the parents for a soft-ball game with Mr. Hart, Mr. Levasseur, and Henry Princehouse in charge. At dark the game was called on account of cold drinks being served.

The pack was dismissed with announcement of June 15th as next meeting date for a pack picnic.

'SAMSON AND DELILAH'

June Allyson accepts an engagement ring from Dick Powell in "The Reformer and the Redhead," M.-G.-M.'s romantic comedy in which June and Dick, who are Mr. and Mrs. in private life, appear on the screen together for the first time since their marriage. Incidentally, the ring is the same one which Powell gave Miss Allyson when he proposed to her in real life. "The Reformer and the Redhead" will open next Sunday at the Joy Theater.

'Samson And Delilah' In Paramount Opening Today

Spectacle, when spelled out by Cecil B. DeMille, has the planned violence of an atomic burst. "Samson and Delilah," starring Hedy Lamarr and Victor Mature in the title roles, George Sanders, Angela Lansbury, Henry Wilcoxen and a cast of thousands, which starts today at the Paramount Theatre, is no exception. The durable 67-year-old showman, in his 36th year in Hollywood, marched upon this thorny tale from the Bible with the enthusiasm of a Crusader shinnying up the walls of Antioch.

De Mille, who loves to unite strong story value and religion on the screen, found the perfect medium in the Samson story without having to manufacture either quality. In full measure and overflowing the story is in Chapters 13-16, Book of Judges, Old Testament—so full of hate, passion, frailty, treachery, murder and violence, that even biblical scholars question its place in the Holy Book.

But the story is there and De Mille has taken full advantage of every hot breath it breathes. The De Mille formula--"movies should move"—flowers in all its magnificence here. Four great battles, surging with blood, dust and fire, come booming out of the De Mille execution. Woven between these epic clashes is the famed passion of Samson, foolish man from the hills, and Delilah, a gorgeous, slim-hipped siren born 3,000 years too soon.

Filmed in Technicolor, "Samson and Delilah" is De Mille's fourth from the Bible. "You can make a film from any sixty pages of the Bible," he contends. He filmed "The Ten Commandments" in 1923 "King of Kings" in 1926, and "The Sign of The Cross", in 1932. A bald scholarly, two-fisted perfectionist whose cinematic ecord includes such engineering feats as the crossing of the Red Sea, the siege of Acre, and the storming of Fort Pitt, De Mille was determined to make "Samson and Delilah," his 68th film, the very best of a long career.

De Mille's personal staff researched 14 years in preparation for his filming of the greatest love story since the beginning of man—and woman. After 2 years of researching Samson's character alone, De Mille helped himself to a biblical conclusion, to wit: "Samson would have made Dillinger seem like a man of charity."

Popular concept of Samson as a sympathetic man betrayed by a woman who shore his locks, doesn't stand up in De Mille's view. The producer compiled a list of Samson's crimes, which he says would have done considerable violence to state and federal statutes.

Samson killed 1,000 Philistines with the jawbone of an ass, but probably would have beat that rap on the basis of self-defense. But, says, C. B., the People vs. Samson would have put the Gaza strong man on the spot with respect to the following crimes:

Forty counts of first degree murder including willful killing of his father-in-law-to-be.

Felonious arson using live wolves as flaming torches to set fire to Philistine wheat fields.

Thirty counts of robbery forcibly taking garments from thirty way-farers to satisfy a wager.

Five counts of assaulting public officers.

How about Samson pulling down the Temple at Gaza? Smiled De Mille: "If a man can destroy a temple with his bare hands, he's entitled to do it, if for nothing else than as a warning to local building codes."

POWELL, ALLYSON STARRED

Anyone in the mood for uninhibited laughter will have the time of his and her life at MGM's ingratiating romantic comedy, "The Reformer and the Redhead," which brings June Allyson and Dick Powell (Mr. and Mrs. in private life) to the Joy next Sunday.

With Miss Allyson cast as a zookeeper's daughter with spirit and aggressiveness to match her red hair, and Powell playing a crusading mayoralty candidate who routs both a crooked political machine and the zoo's most ferocious lion, this happy-go-lucky story romps along at a fast-and-furious pace to provide some of the longest and loudest laughs of the year.

The excitement and fun start at the very beginning when Kathleen Maguire, devoted to the animals in her father's zoo, slaps down a feminine big-game hunter who turns out to be the daughter of the town's political boss. Faced with a jail sentence for disorderly conduct, Kathleen turns to lawyer Andrew Hale for advice. It is an association ripe with hilarious consequences. Before she ends up in Andrew's arms, Kathleen has enlisted the aid of every orphan in town to help elect him mayor and in the unforgettably funny final sequence makes him a hero in spite of himself when he captures a man-eating lion which he thinks to be tame.

The Powells, appearnig together on the screen for the first time since their marriage, are delightfully cast as the respective Kathleen and Andrew, and are given excellent support in the work of such performers as David Wayne, remembered for his hit as the songwriter of "Adam's Rib," and now cast as Andrew's imperturbable campaign manager; Cecil Kellaway as Kathleen's zookeeper father, Ray Collins as the political boss and Robert Keith as a prying news-hound. Moreover, should the Academy Award committee ever pass out trophies to the screen's four-footed actors, the lions, baby llamas and sandwich-snitching chimpanzee seen in this hilarious comedy will be near the top of the list of nominees!

'SAMSON AND DELILAH'

June Allyson accepts an engagement ring from Dick Powell in "The Reformer and the Redhead," M.-G.-M.'s romantic comedy in which June and Dick, who are Mr. and Mrs. in private life, appear on the screen together for the first time since their marriage. Incidentally, the ring is the same one which Powell gave Miss Allyson when he proposed to her in real life. "The Reformer and the Redhead" will open next Sunday at the Joy Theater.

'Samson And Delilah' In Paramount Opening Today

Spectacle, when spelled out by Cecil B. DeMille, has the planned violence of an atomic burst. "Samson and Delilah," starring Hedy Lamarr and Victor Mature in the title roles, George Sanders, Angela Lansbury, Henry Wilcoxen and a cast of thousands, which starts today at the Paramount Theatre, is no exception. The durable 67-year-old showman, in his 36th year in Hollywood, marched upon this thorny tale from the Bible with the enthusiasm of a Crusader shinnying up the walls of Antioch.

De Mille, who loves to unite strong story value and religion on the screen, found the perfect medium in the Samson story without having to manufacture either quality. In full measure and overflowing the story is in Chapters 13-16, Book of Judges, Old Testament—so full of hate, passion, frailty, treachery, murder and violence, that even biblical scholars question its place in the Holy Book.

But the story is there and De Mille has taken full advantage of every hot breath it breathes. The De Mille formula--"movies should move"—flowers in all its magnificence here. Four great battles, surging with blood, dust and fire, come booming out of the De Mille execution. Woven between these epic clashes is the famed passion of Samson, foolish man from the hills, and Delilah, a gorgeous, slim-hipped siren born 3,000 years too soon.

Filmed in Technicolor, "Samson and Delilah" is De Mille's fourth from the Bible. "You can make a film from any sixty pages of the Bible," he contends. He filmed "The Ten Commandments" in 1923 "King of Kings" in 1926, and "The Sign of The Cross", in 1932. A bald scholarly, two-fisted perfectionist whose cinematic ecord includes such engineering feats as the crossing of the Red Sea, the siege of Acre, and the storming of Fort Pitt, De Mille was determined to make "Samson and Delilah," his 68th film, the very best of a long career.

De Mille's personal staff researched 14 years in preparation for his filming of the greatest love story since the beginning of man—and woman. After 2 years of researching Samson's character alone, De Mille helped himself to a biblical conclusion, to wit: "Samson would have made Dillinger seem like a man of charity."

Popular concept of Samson as a sympathetic man betrayed by a woman who shore his locks, doesn't stand up in De Mille's view. The producer compiled a list of Samson's crimes, which he says would have done considerable violence to state and federal statutes.

Samson killed 1,000 Philistines with the jawbone of an ass, but probably would have beat that rap on the basis of self-defense. But, says, C. B., the People vs. Samson would have put the Gaza strong man on the spot with respect to the following crimes:

Forty counts of first degree murder including willful killing of his father-in-law-to-be.

Felonious arson using live wolves as flaming torches to set fire to Philistine wheat fields.

Thirty counts of robbery forcibly taking garments from thirty way-farers to satisfy a wager.

Ten counts of trespass to lands.

Four counts of trespass to chattels.

Five counts of assaulting public officers.

How about Samson pulling down the Temple at Gaza? Smiled De Mille: "If a man can destroy a temple with his bare hands, he's entitled to do it, if for nothing else than as a warning to local building codes."

POWELL, ALLYSON STARRED

Anyone in the mood for uninhibited laughter will have the time of his and her life at MGM's ingratiating romantic comedy, "The Reformer and the Redhead," which brings June Allyson and Dick Powell (Mr. and Mrs. in private life) to the Joy next Sunday.

With Miss Allyson cast as a zookeeper's daughter with spirit and aggressiveness to match her red hair, and Powell playing a crusading mayoralty candidate who routs both a crooked political machine and the zoo's most ferocious lion, this happy-go-lucky story romps along at a fast-and-furious pace to provide some of the longest and loudest laughs of the year.

The excitement and fun start at the very beginning when Kathleen Maguire, devoted to the animals in her father's zoo, slaps down a feminine big-game hunter who turns out to be the daughter of the town's political boss. Faced with a jail sentence for disorderly conduct, Kathleen turns to lawyer Andrew Hale for advice. It is an association ripe with hilarious consequences. Before she ends up in Andrew's arms, Kathleen has enlisted the aid of every orphan in town to help elect him mayor and in the unforgettably funny final sequence makes him a hero in spite of himself when he captures a man-eating lion which he thinks to be tame.

The Powells, appearnig together on the screen for the first time since their marriage, are delightfully cast as the respective Kathleen and Andrew, and are given excellent support in the work of such performers as David Wayne, remembered for his hit as the songwriter of "Adam's Rib," and now cast as Andrew's imperturbable campaign manager; Cecil Kellaway as Kathleen's zookeeper father, Ray Collins as the political boss and Robert Keith as a prying news-hound. Moreover, should the Academy Award committee ever pass out trophies to the screen's four-footed actors, the lions, baby llamas and sandwich-snitching chimpanzee seen in this hilarious comedy will be near the top of the list of nominees!

BOYET SHOWING SCHOOLS' NEEDS

Superintendent Explains How City Of Monroe Must Provide For Future

Superintendent of City Schools J. M. Boyet unfolded before the Lida Benton P-T. A Thursday afternoon some of the reasons why a bond election will be held May 23.

The facts accumulated in book form by the College of Education at L. S. U. were not new to the parents and teachers. Many had read the booklet circulated in all schools but most of them had gathered the information through close contact with or work at the school.

The friendly, interesting interpretation by Mr. Boyet left no doubt in the mind of the audience that he and the city school board have spared neither their time not talent in planning a far-sighted educational program for pupils who will attend city schools.

Mr. Boyet, sighting the highest expected enrollment in history in 1952-1953, said that after providing good teachers and instructional material we can say "We have a good school ready for you."

Continuing, he said that for many years the city system has enjoyed well-planned buildings, housed with a teaching staff enjoying a statewide reputation for having thorough and efficient teaching qualifications.

The city system offered a kindergarten and 12 grades of elementary and high school credit found in no other school, dropping the 12th grade only to conform with a statewide program. After reviewing the present facilities a need has been found for expansion and renovation.

Grammar schools should be within walking distance of pupils while a consolidated high school offers better educational facilities.

To have a complete plant, Lida Benton, though well planned and in good repair, needs an addition suitable for physical education and recreation.

These with the present high standards of the city school system will help build a strong community.

In conclusion, Mr. Boyet clarified the situation by disclosing that while the city of Monroe had called the election the Monroe city school board will be entirely responsible for the necessary distribution of funds gained from the bond election which will be held solely for the improvement of school facilities.

Fitting for the last program of the year, Mrs. Miller presented her sixth grade girls in a lilting interpretation of the whimsical tune "Summer." The lassies, unusually lovely in flowing pastel frocks, used flower laurels in performing the intricate routine.

Pert and refreshing, wearing blouses and full skirts, Mrs. Pearce's fourth grade girls executed a polka to "Kinderpolka."

During the business session presided over by Mrs. Jack Davis, Mrs. W. F. Roberts announced that Lida Benton P-T. A. had achieved all goals for the past year.

Mrs. Davis recognized various members for particular services but added that co-operation from all members had made it a fruitful year.

The meeting adjourned to a social hour in the cafeteria.

'Colorado Territory' Playing At Joy Drive-In

Two brilliant and sincere performances in an unusual story, offering a penetrating glimpse into the lives of an outlaw and his half-breed sweetheart, are due to thrill local motion picture goers soon.

With Joel McCrea as Wes McQueen, one of the west's most notorious outlaws, and Virginia Mayo playing "Colorado" Carson, beautiful part-Indian girl, Warner Bros.' "Colorado Territory" comes to Strand on Friday a much-heraled action western melodrama. It is playing at the Joy Drive-In.

Written by John Twist and Edmund North, "Colorado Territory" is the epic tale of a hunted outlaw who rode the territory around Durango, Colorado in its wildest days, and it is in the country of towering buttes and red rock canyons that this romantic picture was actually filmed by the entire troupe on location for more than several months.

But it is probably toward the two colorful characters that most of the attention is to be directed. As Wes McQueen, a man hunted by the law, Joel McCrea tackled a challenging role for the handsome six foot six inch star. A natural rider and outdoor man, McCrea today owns one of the largest working ranches in the San Fernando valley. And it was in this type of two-gun role that some of his greatest film successes have been scored, starting some years back with "Wells Fargo".

Playing opposite McCrea is lovely Virginia Mayo who for the first time in her starring career essays an outdoor role. As "Colorado" Carson in rough though revealing clothes, Miss Mayo is given a colorful opportunity for she is a half-breed Indian girl, beautiful, wild and vivacious, a girl reputedly able to handle a six-gun or the heart of a man with equal dexterity.

When You Feel 'Run Down'

Here's Welcome Relief from that TIRED FEELING

S.S.S. GOES STRAIGHT TO WORK WHERE THESE TROUBLES OFTEN BEGIN

Starts to Work at Once

Helps Keep You Feeling Better

This is good news for suffering folks who want to regain their energy. Don't get old before your time. Look out if at the end of the day you feel tired and worn out and have no zip and pep to do and enjoy things. Better days can be yours!

Recently a woman wrote: "I took five bottles of S.S.S. this year. Have ceaseless energy. My husband takes S.S.S. every year. He feels it is better to keep his blood in good health than to try repairing it."

An appetizing portion of S.S.S. Tonic before meals does wonders for the blood. This famous medicine builds up low blood strength in men, women and children who have non-organic simple or nutritional anemia. So why wait! S.S.S. Tonic helps Nature work faster when help is needed.

Millions of Bottles Sold! Get a bottle of S.S.S. Tonic—in the big red box. Leadership attracts substitution, so beware of imitations claimed to be the same or just as good! Accept only S.S.S. Tonic—the established and proven leader. Ask for S.S.S. At all drug stores—Family size, $2.00; Regular size, $1.25.

DOCTORS' TESTS PROVE

You Get NEW Vigor and Pep

when you energize your body with

RICH, RED BLOOD

S.S.S. Tonic goes right to work to build up your blood strength . . . builds up starved, weak blood to renew energy and pep. Medical authorities, by blood analyses on case subjects taking S.S.S. Tonic, state the following conclusions:

". . . Laboratory studies show that for increasing red-blood-cells and for making the cells rich in coloring matter, S.S.S. Tonic was definitely greater than Liver and Iron . . ."

Further tests showed stomach gastric discomfort relieved, and food better digested—thereby giving steady relief from

ACID INDIGESTION

REMEMBER, COMRADE, IF YOU ENJOY YOUR POSITION AS CHIEF OF THE PARTY'S SECURITY POLICE, FAIL NOT ON TONIGHT'S ASSIGNMENT.

BY MORNING, EACH OF THE ONE HUNDRED HOSTAGES LISTED WILL BE IN OUR CELLS, COMRADE PARTY LEADER.

WE WILL THEN SEE HOW AMUSING THE TOWNSPEOPLE FIND THIS MYSTERIOUS GIANT AND HIS FRIENDS — WHEN EACH ATTEMPT TO CAUSE US TO "LOSE FACE" RESULTS IN DEATH FOR ONE OF THEIR RESPECTED ELDERS.

MEANWHILE, OUTSIDE PARTY HEADQUARTERS

DOWNRIGHT THOUGHTFUL OF THE UNDERGROUND TO PLANT ONE OF THEIR BOYS AS THE PARTY BIG SHOT'S SERVANT, TERRY.

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

EGAD, YES! YOU NEED A STOUT PAIR OF LEGS, MAN!

LET'S SEE NOW --- HOW MANY---

SPEAKING OF LEGS, YOU ARE LOOKING AT A MAN WHOSE LEGS ONCE WON INTERNATIONAL RENOWN!

YES--- NOW, HOW MANY PERSONS ARE THERE---

AS A YOUTH I DEFEATED A THOROUGHBRED HORSE IN A RACE ACROSS IRELAND FROM GALWAY BAY TO DUBLIN!

AT THE START THE HORSE WENT OUT FAR IN FRONT--- BUT I RAN ON GRIMLY, DOGGEDLY!

AT THE RIVER SHANNON I PASSED THE HORSE THE FIRST TIME AS HE PAUSED, EXHAUSTED! NEXT DAY, HOWEVER, THE ANIMAL PASSED ME AGAIN!

THE HORSE FELL, COMPLETELY SPENT, WITHIN FIVE MILES OF DUBLIN--- I SWEPT ON TO VICTORY!

MY MAGNIFICENT LEGS WERE SHORTENED A GOOD FIVE INCHES BY THE POUNDING!

HOOPLE'S LEGS BEFORE RACE:

LOOK SHARP, PUNCHY. WE'LL SEARCH THE WHOLE ATOLL FOR THAT FELLOW JIM. HE'S DANGEROUS.

FLASH GORDON

by MAC RABOY and DON MOORE ®

DALE GROANS AS SHE REALIZES SHE HAS REVEALED FLASH'S TRUE IDENTITY. "YOUR MASQUERADE IS OVER," SNARLS ZIN. "YOU'RE BOTH MY PRISONERS. NOW MY CONQUEST OF MONGO WILL BE EASY."

SUDDENLY FLASH PUSHES RUBIA AGAINST ZIN AND ESCAPES IN THE CONFUSION. "I'M NOT YOUR PRISONER YET!" FLASH TAUNTS.

KNOWING THAT SEARCHERS SELDOM LOOK UPWARD, FLASH HIDES ON THE ROOF. "WHEREVER YOU ARE, GORDON," ZIN SHOUTS, "YOU HAD BETTER SURRENDER OR WE'LL KILL DALE." BUT FLASH IS SURE THEY'LL HOLD DALE AS BAIT TO TRAP HIM.

ZIN SETS FIRE TO THE HUT, THEN BROADCASTS FROM HIS ARMORED CAR: "EXILES," HE SHOUTS INTO THE MICROPHONE, "TURN OUT AND HUNT FLASH GORDON, THE MAN WHO BANISHED YOU HERE."

THE PRISON-MOON OF EXILA BECOMES ONE VAST MAN HUNT. ZIN AND RUBIA START FOR THE PALACE WITH DALE AS THEIR CAPTIVE. FLASH TAKES A DARING CHANCE--AND LEAPS ONTO THE BACK OF THEIR CAR!

NEXT WEEK: FIRE TEST.
